EX-PRES. WM. H. TAFT PRAISES PRES. WILSON

Should Have the Warmest and Sincerest Cooperation in His Efforts to Maintain Neutrality of Country, Says the Former President

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The annual meeting of the American Bar association began here today with hundreds of lawyers in attendance from every state in the Union and some parts of Canada.

An address of welcome by President Wilson was to open the sessions, followed by the annual address of the president of the organization, former President Taft. The program then called for the nomination and election of members, election of the general council and reports of the secretary, treasurer and executive committee.

Sections on the judiciary, patent law and legal education had planned meetings later in the day.

Tonight Senator Root will deliver an address on "The Layman's Criticism of the Lawyer," and a reception to the members and their guests will be given in the Pan-American Union building.

Ex-President Taft's Address
The United States should draw from the European war a lesson regarding its own conduct, said ex-President William H. Taft in an address here today before the American Bar association. In discussing the charges of violation of treaties by European nations, Mr. Taft said that this country should put itself in such a position that it could fulfill to the letter the obligations imposed by its treaties, and he recommended legislation to that end.

In his address, delivered as president of the American Bar association, Mr. Taft also said that the progressive party was departing from "the preposterous nostrum" of the recall of judicial decisions "because it apparently had become a burden to the party."

In speaking of the European war, Mr. Taft said that President Wilson should have the warmest approval and sincerest cooperation in his efforts to maintain the strict neutrality of this country.

"We are the principal nation," he continued, "and I might say almost the only nation, of the Christian world not so related to the struggle that both sides may really regard us as disinterested friends. It is our highest duty, and the president makes plain his appreciation of this, not to sacrifice and destroy this great leverage for successful mediation, when the opportunity arises, by ill-considered and premature judgments upon the merits. We must hold our tongues to be useful to mankind."

Concerning this country's obligations under its treaties, Mr. Taft said: "And now that we are discussing compliance with treaties and the effect of treaties of arbitration and of peace upon the chances of war, it is not a good time for us to clean our own house and to put ourselves in a position where we can fulfill to the letter every treaty we have entered into? We have made many treaties of friendship and peace—indeed, treaties with all the world—in which we have assured to allies, subjects or citizens of the other party to the treaty, resident within our borders, due process of law in protection of life, liberty and property. But we now withhold, however, from the same authority that makes the treaty the power to fulfill its obligations. A statute of a dozen lines would put it into the power of the president to institute judicial proceedings, civil and criminal, in courts of the United States to punish a violation of the treaty rights of aliens and enable him to use the civil and military executive arm of the government to protect against their threatened invasion. In our past experience we realize that mob violence committed through race prejudice against aliens will never be punished by state authority, and there is nothing that a high strung people—and it is peoples now who largely control the matter of war and peace—resents so much as the mistreatment of their fellow countrymen living under the flag of a foreign government that has stipulated and pledged its honor to give them protection."

The speaker denied that the granting to the president of such powers, as he outlined would be unconstitutional. Mr. Taft said there were indications that there had been a distinct falling off in support of the proposals for recall of judges and of judicial decisions. These proposals, he said, were incorporated in the platform of the progressive party, whose leader "felt called upon to declare that they were the rock upon which it was founded."

"It would appear," Mr. Taft continued, "that the party which fathered those proposals now finds that instead of being the rock upon which it is founded it is, to change the metaphor, the rock on which it founders. Certainly it seems wise to its leaders to ignore this part of their original propaganda, an indication that it has ceased to be vote-getting and indeed has become a burden to any party that assumes to press it."

Turning to the anti-trust legislation of the Wilson administration, Mr. Taft analyzed the trade commission act and the Clayton act.

"Insofar as the field of general interstate trade is within the practical range of supervision and regulation," he said, "the machinery adopted, it seems to me, is as effective as any could be." With one minor exception, he added, the field of illegal and criminal effort in respect to restraints of interstate commerce is not enlarged under the new acts, which he characterized as in many respects merely declaratory of existing law.

FRENCH ARE NOW FIRMLY ESTABLISHED IN ALSACE

People of Paris Cheered by Reports That Indicate Allies are Continuing Offensive Operations at Important Points—Action of Belgian Army and British Warship in Repulsing Attacks of the German Forces

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Increasing satisfaction was shown by the people of Paris today on reading the latest reports from the front. These indicate that the allies are continuing offensive operations at points which, in the opinion of French observers, promise the best results. The action of the Belgian army and of a squadron of British warships in repulsing an attack by the enemy is a subject of particularly favorable comment.

The public was equally, if not more gratified with the announcement of the situation in Alsace. This was the first time in several days that the war office has indicated definitely the French positions. It is now seen that French troops have almost reached the outlet of the valley leading to the plains of the river Ill, which flows north through Alsace and empties into the Rhine. The French now consider that they are firmly established in Alsace on territory doubly dear to them. Word has been received also that the Germans are hastily preparing new defensive works around Strassburg and digging innumerable trenches in front of this city.

Vineyards have been leveled by the German engineers in the carrying out of this work.

The fighting in the vicinity of Lille has been watched with deep interest here, and it is hoped that not many days will pass before the allies take this position.

After long continued meditations through the intermediary of the American legation at Bern, Switzerland, exchanges are about to be made among the belligerent countries of interned civilians.

district in Massachusetts, who, in utter disregard of the solemn appeal made by President Wilson, flaunts in the face of millions of German-American citizens the statement that the German cause is an unholy one and a menace to the principles of democracy.

"I urge Mr. McCall and other republican leaders in Massachusetts to repudiate in no uncertain manner Mr. Gardner's speech, which reflects discredit and dishonor upon his party and upon the state."

Mr. Walker touched on municipal finances, having been asked to because this city has the highest tax rate in its history and one of the highest in the state. He said, in part:

"Our cities and towns are running into debt because it is to the political advantage of every administration to keep down the local tax rate, which is immediately known and felt, at the expense of the debt, an increase in which is not immediately felt. The day of reckoning is now at hand for most of our municipalities. The only sound policy is to pay as you go."

"Municipal extravagance can only be held in check by a budget system in making estimates for appropriations. The responsibility should be placed directly upon the mayor, where it belongs, and he should not be allowed by the citizens to escape such responsibility."

"Old-fashioned economy, real efficiency and self-restraint in entering upon new enterprises, which are not absolutely necessary, furnish the only guarantee for a sound financial condition. Eternal vigilance and an aroused public opinion are the only effective checks upon extravagance."

"The legitimate financial demands upon a modern city are enormous and must be met, if the people are to live in health, safety and comfort. Most cities are pressed for necessary revenue. How is this to be obtained? My answer is—from the tax dodgers."

If there were no tax dodging, no discrimination, no evasion there would be revenue enough. Our tax laws must be enforced and every man must bear his full share of the burden. I believe that a tax on the income of intangible personal property, uniform throughout the state, enforced by compulsory returns from every taxpayer, would produce a large revenue and is the best way to get after the tax dodger."

Other speakers were Russell A. Wood, candidate for secretary of state; Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, candidate for congress; Arthur M. Huddell and James P. Magenis, candidate for lieutenant governor.

First Edition MRS. CARMAN'S MAID TO TELL OF CRIME

Short Time in Which Jury Was Selected Led Dist. Atty. Smith to Express Opinion That Trial Would be Short and Verdict Might be Expected This Week

MUNEOIA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—After physicians have established the cause of the death of Mrs. Louise E. Bailey, who was shot and killed in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman at Prospect on June 30 last, Cella Coleman, the negro maid in the Carman household, is expected to take the stand today to tell her story of the crime of which her former mistress, Mrs. Florence C. Carman, is accused. Questions put to the talesman yesterday by District Attorney Smith indicated that about the testimony of the maid he will build his case against Mrs. Carman.

The short time in which the jury was selected yesterday led District Attorney Smith to express the opinion that the trial would be short and that a verdict might be expected this week.

Before court opened today William D. Bailey, husband of the murdered woman, indicated that he would occupy a less conspicuous place in the trial room than he did yesterday, when he sat beside the district attorney and as a result brought references from Mrs. Carman's counsel to himself as seeking to influence the jurors. Whether Mrs. Carman will be a witness in her own defense has not been determined. Her appearance on the stand would depend, it was stated, upon the strength of the case. Her counsel considered the district attorney had woven around her

ASSAULTED BY ROBBER Woman in Tyngsboro Knocked Down—Change in Postmaster Predicted at No. Chelmsford

A woman named Mrs. Richardson was forcibly knocked down and assaulted last Wednesday night in Tyngsboro road, within a short distance of her home by an unknown man who afterwards made good his escape. Mrs. Richardson was on her way home when the man who had apparently been hiding behind a clump of bushes, jumped out and attacked her. Her cries for help put the culprit to flight and he got away. Robbery was his intent, but he did not secure anything. Constable Marinel received word shortly after the assault and hurried to the scene but could find no traces of the man. It is believed that he made his escape over the boundary line.

The soloist at the Congregational church Sunday evening was Miss Blanche Senfitt of Lowell who in a man district on its representatives and advocated their election.

The same speakers divided their time between East Bridgewater and Whitman. At East Bridgewater Dr. A. L. Shirley was the presiding officer and Representative Chandler received an ovation in his own town.

SLAUGHTER OF PHEASANT

Game Commissioners Refuse to Act on Protests — Pheasants Liberated Solely as Game Bird

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Chairman George W. Field of Sharon and George H. Graham of Springfield, members of the Massachusetts fish and game commission, refused yesterday to take action relative to the slaughter of pheasants throughout the state.

According to a special act of the legislature, these two men, together with W. C. Adams of Wintthrop, have absolute jurisdiction pertaining to the shooting of the pheasant, and it is in their power to shorten the season or stop altogether the shooting of these birds, which, according to scores of sportsmen, will be wiped out if the present shooting privilege is allowed to continue.

"Had no Complaints"
Commissioner Graham maintains that the pheasant was originally introduced into the state to be killed by hunters, and that, inasmuch as the hunter pays good money into the state treasury, he should be allowed to kill them.

And while scores of men high in professional life and in the world of sport cry that it is an outrage and a wholesale slaughter, the three commissioners say, "We have had no complaints therefore why should we stop the hunter from killing them?"

Cleaned Out in 1907
The present season on pheasants was opened by the fish and game commission on Oct. 12, for the first time since 1907, when the males were so badly cleaned out that it became necessary to put the ban on them again during the very next season.

This ban has been on ever since and prominent sportsmen say that it is a pity to clean the birds out again just when they are getting a real foothold in the state.

Some insist that the season should be closed for at least two or three years more, while others say that a week is plenty enough time in which to shoot them. The present season does not end until Nov. 12.

The storm of protest against the slaughter of the birds this season, which began with the killing out of 30,000 on Columbus day, gained tremendous momentum yesterday and resulted in definite steps being taken by sportsmen in the eastern section of the commonwealth to put an end to the needless slaughter of the semi-domesticated birds.

Dr. Cabot's Plan
Dr. Hugh Cabot of the Back Bay has come forward with the plan of vesting in the governor full power to shut off a disastrous open season whenever it has been found that needless destruction is resulting to any species of animal or bird life, and he has back of him such well-known sportsmen as Colonel of the Part Edmund Billings and Joshua Crane.

Dr. Cabot's idea was expressed yesterday afternoon.
"I have read of the great numbers of pheasants killed, it seems to me needlessly, by hunters of Massachusetts during the first few days of the open season, and I think the slaughter should be shut off right away."
The pheasant is an easy bird to get, especially to a man who has had experience shooting partridge and quail. My plan would be to vest more power in the governor of the commonwealth, so that he might shorten the season declared by the

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

A QUIANT LUNCHEON

"I am going to give a 'going away' luncheon to my niece before she starts for school and I want you to help me," pleaded Marjorie.
"Of course I will," answered her aunt. "Why don't you make it an 'after luncheon'?"
"I will if you'll tell me how," delightedly replied Marjorie.
"An 'after luncheon' given by your aunt last year was so pretty that I am sure a description will help you," said Marjorie.

"An 'after' means a 'star,' the centerpiece was a star-shaped form made of tin; it was filled with delicate pink and lavender radiated cardboard and the names were written in white ink.

"There was a corsage bouquet at each plate with a long violet headed pin. Pinkish lavender is a charming daytime color, but it does not light up well, so as the day was not so bright a large percentage of the shooting population to the pursuit of these birds and away from the quail, ruffed grouse and woodcock, over the production of which latter birds man has today very little control.

Requires Report
"The last session of the legislature authorized the commissioners to open the season on pheasants in such counties as it appeared to them advisable, and subject to such bag limits and other regulations as they deemed necessary. The commissioners opened the season in seven counties, namely, Barnstable, Norfolk, Essex, Middlesex, Worcester, Hampden and Berkshire. They provided a bag limit of two birds a day, or six in a season, and further required that a report be sent to the state house of the date upon which birds were killed, the number and the sex, and the town in which they were killed.

"The first consideration, as pointed out above, is that these birds were placed in the covers at a substantial expense, but through revenues very largely if not entirely supplied by the sportsmen themselves. There is plenty of opportunity for that portion of the public which desires to increase the supply of insectivorous birds to carry on an active campaign to bring back some of these useful species, and the sportsmen, as a class, feel that the pheasant is essentially a game bird.

The talk of being 'game as chickens' is all very true in certain instances, but the same thing is equally true of any other varieties of game birds during the breeding season. It is entirely possible to get whole coveys of quail on the ground, and in some sections of the country partridges when budding on the trees in the winter, but if a pheasant is hunted as a game bird, over a dog, his qualities as a game bird are many."

Real light was used, not even candles. "There was no attempt made to carry out the color scheme in the food except candied violets were sprinkled over the top of the pineapple ice, which was served in tall glasses with pink lace paper doilies underneath; the plates were decorated in violets and the effect was lovely.
"For diversion the hostess provided easy chairs, hammocks and cushions, a box of delicious candy, a bowl of iced tea made strong with lemon and pineapple juice and then she proceeded to read about a most fascinating story."

"It was time to depart all too soon, and one of the guests facetiously remarked that 'she was so glad the hostess 'after,' and everyone was kind enough to forgive the horrible pun, as it voiced the sentiments of all present."

The Pictures Are Before You CHOOSE!

"NAP-A-MINIT"

USED BY DR. GAGNON IN HIS SUPERIOR PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old, harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation; a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTISE IT. This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots extracted, nervous paroxysms, rootlets prepared, and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to CHOOSE! If you have dental work to be done, will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at all? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value giving dental offices in New England.

Dissolution Suit is on Docket for Final Argument Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—After testimony has been taken in different sections of the country during the greater part of the last three years the government's suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation on the ground that its creation was a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law was on the docket of the United States district court here today for final argument. The suit was filed in the United States court for the district of New Jersey on Oct. 28, 1911, and was transferred to Philadelphia for argument before judges of the third judicial court.

The Carnegie Steel Co. of New Jersey, National Steel Co., American Steel Hoop Co., American Sheet & Tin Plate Co., American Tin Co., American Sheet Steel Co., Federal Steel Co., American Steel & Wire Co., National Tube Co., Shelby Steel Tube Co. and the American Bridge Co.

The court is also asked to make independent the Duluth & Iron Range R. R. Co., the Duluth, Sillsab & Northern R. R. EL PASO MAN HERE PRAISES GEN. VILLA

I. B. Walker, an electrical engineer from El Paso, Texas, was a visitor at city hall today and he talked very interestingly of the Mexican situation as viewed at close quarters. Mr. Walker came to New York to attend the national electrical exposition there and to Boston to take a peek at the Edison exhibition. He is accompanied by his wife and they are the guests, while here, of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo J. Page, 410 Westford street.

News of more or less importance has been coming from Mexico and in view of the situation there it is interesting to get the views of one who knows Carranza, Zapata and the rest of the Mexicans prominent in the present struggle.

Mr. Walker is a Villa admirer. "Villa," said Mr. Walker, "is a very wonderful man. He is tactful, resourceful, fearless and brave. He never says to his men 'go'. His words are 'follow me'. He is always at the front and in the thickest of the fray. Horse after horse has been shot from under him and a bullet has never yet touched him. A reporter who rode with him on the top of a box car after a big battle said to him: 'You have never been touched by a bullet and yet your horses have been shot from under you. How do you account for it?'

MAN ALMOST STARVED

Had Walked From Beverly in Search of Work—Lost Way and Had Eaten Little for Many Days

Suffering greatly from lack of food and exposure, a middle-aged man who gave his name and address as George Queenan of Beverly, wandered into the Middlesex street depot this forenoon and brought to the attention of the occupants one of the most pitiful cases of privation that they have known for several years. Several citizens who were standing outside of the station at the time took up a collection and succeeded in securing enough money to buy the man hot dinner and give him his carefree home.

Although very weak and unable to talk in a loud voice, the unfortunate man murmured that he had been wandering since early yesterday morning and had eaten very little food during that time. His clothes were wet and very heavy as a result of being out in last night's rain and he was on his way to the police station when friends came to his aid at the depot.

Queenan stated that he is a shoe worker by trade but recently has been doing some painting for a Beverly contractor. For several weeks the painting business has been slack, he said, and during that time he has made hardly enough money to support his wife and children, who reside in where. He knew Scott and Gen. Leonard Pershing, and by association with such men he carried ideas that have profited him and he will continue to profit by them. He is wide awake all the time and has a reputation for honorable dealing, at least with his followers.

"I left El Paso about three weeks ago and conditions were very hopeful there at that time. Everybody on the border pins his faith to Villa. He is really looked upon as the Moses of Mexico. Fort Bliss is in El Paso and there has been great activity there."

I have met Villa on several occasions. He is a very keen man and quite capable of dealing with the average American abjectness, so called. He is a stickler for detail and while he speaks very little English, he never lets go of a question or proposition until he has penetrated to the very bottom of it. He is much more advanced than Carranza and a bigger man every way. Up to four years ago he was looked upon as a bandit, but that was because the people, as a whole, did not know the man. He was a follower of Madero and when the latter was killed Villa was filled with an intense desire to annihilate the old regime.

Villa has mobilized, equipped, fed and drilled his army and he has a powerful army behind him. Unlike Carranza he does not want to have anything to do with the government of Mexico. He does not believe that a military man should have anything to do with the government and would not take office if it were offered him on a silver platter. He is determined, too, that Carranza shall not take office. The running of the government, he says, belongs to the civilians. I have lived in El Paso for ten years and from what I know of Villa, I should say that he is by far the biggest man in Mexico, from the military standpoint. Taking all in all, I would say that conditions there are rapidly assuming a more peaceful aspect.

Parties to whom Mr. Walker spoke wondered that any man should talk in such superlative terms of Villa in view of all the charges generally made against him in this country.

SEEKING AN INCREASE IN THE FREIGHT RATES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Public hearings on the new application of the eastern railroads for increased freight rates which they contend are necessary because of the world-wide financial exigency due in part to the European war, were begun here today before the interstate commerce commission. The commission is hearing arguments only upon issues which have arisen since its decision in July which denied absolutely increases east of Pittsburgh and Buffalo and granted increases west from those points to the Mississippi river.

Pres. Daniel E. Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., chairman of committee of railroad presidents, made the opening statement before the interstate commerce commission today for the eastern railroads in their application for increased freight rates, based upon the world-wide financial exigency due in great measure to the European war. "The needs of the carriers are pressing and immediate," he declared. "The actual situation has become extremely critical. The roads are seeking a 5 per cent increase of freight rates throughout the territory east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers."

Mr. Willard called attention to the decision of the commission in the former case, wherein it was stated that the net operating income of the railroads in official classification territory was smaller than it had been in the interest of both the general public and the railroad and to the fact that the railroads had already taken action to secure additional revenues through various advances and changes of practice.

"The measures of relief proposed by the commission will not in our opinion adequately meet the existing situation," he added.

"The annual statements of all the railroads involved in this proceeding combined, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, show roundly that the total operating revenues during the year were approximately $52,000,000 less than during the previous year while the operating expenses during the same period were approximately $18,000,000 greater."

"The net operating income of these companies for the same period amounted to $25,000,000 or approximately $7,700,000 less than was earned during the previous year and equal to 3.38 per cent upon the property invested, a lower return than was shown at any time in 15 years."

"A war such as that now raging causes great and immediate disturbances to industry, commerce and finance. It causes contraction of credit and great restriction if not the actual stopping of international trade as well as a serious disturbance to domestic commerce, and as we have seen, it has thrown the security markets of the world first into panic and then into suspension of operations."

"Insofar as the war and its consequences tend to change the conditions surrounding the enlistment of new capital they tend to change the fundamental relations between railroad and shipper, for the cost of capital is one of the most important elements of the cost of transportation."

"It is known that the railroads of the United States have over $20,000,000 of outstanding obligations which will mature and must be met within the next twelve months alone. It was shown in the original record in this case that the railroads in official classification territory only had spent approximately $200,000,000 per annum on their properties for improvements and extensions during the last ten year period, and it will be necessary to continue such expenditures if the roads are to maintain their standard of service and provide for the growing needs of the future.

"Further, as nearly as can be ascertained there are more than $2,000,000,000 par value of American railroad securities held abroad as investments. The demands for cash in Europe, growing out of the present situation will result in large selling of such securities when the market for stock exchanges are again opened and the possible effect of such selling upon railroad credit and related subjects is causing much concern."

"All this in mind it will readily be seen that the available supply of and probable demand for new capital as well as the interest rates thereon are matters of great importance, not only to the railroads but also to those who depend on them for transportation."

RECRUITING IN IRELAND

NO GREAT RESPONSE TO THE APPEAL OF ASQUITH AND REDMOND

The following letter shows the condition of recruiting in Ireland two weeks ago since which time the number of recruits in the south has been somewhat increased.

CORK, Oct. 2.—Enlistment in the south of Ireland has been slow. For this there are many reasons. Until King George signed the home rule bill practically all kinds of home rulers in Ireland, hating those among the residents, men and women, who were before encouraging recruiting.

Home rulers are divided in several factions. By far the largest numerically and the most influential is Redmond's following. Respectable in numbers still but waning both in numbers and influence. The "Sin Féin" group (Gaelicists alone) are more or less allied with them are the O'Brienites of Cork and the Healy men in several parts of Ireland who try to stir up trouble for Redmond. Protestants are to some extent connected in small numbers with these factions. Outside of all these there are a few unattached Protestants, small in numbers, but respectable in wealth, business or social standing.

After the king signed the home rule bill it was supposed that nationalists would enlist in large numbers. Outside of all these there are a few unattached Protestants, small in numbers, but respectable in wealth, business or social standing.

Figures tell the story best. In Ulster the answer to the call has been strong since Aug. 4, the first day of the war. An Ulster division is already nearly completed. It is largely in three camps in Ulster and has nearly 11,000 men, uniformed, armed and nearly equipped. Major General Powell has been assigned to command it. All of these men are from the old Ulster volunteer force. In addition to this Ulster has contributed to the army directly. In the first three days of the war it sent 70 officers of the Ulster volunteer force who were reservists and in the first week several hundred more. Still further, the 4000 Ulster men have enlisted independently. Of these about a third are home rulers. The grand total of men enlisted from Ulster is well over 15,000. This is several thousand more than all the rest of Ireland has sent.

Figures are inexact as to the work in the remainder of Ireland, but the men enlisting in the entire Dublin district are supposed to be about 6000 or 6000, and those in the rest of the island outside of Ulster are said to be about 3500 or 4000, possibly 5000. Number of these are against home rule.

POSTOFFICE CHANGES

MONEY ORDER OFFICE TO OPEN AN HOUR EARLIER—PARCEL POST WINDOW

Postmaster Robert J. Crowley of the local postoffice who has accomplished much towards increasing the facilities for the handling of mail since his appointment, has inaugurated changes in the regular schedule which are bound to prove of benefit to the people of Lowell. These changes will go into effect at once.

The money order window which formerly opened for business at 9 a. m. will now open at 8 a. m. making an hour's difference in the opening time. This change Postmaster Crowley believes will be received with acclaim, especially by the business men who will be much pleased to get their money orders early in the morning. The window will close, as before, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

To relieve the pressure on the stamp window, caused by the handling of packages of all sizes and description to be delivered by parcel post, a window has been opened, and will be known as the "Parcel Post Window." This window will be open Monday evenings from 7 to 9, and Saturdays from 2 to 5 in the afternoon and from 6 to 8 in the evening.

The carrier window will hereafter be open from 7 to 10 in the morning, and from 4 to 5 in the afternoon. This window was formerly open nights, and will be dispensed with, as only unimportant mail is handled there, yet requiring the services of four clerks.

BURY THE HATCHET

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN PRESIDENT WILSON, COL. WATTERSON AND GEO. HARVEY END

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—A luncheon given in his honor today by former President Taft, was the final incident in the visit to Washington of Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal. Mr. Watterson, who following his call on President Wilson last night, decided to remain over when he received Mr. Taft's invitation. Col. Watterson's presence at the White House brought to an end the differences existing between Mr. Wilson and George Harvey, former editor of Harper's Weekly, and Mr. Watterson. It was with the president more than an hour during which the latter's Mexican and foreign policies were discussed.

PAVING BLOCKS

Macadam Not Suited for Westford St., Says Mr. Morse

If you were to tell Alderman Charles J. Morse that macadam properly treated with oil would better answer the purpose in Westford street than block paving, Charlie would probably say "piffles." He has heard that argument advanced but he says there's nothing to it. He has tried macadam on Westford street and he says it doesn't fit. The street is narrow, has two car tracks and there is considerable heavy traffic there. It doesn't take long, he says, for the wheels to bore into the macadam.

The Highlanders people question the suitability of block paving for residential districts. They complain that it is too noisy a surface for residential purposes, also heavy cars going back and forth during the day cause a rumbling sound that isn't pleasant. Mr. Morse, however, maintains that the block paving is the proper thing and he allows that the Highlanders will soon get accustomed to the noises of which they now complain.

Not that he wants to pattern after Paul Hannigan, the commissioner of streets of Lawrence, but Mr. Morse calls attention to the fact that Mr. Hannigan is laying eight-inch paving blocks in side streets in Lawrence. Mr. Morse doesn't believe in that, but the fact remains that Paul Hannigan has the reputation of being the best street and highway man in New England.

Water at Fort Hill
John W. Kernan, superintendent of parks, stated this morning that he had laid 1200 feet of water pipe at Fort Hill park for the purpose of saving the expense of hose next year. The pipe has been laid from the well house to a point opposite the Moody school and Mr. Kernan says that in the spring he will extend the water pipe to the nursery. He allows that this will make a big saving on hose.

Milk Inspector Busy
Milk Inspector Master and his assistant, Mr. Connelly, are hard at it. They are keeping milkmen and others on the fidgets every minute. Tomorrow they will hale four lunch cart proprietors into police court; Wednesday four more, and on Thursday 11 restaurant proprietors, all of whom will have to answer to the charge of selling milk below standard.

DECORATION OF GREEK VETERANS

A number of local Greeks attended the ceremony that was held in the Greek Orthodox church in Boston yesterday in connection with the decoration of veterans in the Turkish-Ethiopian war, who were each presented a bronze medal and an autographed picture of the king of Greece.

Peter Tavoularis, president of the local Greek community went to Boston today to make arrangements to hold a similar ceremony in this city. In conversation with a Sun reporter this morning Mr. Tavoularis said there are several hundred veterans in this city, who will also be recognized by their king, and he said he believed the local ceremony will be held in a couple of weeks.

THE HAITIEN REVOLUTION

OCCUPATION OF CAPE HAITIEN BY VICTORIOUS REBELS—AMERICAN MARINES LANDED

CAPE HAITIEN, Oct. 19.—The latest development in the Haitian revolution is the occupation of Cape Haitien by the victorious rebels. They entered the town today.

American marines from the warships in the harbor have been landed and are in control of the situation. The rebels entered in an orderly manner and there have been no excesses.

The ministry of President Zamor, realizing that it is not in a position to control the situation left Cape Haitien today on the dispatch boat Pacifique.

The entry into Cape Haitien follows the recent rebel victory on the north coast near Limonade, after which the president retreated in the direction of Grande Riviere and other government forces withdrew toward Cape Haitien.

Moving Pictures

At this time of the year our store is like a moving picture show. Goods are constantly arriving to take the place of those sold. What you haven't got today, you have tomorrow. Our whole crew is kept so busy that for several days, sometimes, we cannot take time to open and set up new goods, although we have a store full. A few days ago our stock of Brass Beds was rather low. Saturday 17 new patterns were added to our show and they never were so cheap. We are selling a Brass Bed for $17.50 that equals any brass bed sold formerly for $25, and some as low as $8.05. What we haven't today, we have tomorrow. The show is constantly changing. So call again.

Report Ward Bros. of Brookfeds to Secure N. Y. Americans

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Local baseball clubs were started today by a report that the Ward brothers, backers of the Brooklyn Federal league club, were negotiating for the purchase of the New York American league club. The report carried a rider to the effect that this move was the first of a series which would eventually restore peace in the ranks of organized and independent baseball.

Frank J. Farrell, president of the local American league club, denied there was a particle of truth in the story. He said that he had never discussed the sale of the Yankees with any federal league owners or representatives and that the club was not for sale.

"The report," Mr. Farrell said, "is without a grain of truth. My club is not on the market at any price."

Robert H. Ward, president of the Brooklyn Federal club, said he had been approached by a man in no way connected with baseball, who said, that the New York Americans were on the market and who asked him to purchase the club. Mr. Ward said that in reply he answered that he could consider the proposition if the price was right and the other Federal league club owners protected and recognized by the majors. This was as far as negotiations had gone.

"I notice that a cry of protest has been raised all over the state by sportsmen and men in all walks of life to save the pheasant from wholesale slaughter. It is feared that the bird introduced here to combat insect life will be completely killed off. If all hunters would live up to the law there would be little danger of the pheasant being completely annihilated, but the trouble is the average hunter is too greedy. The wardens hereabout are pretty watchful and the chances are that some of the fellows who are shooting everything in sight will find themselves in a tight box if they don't watch out."

Month Open Season

For years the pheasants have been protected by the state, but this year the clamor of the hunters to be allowed to shoot them has resulted in permission being granted by the fish and game commission from Oct. 12 to Nov. 12, inclusive, and the first day of shooting saw 2000 of the birds killed.

There are about 700 licensed hunters in Lowell today and about 65,000 in the state and half again that number are allowed to shoot on their own property. This brings the total number of hunters up to approximately 100,000. Each hunter, as has already been stated, is allowed by law to kill six pheasants, and if each hunter kills six pheasants, 600,000 of the birds will be slaughtered, but if the hunters are killing every pheasant that shows its head it certainly would look as if this beautiful and useful bird was doomed.

So domesticated has the pheasant become that people living on the outskirts of Lowell, in Billerica, Chelmsford, Dracut and other suburban places, think it a most ordinary sight to see flocks of pheasants in their back yards. They are as easy to approach as a hen and since the shooting season opened many have been killed by boys within the city limits.

Captain George W. Field of the Massachusetts fish and game commission says that the commission this year took off the ban on pheasants as an experiment, and that it is possible that it may be put back on again next year.

REV. EDMUND T. SCHOFIELD OBSERVES 13TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS PASTORATE

Rev. Edmund T. Schofield of St. John's church, No. Chelmsford, Sunday celebrated his 13th anniversary as pastor of the parish. There was no formal celebration of any kind but Mr. Schofield received the best wishes of many of his parishioners for many more years of health and happiness in his good work. Mr. Schofield has been pastor since his coming to North Chelmsford, 13 years ago and during his stay has witnessed the loss, through death, of many of the oldest members of the parish. A younger generation has grown up during his incumbency and to these young people he now looks for the future success of the parish.

At the second mass in the morning, Edward P. Shea, William Gookin and John Dalton, composing a trio, sang at the offertory and after Holy Communion. Their singing was very effective and was highly appreciated by the members of the congregation.

On the 17th of December the venerable priest will celebrate his 31st anniversary as a priest and that day will be one of rejoicing among the people of the parish.

Extermination of Birds is, Feared—Slaughter Not Sport

Members of the Lowell Fish and Game association are protesting against the wholesale slaughter of pheasants as reported within the last few days. "I have no personal knowledge of it," said William McCarthy, secretary of the Lowell association, "but I have heard that gunners are not living up to the law and the greed that they are reported to exhibit is the very thing that kills the sport. One of the aims of the Lowell Fish and Game association is to impress upon hunters and others the necessity of living up to the law in order to preserve the sport. The law on pheasants plainly states that one hunter can take but two in one day and not more than six in a season, yet we hear of one hunter taking 12 or 11 and another nine or 10."

"I notice that a cry of protest has been raised all over the state by sportsmen and men in all walks of life to save the pheasant from wholesale slaughter. It is feared that the bird introduced here to combat insect life will be completely killed off. Will Die of Starvation Unless Succored by the United States

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—More than 100,000 men, women and children will die of starvation in Albania before Christmas unless succored by the United States, declares the Rev. William Howard of New York, a missionary, before the weekly meeting of Baptist ministers here today.

The present war is not to blame, he explained. The plight of the Albanians is due to the devastation of the Greek and Serbian armies, which, he said, destroyed 300 villages and killed 200,000 men, women and children. Shiploads of provisions must be sent in haste to prevent famine, the speaker urged.

THE BOARD OF TRADE

MEETING OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE HELD YESTERDAY—BUSINESS DISCUSSED

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Lowell board of trade yesterday a communication was read from the Middlesex Women's club asking that the board of trade cooperate with the club in promoting an educational campaign for the suppression of tuberculosis.

The committee decided to refer the matter to the board of trade committee on public health with instructions to assist the Middlesex Women's club in every possible way in what seemed to be a matter of public interest and importance.

There was discussion of the coming general meeting of the board of trade which will be held at Middlesex and Colonial halls on Thursday evening, November 5, at 6:30 o'clock. A light buffet lunch will be served and the evening will be devoted to some speaking and possibly to other forms of entertainment. It is hoped to secure a speaker of national or international reputation to talk on the European war and its effect on the United States. A line is already out to secure the presence of one of the foremost authorities on the subject and announcement of the name will be made as soon as an acceptance is received.

At the meeting of the municipal affairs committee to be held Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, Representative Dennis A. Murphy will appear before the committee and explain the provisions of the public market bill and tell why he believes that it will be a benefit to Lowell. Representative Murphy introduced the bill relative to a public market in this city. Other business will be taken up at that time.

PRESIDENT WILSON TO UNDERWOOD

Could the letter of President Wilson to Chairman Underwood, relating to the work of the present session of congress, be read by every intelligent voter in the United States, and judged in a non-partisan spirit, it would prove the most convincing campaign document of the moment. Meant to be read by the general public and also meant to take the place, in part, of the personal speeches which the president had intended to give in many districts before critical international matters caused him to alter his plans, it is a masterly review of a fruitful and beneficial congressional session and incidentally a most convincing argument for the continuation of the democratic party in the control of government.

Without beating about the bush or making any apologies for his statement, the president, in the first paragraph, declares his firm conviction that "the people of the country have been served by the members of this congress as they have seldom, if ever, been served before." The one main intention of this service he declares to have been "to destroy private control and set business free." To demonstrate how it has been done, he declares: "That purpose was manifest enough in the case of the tariff and in the legislation affecting trusts; but, though perhaps less evident upon the surface there, it lay at the very heart of the currency bill, too." He adds that the freedom of business "has been the object of the foreign policy of the government during the last 18 months."

Then follows a discussion of the tariff which the chief executive calls the safest hiding place and covert of private control. He regrets that the war in Europe started before the new law could vindicate itself, and he also expresses regret that the falling off in revenue makes a war tax necessary, but he emphasizes a point seldom mentioned by economists or politicians of any party, viz: that "The import duties collected under the old tariff constituted a much larger proportion of the whole revenue of the government than do the duties under the new. A still larger proportion of the revenue would have been cut off by the war had the old taxes stood, and a larger war tax would have been necessary as a consequence."

With splendid condensation and characteristic clearness of expression, he deals with the subject of monopoly, declaring that the total rejection of monopoly is the point on which the democratic party differs from all other parties most sharply. "We have seen," he said, "the nature and the power of monopoly exhibited. We know that it is more apt to control government than to be controlled by it; for we have seen it control government, dictate legislation, and dominate executives and courts." To this there is no answer that does not agree with his subjoined declaration: "We will not consent that an ungovernable giant should be reared to full stature in the very household of the government itself."

The letter does not conclude with the necessarily limited review mentioned. It contains a summary of the program of constructive legislation remaining unfinished. The president calls attention particularly to the necessity for building up the merchant marine and "the completion of a great program for the conservation of our natural resources and the development of the water power of the country." He also says truly that "without a congress in close sympathy with the administration a whole scheme of peace and honor and disinterested service to the world, of which they have approved, cannot be brought to its full realization."

Having gone over the record of achievement and forecasted the future, the president had good reason to say in conclusion:

The democratic party is now in fact the only instrument ready to the country's hand by which anything can be accomplished. It is united, as the republican party is not; it is strong and full of the zest of sober achievement, and has been rendered confident by carrying out a great constructive program such as no other party has attempted; it is absolutely free from the scandalous alliances which made the republican party, even before its rupture, utterly unserviceable as an instrument of reform; its thought, its ambition, its plans are of the vital present and the hopeful future. A practical nation is not likely to reject such a team, full of the spirit of public service, and substitute, in the midst of great tasks, either a party upon which a deep demoralization has fallen or a party which has not grown to the stature that would warrant its assuming the responsible burdens of state. Every thoughtful man sees that a change of parties made just now would set the clock back, not forward. I have a very complete and very confident belief in the practical sagacity of the American people.

IRELAND AND THE WAR

The fate of Ireland is linked with that of England in the present war and were it not for the protection afforded by the British navy, the Emerald Isle might suffer as much from German aggression as did poor little Belgium.

For the past ten, or we might say fifteen, years England has done more for Ireland than for her own people and as a result Ireland today is under a more beneficent rule than any other country in the world. The people enjoy a degree of prosperity never enjoyed since the days of Glavin's parliament. All that is now needed is a measure of local self government to increase that prosperity and provide industrial opportunities for a much larger population so that the stream of immigration may be stopped and the people remain contented and happy in their own land.

If the Irish people want to safeguard home rule they should follow the advice of their distinguished leader, Mr. Redmond, who foresees the disaster that might come from any attitude of indifference or of antagonism to England in her death struggle with Germany.

For many years past the Irish leader and his party pleaded for home rule on the ground that it would go far to overcome the enmity of the Irish race towards England on account of her mistreatment of Ireland in the past. The time has come to test the sincerity of these professions of good feeling as a result of granting home rule. If the people follow Mr. Redmond's wise counsel they may not only save home rule but avert subjugation by Germany.

If Germany should win in this war all the reforms won by Ireland during the last twenty years would be tumbled down like a house of cards and rule and most of the other liberties they have won, through the old curse of disunion. The question is, "Why should not Ireland help to fight her own battles and thus not only save her promised freedom but help avert the threatened subjugation by Germany and all this would mean in a time of militarism under which the Irish Nationalists would have to fight the battles of Germany whether they liked it or not. In such a national crisis every country, and especially Ireland, should look to its accredited leaders whose patriotism, honesty and sense of duty have been well tried, rather than follow the followers of faction and strife whose counsels would lead to national disaster."

BRIGHT SPOTS

It is refreshing to find that from entirely unexpected quarters appeals are being issued to the American people to forget the dark side of the business situation due to the European war and to cultivate a cheerful attitude. "Fibre and Fabric," the well known weekly review of the American trade, is one of the latest to sound the clarion call of optimism, advising its readers to "consider the bright spots in the situation." Instead of "wondering about lame ducks," then in the best manner of a business journal it proceeds to enumerate some bright spots that presage sunshine when the clouds are blown away.

One of the bright spots mentioned is the greater use of fabrics in the manufacture of shoes than ever before. Most of the expensive skins used in the manufacture of high grade shoes have come from abroad, particularly from Russia and Germany, and since the supply is cut off almost entirely, the American textile manufacturer has been called upon to supply a substitute. Even before the war there was a tendency to use American textile products in the manufacture of shoes, but now the war has made it imperative. Lowell, in common with other textile centers, will reap the benefit.

The textile journal also predicts a larger export trade, not only with South America but with Europe at the cessation of hostilities. "There is every reason," it says, "for expecting a greater volume of business. It may not come next week, nor all at once, but it is inevitable, and this is the time to prepare for it." If the other industrial trade papers of the country could put aside their lobbying activities and their desire to influence party politics, and preach instead the good old patriotic doctrine of optimism, not only would it encourage the public to look for bright spots but it would bring bright spots to gloomy corners. When there is such good reason for confidence, it is a shame that any interest should deliberately strive to spread feelings of diffidence or pessimism.

THE OPEN SEASON

In lifting the ban which he had imposed on hunting until the rain made it less dangerous, Governor Walsh expressed the hope that the sport will not be indulged in to such an extent as to endanger the existence of any species of game. That his hint was timely is well proved by the returns made since the permit to hunt was given. During the first day, 3000 pheasants are reported shot, probably an under statement. Considering the fact that there are 55,000 hunters in Massachusetts and that others up to the number of 100,000 are permitted to shoot on their own property, there is grave danger that the pheasant will be almost entirely exterminated—each hunter being permitted by law to shoot six.

Among the many who regret this state of things are hundreds who regard it in an economic rather than in a sentimental sense. Pheasants have been propagated and protected for years at great expense and their wholesale slaughter would endanger their existence entirely and make it necessary for the state to introduce them again. Whether a week or two of cruel sport for the few is worth this is very questionable. Indeed, the testimony of the hunters is, that the pheasants are so common that there is no difficulty in killing them. The extermination of such a beautiful and useful species would be a reproach to the citizens of Massachusetts and it would not do much to establish the reputation of our public for common sense. Something should be done before it is too late to prevent the "sport" of the few from destroying what is of benefit to the people as a whole.

NORTHERN BATTLE LINE

Since the taking of Ostend, battle line-busters have talked quite freely about the designs of Germany on England, basing their arguments on the apparent desire of the Germans for positions on the channel, as near the English coast as possible. Many take this as an indication of an invasion of England, a possibility that is feared by many residents of England. It does not follow, however, that Germany will attempt any invasion on a large scale at the present time. To do so would be to invite annihilation by the English navy which up to the present has

All manner of tales are rife about long-distance sledge guns and Zeppelins to be used in the attacks on England, but they are without sure foundation. Germany seems to be facing a long struggle and is making preparations to entrench her forces strongly in Belgium. Nevertheless the proximity of the Germans must keep England in an anxious state of mind, until some definite plan of warfare is revealed along the northern end of the battle line.

If Germany runs out of bomb droppers, she will have little difficulty in finding experienced men in New York. Fresh on the attempts on two churches comes the news of the third attack on the life of an Italian consul. Unfortunately these New York bomb stories have to do more with attempts at destruction than with the arrest of the guilty.

VOTERS WILL DECIDE

Citizens who are annoyed at the rumors and counter rumors involving a commissioner at city hall, and who are asking the mayor to take some definite action to bring them to a head, should have patience a little longer.

The city primaries are only a few weeks away, and the voters have it in their power to take very conclusive action in the matter if they so desire. —Courier-Citizen.

FREE SPEECH

So far these United States have done very little to help the European war. The rank and file of the people have their opinions and they express them.

There is a slight tinge of rashness either in the press or among the people. As a nation we have evoked cool-headedness that is somewhat remarkable in view of the fact that the greatest war struggle within the realm of recorded history now takes place. —Worcester Gazette.

HOW TO STOP STOMACH TORMENT

Sound Advice From a Well-Known Physician

Men and women who suffer from what they call "stomach trouble," usually seek relief in the form of some "stomach pills," or other artificial aid. This, experience teaches me, is a serious error. In nine cases out of ten, the distress is caused by the development of acids in the stomach, formed by the fermentation of the food. Instead of a digestant being required, something should be taken to dissolve or neutralize this acidity, when normal digestion will follow as a matter of course. This acid matter is distinctly poisonous and unless it is dissolved, digestion merely carries the mass of fermentation food from the stomach to the intestines, where its poison is absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body.

If all the great army of people who suffer after nearly every meal would make it a point to take a teaspoonful of "Bismarck Magnesia" in a quarter glass of water after each meal, there would be no formation of acidity and consequently no distress or discomfort. Sour, acid, gassy stomach, heartburn, belching, flatulence, etc., would then be a thing of the past. "Bismarck Magnesia" is a physician's prescription. It is inexpensive and can be obtained at any drug store. It is prepared for just such trouble and the best proof of its efficiency is that it will stop the sharpest, biting stomach distress in a minute. From now on, let it cover the stomach, simply by dissolving the acids that have been formed there. Its action is absolutely harmless.

else of the war we shall doubtless find that not only the world's bravest but many of the world's best men have been called. The death of Vanni Marcoux, the Boston Opera singer is a case in point. Other and even more distinguished geniuses in the realms of music, art and science are in the ranks and may be lost to the world at any time. —Newburyport Herald.

THE MUNSTERBERG MATTER

Harvard seems likely to end the Munsterberg incident by requesting the professor to withdraw his resignation and ignoring the threat of Captain Clarence Wheeler of London to withdraw a tentative legacy of $100,000. Harvard can better afford to lose $100,000 than to consent to the throwing out of one of its most popular and most successful professors under such circumstances. —Newport News.

THE WELCOME RAIN

After 47 days of drought, rain has come to the relief of the thirsty land. It has been a long time without the moisture of the gentle rain. The forests have suffered from the drying process which has turned the fallen leaves to tinder, ready to take up a carelessly dropped spark and destroy the beauty which has required constant care to produce. Had time not entered the forest, the forest would not now be blackened patches of burned tree trunks, offensive to the eye, and sore reminders of heavy losses in the forests of the country. To the forest fire fighters the rain came as a powerful reinforcement, welcome and timely. The farmer rejoices, and there is water on his crops, even though it be too late to be of much service. —Lynn Item.

LAWRENCE, Oct. 20.—Thomas H. Kelley, one of the oldest and most prominent business men of this city, who died Friday, was buried from his home, 42 Cross street, yesterday afternoon. For 20 years he was engaged in the wholesale and retail newspaper and stationery business.

Mr. Kelley was a Civil war veteran and was well known in the business field in this city. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted in the 10th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. He fought in many skirmishes and battles while in the service.

He was honorably discharged from service May 30, 1865, at Newbern, N. C. His discharge reads that he was on duty at all times and comments on the gallant and efficient manner in which he had served his country.

He was born at Millbury. He married Elizabeth M. Jordan at Haverhill Jan. 21, 1855. Mr. Kelley came to Lawrence directly after the close of the war. For a number of years he was an overseer at the old Sutton mills at North Andover. Later he was employed at the Atlantic mills in this city, remaining with the latter concern for many years. He was at one time in the grocery business. He was a member of Needham Post No. 28, G. A. R. He is survived by a widow and two sons, E. Frank and Charles E., and two grandsons, Charles E. and G. BOSTON POLICE HAVE NO KNOWLEDGE OF REPORT THAT LION TRAINER KILLED MAN

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Police officials today said they had no knowledge of an alleged confession by a lion trainer here that he had shot Emerson Dietrich, whose body was found in a cage of lions in Chicago last June. They were unable to state who sent the telegram from this city signed "Chief Halpin" and telling of the purported confession which was received yesterday by Dietrich's father, Ernest G. Dietrich, an architect of Brooklyn, N. Y. The lion show of which Dietrich formerly was manager appeared in this city two weeks ago but the troupe is no longer here. It is understood that the young woman exhibitor of the lions, who was in Chicago at the time of Dietrich's death is now in Bayonne, N. J.

MGR. BENSON IS DEAD

SON OF ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, WHO JOINED CATHOLIC CHURCH, PASSED AWAY

SALFORD, Eng., Oct. 20.—Mgr. Robert Hugh Benson, son of the late archbishop of Canterbury, died here yesterday.

Mgr. Benson's conversion to Catholicism, in view of his father's position as head of the church of England, created a sensation at the time he entered the Catholic church.

After being educated at Eton, Mgr. Benson read for orders with Dean Vaughan and served as curate at Pickering and Kensing. He was received into the Catholic church in 1903 by Fr. Reginald Barker and was ordained a priest in Rome a year later. He was made a private chamberlain to Pope Pius X. in 1911 and attained widespread renown as an author.

Mgr. Benson is widely known in America through his lecture tours. His lectures at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in New York city last Lent will be remembered.

Mgr. Benson attained renown as an author. Some of his publications are "The Light Invisible," "A Book of the Love of Jesus," "By What Authority," "The Religion of the Plain Man," "The Necromancers," "Non-Other Gods," and "Christ in the Church," as well as many magazines and newspaper articles.

One of his most recent articles was a denunciation of the German Emperor in which he said that semi-civilized Russia was sublime in comparison with Prussia.

Mgr. Benson was 43 years of age. Two brothers survive him, Arthur Christopher Benson, fellow and lecturer in Magdalene college, Cambridge, and author of "Dodo" and many fictional and critical works, and Edward Frederic Benson, also an author.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

Great interest is being taken by the members of the Immaculate Conception parish in the annual parish reunion which is to take place on Oct. 28, and which from all accounts promises to be one of the highest events in the history of the Belvidere parish. In conversation with a party of parishioners recently, the subject of the reunion came up and one of the party started a discussion as to when the first reunion was held, being of the opinion that it was held as far back as 25 years ago. The reunions were inaugurated by the late Rev. William D. Joyce, O. M. I., while pastor of the Immaculate Conception, about 20 years ago. Prior to that time most of the social events of the parish were conducted by the Christian Doctrine society and the Immaculate Conception Temperance society. Twenty-five years ago this week, both of those societies held forth, and the Sun reported their gatherings as follows:

"Monday evening the Immaculate Conception Temperance society dedicated its new hall in the Wier building in Market street. The new quarters were once occupied by the Salvation Army as barracks but under the direction of the new tenants the place has been completely changed and makes a most cozy meeting place. In honor of the dedicatory exercises the new quarters were prettily decorated and pictures of Fr. Mathew and Fr. Burke occupied prominent places. President James Reynolds opened the exercises by giving a comprehensive sketch of the society, which had its origin in the church of the Immaculate Conception. John S. Colby of the Vox Populi spoke cheering words for the society, urging the members to do everything in their power for its success. A recitation by John Peeney was received with great favor. Rev. Daniel M. Burns, O. M. I., addressed the audience in a few well chosen remarks, assuring the society of his support in every way. His words were listened to with marked attention. Misses Ann and Mary Meagher sang a duet very sweetly. Rev. William D. Joyce, O. M. I., gave the society some sound advice and assured the members that their desire to live temperate and virtuous lives. Remarks were also made by Edward F. Shattery and John Coyne."

Concerning the Christian Doctrine society, the old Sun said:

"Wednesday evening's meeting of the Christian Doctrine society of the Immaculate Conception church was made highly interesting. A fine musical and literary program opened the meeting, and near the close the society elected Rev. Daniel M. Burns, O. M. I., to represent it at the coming Catholic congress to be held at Baltimore. The reverend gentleman said that he would attend the congress if possible, and thanked the society for its selection of him. The members are very anxious that he should go to Baltimore. His activity in the cause of religion has never flagged since he came to Lowell. Should Fr. Burns go to Baltimore his keen powers of observation will cause him to return with a graphic account of what he witnesses."

HAVE YOU NEURASTHENIA?

Neurasthenia is a condition of exhaustion of the nervous system. The causes are varied. Continuous work, mental or physical, without proper vacation periods, without proper attention to diet and exercise, also worry over the struggles for success, are the most common causes. Excesses of almost any kind may produce it. Some diseases, like the grip, will cause neurasthenia. So also will a severe shock, intense anxiety or grief.

The symptoms are over-sensitiveness, irritability, a disposition to worry over trifles, headache, possibly insomnia.

The treatment is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring a non-alcoholic tonic. As the nerves get their nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed toward building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Two useful books "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., if you mention this paper.

Fred Walsh Cased

From the driver's seat on a grocery wagon to the owner's seat in a luxuriously appointed 1914 model shows how J. Fred Walsh has moved along in quarter of a century, for the Sun of 25 years ago had the following:

"At the close of business, Saturday night, the bookkeeper in behalf of the employer and employee, the driver presented J. F. Walsh, a driver of one of the order wagons, a beautiful gold headed cane, it being the close of his term of service with the firm, as he is soon to enter in business on his own account in Middlesex street. After the presentation Mr. Walsh took all the employees to supper at Putnam's restaurant."

Fred Walsh has successfully demonstrated how a young man with ambition and ability can come along in the world and incidentally get a good time out of it. After leaving Putnam's, he opened the Union market in Middlesex street and made that business a big success. While yet engaged in the provision business the Buicks struck the town, and Fred was one of the first to purchase a machine. An enthusiast in all his undertakings, he soon became an enthusiastic automobile and, following the business possibilities in the auto line, he abandoned the market and entered the automobile business in which he has met with great success. His business soon outgrew the limited confines of Lowell and he opened up in Boston where at present he is kept so busy that he finds time to run up to see his old acquaintances occasionally.

Old Ambulance Corps

For many years Lowell had an ambulance corps squad as one of its local military organizations and along with being a finely drilled and equipped organization, it was also a very successful one. The members of the corps had one of its annual field days, which the old Sun reported as follows:

"The target shoot of the Ambulance Corps was held on Thursday at the city farm range and was a very enjoyable affair. Sergeant G. E. Lull won the corps medal given by Lieutenant Howard. Honorary members won prizes as follows: Lieutenant Howard, a dressing case, given by Marston & Co."

AN OPEN LETTER

Mr. Fuel Buyer:

The best grade of pea coal at $6.25 per ton, burned in connection with the best grade of Otto Coke at $6.50 per ton, will cut your fuel bills in two. Try a sample order, one-half ton of each will cost you $6.37.

Start your fire with the coke, putting the pea coal on top, burn with a light draft. It will give you more satisfaction and better results than any ton of hard coal that you can buy at any price. It is suitable for kitchen range, sitting room stove, furnace, or boiler, but in ordering for furnace or boiler be sure and order furnace coke. I will stake my reputation as a fuel expert of thirty years' experience on the above combination, and if used as directed it will cheerfully remove it from your premises.

Doubtful for Brown, Smith and Hayes

Saves the old Sun.

"Monday night Mr. Joseph Smith resigned from the office of secretary of the overseers of the poor. He will take the city editor's desk in the Morning Mail office on November 3. The overseers elected Capt. Charles H. Richardson as his successor. Mr. Smith's salary was $1500 and the use of the horse and carriage. The Mail will pay him $1500 for his services and will get full value for the money. Mr. Smith is a writer of ability and he will take to the Mail office a dash and literary finish it has not enjoyed since Editor Bayles of the Citizen was there. Until "Joe" came on the Mail, the coming of Editor McCleery, together like two strange bull-dogs. Mr. Smith is now contributing editor to Truth, a Boston publication, and we recently were given an inside tip through the columns of a delightful little sheet known as the "Menace" that "Joe" is now in the "pay of Rome." "Joe" recently took up his trenchant pen and took a wallop out of the "Menace" leaving nothing of it but the "face" and the editor of the "Menace." After he came to, though in the worst thing that he could say in reply and that was that "Joe" is in the "pay of Rome." Horrible! "Joe" must be making money since he went to the Hub. Speaking of Editor Bayles who still writes most entertainingly for the Courier-Citizen, the same issues of the old Sun had the following:

"Editor Bayles has written an Indian story for a book to be sold at the Young Women's Home Bazaar. It is said that a scalping source which occurs in the story is really a disguised report of the recent republican convention. If this is so, the story is sufficiently harrowing."

The republican convention a year was a rousing affair. After a seven-hour wrangle in Huntington hall, the convention adjourned without making a choice. The candidates were Luman T. Jettis, of Hudson, Byron Trull of Lawrence Charles F. Loring of Melrose and James Pierce of Malden; all good boys. In fact, as fine a bunch of boys as ever sunk an axe into a log. There were 155 delegates present representing four cities and 42 towns and all vacancies were filled and the old Sun says there was some amusement when Alderman Fuller of Lowell voted for Billerica and Alderman Sawyer appeared as the lone delegate from Boxboro, while Major Hayes represented Tyngsboro. The delegates voted all afternoon with no choice, the contest being between Messrs. Loring and Trull and then adjourned to a later date. The Sun had the following comment on the convention:

Candidate Loring ordered dinner for 100 persons to be served at the Merrimack house at noon. He expected to be nominated for councillor before the convention was an hour old. The splendid fight made by the Trull men caused the dinner to grow cold and somebody had to pay the score for the uneaten banquet."

Here's another:

"All of Lawrence is coming up here to settle the councillor fight. A dark horse may be led in unexpectedly. It is said the animal is being groomed up in Ward 4."

And this one:

"The way that Lowell went back on Trull was a caution. Old promises made to Lawrence were broken by the Lowell republicans in a shameful manner."

"At the second convention Trull was victorious and the old Sun said:

"Byron Trull of Lawrence is the republican candidate for councillor. He was nominated Tuesday after another characteristic row by the republican delegates. Loring and Jettis are left and they charge Trull with having bought up delegates enough to break the deadlock. It costs Loring $300 for his experience and the Trull men spent a good deal more but they are satisfied with the substance, while the gentlemen who were left must be satisfied with the shadow. It will be surprising if there isn't some tall cutting of Trull when election day comes."

Wasn't it awful the way the republicans used to behave in those days. It's no wonder that a third party has grown out of the old organization. Imagine allowing a fine dinner to go to waste on account of a simple deadlock. And that a democratic convention would a dinner have grown cold? Not even the steam that rises from the soup when it first appears out of the kitchen would have been missed.

THE LADY'S WORKBAG

A sewing hint worth remembering is the necessity for buttonholes that are to be covered with wash material before they are covered. This will prevent the coloring in them from coming through and will save the trouble of recovering every time the dress is washed.

The discarded talcum powder box with a perforated top may be made to do duty for a hatpin holder. The box may be covered with a piece of fancy figured ribbon or brocade, the edges may be finished with galleon if necessary.

Into the opening at the top several hatpins may be thrust. The holder may be weighted partly filling it with cornmeal or powder.

MIDDLESEX WOMEN'S CLUB

Mrs. MacDowell Told of Colony at Peterborough, N. H., Founded by Her Husband

The story of the founding of the MacDowell Memorial Colony at Peterborough, N. H., was beautifully told by the composer's wife in a lecture-recital which opened the season at the Middlesex Women's club, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. MacDowell gave glimpses of her husband's life and the ideals which she shared with him. It was MacDowell's idea that in a New England village might be developed the best expression that from the very nature of the American temperament would surpass that of the old-world villages. The Peterborough village, enacted for the most part by villagers has gone far to prove that the composer was right. Mrs. MacDowell makes a fine tribute to the development of the Peterborough colony under the direction of Mr. Hood, the leader of the Lowell Choral society. Among the numbers played by Mrs. MacDowell were:

"From a Log Cabin" and "Indian Love" from "New England Idylls," "1820" from "Sea Pieces" and "Indian Lodge," "Uncle Remus," "In Autumn" and "To a Wild Rose" from the "Woodland Sketches."

THE SICKABED LADY

A sick headache is often caused when traveling by inability to get meals at the usual time, but if a few raisins are carried to eat at that time it will often prevent the headache, advises the nurse. Raisins contain a great deal of nourishment, and eating them draws the blood from the head to the stomach.

Here is a good remedy for seasickness: Drink half a glass of water into which has been squeezed the juice of half a lemon and a quarter of a teaspoonful of ground cloves. This dose can be repeated in half an hour.

When going to a new place one should be very careful for a few days as to diet.

Sometimes the water, although pure, will cause stomach disorder. Often vegetables will cause trouble, so that it is safe to take with you a bottle of tincture of peppermint or, if this is disliked, tincture of ginger.

To stimulate torpid organs, the nurse says, the paste is most effective and quite palatable.

A half pound each of fine raisins and figs and one ounce of senna leaves, chop fine, place in a stewpan with one-half pound of sugar, let simmer for fifteen minutes, then pour in a deep dish to cool.

Take a piece as large as an ordinary marble at bedtime. The quantity can be increased or reduced as required. Drink a glass of cold water half hour before breakfast, several glasses during the day and one at bedtime.

Eat fresh vegetable and fruit and take more outdoor exercise, and you will not require the fig paste very long. It is better to correct your condition by your diet than with drugs.

The nurse gives the following directions "Don'ts":

- Don't allow the sheets to become wrinkled.
- Don't jar the bed by leaning or sitting upon it.
- Don't allow state flowers to remain in the room.
- Don't forget to be kind and patient.
- Don't have temperature of sickroom over sixty-five degrees.
- Don't appear anxious. People who are ill are very sensitive.
- Don't rattle papers. Nothing gets on one's nerves more than this.
- Don't give the patient more water in a glass than he is allowed.
- Don't fill the room with fresh flowers.
- Keep one or two bouquets in the room at a time. Change every two or three hours if you have a great many.

The nurse says the feet feel sore and tender, soak them in hot water and Epsom salts about one and one-half ounces to a basin of water. Rub the feet gently twice a day, as it is very restful. Fine cotton stockings with white soles are often more comfortable than lisle.

For soft corns between the toes, rub them with castor oil twice a day and place a small piece of lamb's wool between the toes. Bathe the feet every day and always dry thoroughly between the toes.

A good method of removing warts is to wet them with hot water and then rub them for two or three minutes with table salt, says nurse.

At the end of this time cover the wart with salt and let it remain undisturbed for another five minutes when wart should be freed from its cell of salt.

Repeat this treatment several times a day for a week, when, in most cases the wart will be no more. There will be no scar, so feel no fear of this treatment.

If your hands perspire too freely, says nurse, add a few drops of tincture of myrrh to the water in which you rinse them after washing. Then dry thoroughly and dust with boracic acid or talcum.

To do away with excessive perspiration under the arms, bathe the axilla with cold water and a little tincture of benzoin night and morning. Then apply this powder: one-half pound of pure borax, one ounce of ordinary baking soda, one dram of any preferred sachet powder.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Moore of 172 Oakleigh road, Newton, yesterday afternoon and evening celebrated their golden wedding in the presence of scores of relatives and friends.

Mr. Moore is president of the Leather Manufacturing company of Boston, a deacon in the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Newton, president of the Massachusetts Baptist association, founder of the Baptist Social association, and for 15 years has been superintendent of the Sunday school at the Emmanuel Baptist church, Newton. Mr. and Mrs. Moore were married in Natick. They have five children.

ROOSEVELT BAPS BARNES

COULDN'T GET A SHEET OF TISSUE PAPER BETWEEN BARNES AND MURPHY, HE SAID

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—"You couldn't get a sheet of tissue paper between them," said Colonel Theodore Roosevelt here last night, speaking of William Barnes and Charles F. Murphy of New York. Colonel Roosevelt wound up a two days' speaking trip in Illinois in the interest of the progressive candidates with an address here, in which he digressed to pay his respects at length to the republican and democratic leaders of New York state.

"Evidently the conditions here are not materially different from what they are in my own state," he said.

"There Messrs. Barnes and Murphy, the republican and democratic bosses, stand in all their pomp and in what by courtesy might be called their principles, so close together that you could not put a sheet of tissue paper between them, while each is sundered from the sincere and upright rank and file of his own party by a gulf that would be impassable if only men were willing to vote their living convictions instead of being slaves to a dead name."

Colonel Roosevelt's speech last night was the climax of a busy day, in which he rushed by automobile at noon to Gary, Ind., to speak to the steel workers there in favor of A. J. Beveridge, former United States senator, now progressive candidate for the senate from Indiana. He attacked by name Sullivan and Lawrence V. Sherman, the republican and democratic candidates for senator from Illinois. Raymond Robbins, the progressive candidate, he said, had passed a life of service to his fellows.

WIFE WAS DISILLUSIONED

IMMIGRATION DOCTOR TELLS WOMAN HER HUSBAND HAS GLASS EYE

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Mrs. T. H. Mehl, the English wife of a German, arrived on the steamship Sachsen from Liverpool yesterday and declared, upon stepping ashore, that "one learns a lot in America."

She had just learned that her husband had a glass eye and though she had been married to him for six years never even suspected it.

And it was Uncle Sam who shamelessly gave away the secret.

Dr. H. B. C. Rehner of the immigration service, in accordance with his duty in looking over arriving passengers, noticed that Mr. Mehl had an artificial eye and he made the usual notation on the landing ticket.

Mrs. Mehl was watching him as he wrote the words.

"Why, what does this mean?" she inquired in amazement.

"Your husband's eye is glass, that's all," replied the government doctor, who was beginning to see he wasn't the only one who had made a discovery.

The husband blushed and allowed that the "eye" had been made in Germany, where they do some things well.

"I am astounded," gasped the wife when she could get her breath. "Why, I have been married to this man for six years and didn't know he had only one eye."

Mr. Mehl said—

But that's another story.

SOME KID--M'COY

Former Claimant of the Middleweight Title a Versatile Character

Twenty-four years is a long time for a fighter to last, but Kid McCoy, the Hoosier middleweight, although he was 41 years old last Saturday, is still able to pull off the "come-back" stuff, and to give occasional dashes of the form which made him one of the cleverest fighters in the world when he was in his prime, Norman Stry, to give the Kid his right and proper name, was born on Oct. 17, 1874, in a Hoosier village about 30 miles from Indianapolis, as a lad he was called "Doc" and was a good part of America's first real battle was pulled off in Indianapolis in 1890, when the Kid, who had become a jack-of-all trades, was working as a waiter in a restaurant. The Kid's employer was an ex-pugilist, and his place was a sporting resort, with a boxing ring in connection. One day young Stry got into a dispute with another waiter, and the boss ordered the turbulent lads to wait until evening and settle their quarrel with the gloves and the flag upstairs. The loser to lose his job as well, McCoy had a fondness for his job, and he put it all over the other chap. His employer was so pleased with his showing that he gave the Kid his start in the boxing game. In 1893 he got a job as assistant cook in Bob Fitzsimmons' training camp, and, without letting it be known that he was a professional boxer, he watched Bob at work and finally got a total as sparring partner. McCoy was then little more than a lightweight, and he took a lot of hard knocks from the freckled fellow, but at the same time he gained valuable experience. When Fitz quit the middleweight class division McCoy claimed the title, and held it against all comers, although his claim was disputed by Tom Hatcher, Victor Goossens and other good heavyweights, but was knocked out by Jim Corbett. The Hoosier retired in 1905, and has since spent most of his time in Europe and was boxing instructor to Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian playwright. He has made several come-backs in the ring. The Kid is then nearly 40, less than eight times—maybe more, since it is difficult to keep up on his matrimonial activities.

COULD'NT GET A SHEET OF TISSUE PAPER BETWEEN BARNES AND MURPHY, HE SAID

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—"You couldn't get a sheet of tissue paper between them," said Colonel Theodore Roosevelt here last night, speaking of William Barnes and Charles F. Murphy of New York. Colonel Roosevelt wound up a two days' speaking trip in Illinois in the interest of the progressive candidates with an address here, in which he digressed to pay his respects at length to the republican and democratic leaders of New York state.

"Evidently the conditions here are not materially different from what they are in my own state," he said.

"There Messrs. Barnes and Murphy, the republican and democratic bosses, stand in all their pomp and in what by courtesy might be called their principles, so close together that you could not put a sheet of tissue paper between them, while each is sundered from the sincere and upright rank and file of his own party by a gulf that would be impassable if only men were willing to vote their living convictions instead of being slaves to a dead name."

Colonel Roosevelt's speech last night was the climax of a busy day, in which he rushed by automobile at noon to Gary, Ind., to speak to the steel workers there in favor of A. J. Beveridge, former United States senator, now progressive candidate for the senate from Indiana. He attacked by name Sullivan and Lawrence V. Sherman, the republican and democratic candidates for senator from Illinois. Raymond Robbins, the progressive candidate, he said, had passed a life of service to his fellows.

BREAK A CHILD'S COLD BY GIVING SYRUP OF FIGS

Cleanses the Little Liver and Bowels and They Get Well

Quick.

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "Calf Brand Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the discomforts are discontinued, waste, sour bile and indigestible food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "Calf Brand Syrup of Figs" to evacuate the bowels; no difference what other treatment is given.

Sick children couldn't be coaxing to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "Calf Brand Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "Calf Brand Syrup Company."

FIRST STREET REPAIRS

CONSIDERED BY HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER OF BOARD OF TRADE—COST WOULD BE ABOUT $50,000

At a meeting of the board of trade highway committee held yesterday afternoon it was stated that the construction of a boulevard highway along the river bank in Indian Orchard would cost approximately $50,000 from Read street to the city line where the river state highway to Lawrence begins. The estimates constituting the total amount were submitted by City Engineer Kearney. After discussing the matter carefully, the committee voted to recommend to the city government that First street be temporarily repaired as soon as possible to make it at least safe and comfortable for traffic and that these repairs be done as cheaply as possible.

The meeting was called ostensibly for the purpose of making some progress on the First street problem and incidentally to hear from Charles J. Morse, commissioner of streets and highways, as to plans for the coming year. First street will be given a liberal coat of cinders this winter and the steam rollers will work it down to a hard surface. Then a liberal coat of all will be laid and Commissioner Morse declares that a good street will be ready which can be used for two years, at least, without difficulty. The committee urged that the best plan, if possible, pointing out the great danger to traffic at the present time because of the bad condition of the street.

Mr. Morse promised to make First street a portion of his early winter work. The commissioner, discussed road repairing and maintenance and said that he had plans for next year if he continues in the street department. He would block pay Broadway, he said, because of the type of traffic which uses it.

After the meeting of the committee, Commissioner Morse and Chairman Charles J. Sullivan of the Bay State Street Railway company and consultants concerning the opportunity to move the trolley tracks in First street. President Sullivan agreed to consider the matter and to instruct the road's engineer to communicate with Commissioner Morse to see what could be done to give more roadway space in First street. It is too late to accomplish anything this fall but it may be done next year if possible.

"The highway committee will spend some time this fall on a study of the through routes or more important thoroughfares of the city and present, if thought advisable, a paving plan upon which the city might operate for a series of years, securing a steady improvement along recognized routes which need reconstruction."

IMMIGRATION DOCTOR TELLS WOMAN HER HUSBAND HAS GLASS EYE

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Mrs. T. H. Mehl, the English wife of a German, arrived on the steamship Sachsen from Liverpool yesterday and declared, upon stepping ashore, that "one learns a lot in America."

She had just learned that her husband had a glass eye and though she had been married to him for six years never even suspected it.

And it was Uncle Sam who shamelessly gave away the secret.

Dr. H. B. C. Rehner of the immigration service, in accordance with his duty in looking over arriving passengers, noticed that Mr. Mehl had an artificial eye and he made the usual notation on the landing ticket.

Mrs. Mehl was watching him as he wrote the words.

"Why, what does this mean?" she inquired in amazement.

"Your husband's eye is glass, that's all," replied the government doctor, who was beginning to see he wasn't the only one who had made a discovery.

The husband blushed and allowed that the "eye" had been made in Germany, where they do some things well.

"I am astounded," gasped the wife when she could get her breath. "Why, I have been married to this man for six years and didn't know he had only one eye."

Mr. Mehl said—

But that's another story.

SICK DANDY

Once upon a time Frank had taught his pony, Dandy, one or two tricks, and as everyone thought that was very smart both for Frank and the pony, Frank said that he was going to teach Dandy some others, so he set about teaching Dandy to get his own dinner by going to the corn box, poking his nose under the lid, and in that way, get to the corn.

Frank would put in just the right amount of corn and Dandy of course would eat it all up. One day Frank was very busy playing ball and forgot to go to the barn and get Dandy's dinner ready. Dandy waited as long as he usually did, and even a little longer, and then he started out to see what was the matter. He went to the box, lifted up the cover and of course expected to find his nice meal of corn, but much to his surprise there was nothing in the box, so he went over to the other side of the barn and looked about and as he saw a box that looked like his own feed box he walked up, stuck his nose under the cover and opened it without any trouble.

It was full of the nicest looking corn and he began to eat as fast as he could. When he had eaten all that he wanted (and that was a great deal more than he had ever eaten at one time before) he trotted back to his stall. In a little while he began to feel very sick and he wished that he hadn't been such a pig and eat so much.

When Frank remembered that he had not fed Dandy and hurried to the barn to do so, he found a very sick horse. He had to give Dandy some horrid tasting medicine before he was well and stay with him for a long time.

The next day when he went to the barn to give Dandy his dinner and lead him out to the corn box Dandy turned his head away and would not open the box, and do you know, he would never do that trick again.

Frank said that he didn't blame him one bit and he thought that only proved that Dandy was a smart pony, and after that his dinner was given to him in his stall.

The United States Cartridge company recalled night work last night. The plant had been operating night shift for about a month ago and since that time a day force has been maintained. It is rumored that the company has received a large order for cartridges from the war zone.

President Wood at C. Again

President Wood of the American Woolen Co. is certainly hard put in his attacks on the present administration. He now terms the woolen industry "the football of politics." It will be remembered that not very long ago he said that if he could put wheels under his mills in Massachusetts, he would run them out of the state. The mills are still here and, according to reports, prospering.

English Workers Ask Real Reduction

Unemployment in England seems to be on the increase. On last Tuesday night in the town of Burnley the monthly meeting of the Burnley Trades council was held. The Burnley Carpenters' association presented a copy of the following resolution, which was passed at a recent meeting: "That we instruct our labor and socialist members to move in the council chamber that the property owners be asked to reduce their rent until the termination of the war, or until trade resumes its normal condition."

Loomfixers Hold Meeting

Branch of Mass. Mills in South

Engineers are now busily engaged at the Massachusetts mills in Tangle, Ga., taking out about 45 old style looms and installing in their places new automatic weaving machines, built by the Hopkocks Co. of Holyoke, Mass. Plans for this work had been started some time ago. Eventually the company intends to replace all its old style machines with the latest automatic looms. The Georgia cotton factory is practically a branch of the Massachusetts mills of this city, and is capitalized for $2,000,000. The Linde plant has 97,000 ring spindles, 2850 brand looms, 860 narrow looms and 850 carders, driven by steam power.

South American Trade

Trade with South American countries is bound to grow, according to an observer of trade conditions, below the equator. This year of hard times in South America will not seriously set back development of business there. Heavy spring rains interfered with planting in several South American countries. So crops are small. In Argentina the rainfall was so heavy that the men could not go into the forests and get out logs. The war in Europe seriously hurt business in South America. Most of the banking there is done by English and German firms. The money market is so tight that a man might have trouble in buying a lead pencil, even if he had a letter of credit for a million. But capital from the United States is beginning to flow toward South America. The continent is so rich that it must develop. When it starts to grow, it will grow like the great west of the United States.

WARE MAN, BURIED IN QUICKSAND 24 HOURS

Maurice H. Allen Rescued After Imprisonment in Well 34 Feet Below the Earth's Surface—1000 Cheer as He is Pulled Out—Police and Firemen Assist

WARE, Oct. 20.—Being rescued after 24 hours imprisonment in a quicksand, 34 feet below the earth's surface, is characterized by Maurice Allen as "the real thing in a return from the grave."

Unkempt, unshaven, although little the worse for his thrilling experience, Allen sat propped up in a bed at his modest home last night and gave his impressions of that close call from death. His wife and three children showered him with food, caresses and endearing words as their part in the joyous family reunion.

To the several hundred men who labored desperately with shovels, ladders, ropes and other equipment, Allen owed his deliverance at 2:30 yesterday afternoon from the treacherous bottom of the well that he was digging when disaster overtook him.

Since 1 Sunday afternoon when a series of cave-ins left him buried to his neck and with the lower part of his body imbedded in the quicksand, the rescuers who swarmed to the mouth of the pit waged their battle for Allen's life.

Disheartening reverses beset them. Once when they had almost freed Allen, the sides of the well caved in again. This time he was engulfed in earth to his eyes.

Several of the narrow escapes from being caught themselves. But, undaunted, they quickly rallied around the well top and lowered by means of rope a man who dug away the earth from Allen's face. With danger of suffocation thus averted, the rescuers protected Allen from future cave-ins by placing over his head a barrel to which was attached the tugging of a pulley.

All through the night and well into yesterday afternoon fresh air was pumped to him. Meanwhile the rescuing party, among whom were many police and firemen, were hard at work digging a trench through the hillside in which the well was located. They had decided that the one means of extricating the man was to penetrate the side of the well by means of a trench and remove the earth from around Allen by means of a bucket brigade.

To dig the trench seemed a herculean task, but it was finally accomplished after a cut 30 feet in length and 25 feet deep had been made. This ditch and the sides of the well had been carefully shored up with planks to prevent a repetition of the accident that befell Allen.

Hesitated by Chum
At noon today the rescuers were within 10 feet of the well. At 2 yesterday afternoon they had broken into the side of the pit. Then began the real delicate work of the rescue. "Zeno" Bourgeois, a bosom friend of the imprisoned man, was lowered by means of a rope from a fire extension ladder that had been placed over the mouth of the well.

Slowly and carefully Bourgeois began the work of digging away the earth from the barrel-topped Allen. Then, after he had made a little headway, he pitted a shovel. Next Perry Dunkan, superintendent of highways for the town of Ware, was lowered to the side of Bourgeois. He, too, worked at removing the earth.

Little by little, but with slowness that seemed to voice the reluctance of the human system injured by one cup of coffee.

Its Constant Use Tends to Increase Fatigue Products Says Kansas City Physician

The constant use of coffee and tea tends to increase fatigue products in the human system, says Dr. G. W. H. Johnson, of the University Medical College, Kansas City, Mo.
"Coffee is used in coffee and tea as a beverage for its stimulating effects. Even in small doses, one cup of coffee or tea per day, the general results of the action of caffeine upon the nervous system are to increase the irritability of the brain.
"In order to respond to the stimulation of regular doses of caffeine, nerve and muscle tissue must draw upon their reserve energy, and they must do their work in the presence of an excessive quantity of toxic fatigue products, and both of these conditions tend to exhaustion and perversion of function.
"Caffeine is not a food to nerve or muscle tissue. It does not increase the elimination of fatigue products, but does increase their production.
"NOTE—Too much cannot be said in favor of the value of an invigorating morning drink, especially during colder weather—but the drink must not be harmful. The food-drink, INSTANT POSTUM, while resembling the better grades of Java in flavor and appearance is pure, wholesome and wholly free from the coffee drugs 'caffeine' and 'tannin' and is rapidly taking the place of coffee for a table beverage for reasons of health.

the quicksand to release his prey, the rescue progressed. And as progress was made a raw hold was made, fastened on a rope which, fastened under Allen's arm pits, prevented his sinking farther. From the top of the pit, Chief of Police B. W. Buckley, to whose good management the success of the dangerous undertaking is generally attributed, alternated his instructions as to procedure with repeated caution of "safety first."

But at last the earth had been removed until only 2 1/2 feet as far as his knees remained in the quicksand. A board which had remained jammed against his right leg was carefully removed. Then Allen, who had been kept under his barrel equipment was asked if he would risk a concerted tug at the rope fastened to him.

"Pull away for your life, do anything, long as you get me out of here," said the well digger.
Plans were at once made for a mighty tug on the rope. In preparation for this move the diver-like headgear was removed from Allen. All rescue work momentarily came to a halt when Allen demanded another one of them, jelly sandwiches. "Jelly sandwiches!" He referred to two thick slices of bread containing a filling of grape jelly which had been sent in to the well by his wife just before the barrel helmet was placed over him at midnight.

Soon the jelly sandwich was brought to the side of the well by Mrs. Allen. Her pale face and sunken eyes told of the hours of torture that had extended all through the night and into the day.

Mrs. Allen peered into the depths and sang out to the clay-begrimed figure, "Here's a sandwich, hubby, and there will be plenty more when you get out."

1000 Witness Rescue
After he had gulped down the refreshments Chief Buckley sang out, "All ready."

"Sure thing, let her go," responded Allen.
The chief and several of the men at the top strained on the rope. In a jiffy Allen was yanked from the remnant of his earthly prison. Slowly he was raised on the rope until his body was just level with the ditch that had been dug into the side of the well.

There three husky men held hold of him and he was carried on their shoulders through the deep trench and out into the open. Fully 1000 persons were gathered on the hillside. Their roar of welcome brought a faint grin to Allen's earth-caked countenance. A concerted rush was made upon him. All wanted to shake hands and get in a word, but they were waved back by Chief Buckley and a cordon of officers.

In the Allen home, which is just on the brink of the well the man was cheered. There his wife and children sobbed out their joy as they embraced him en masse and uttered smatches of prayer at his deliverance.

In a tone that left no doubt as to his sincerity Allen called off all future well digging.

"No more underground stuff for me," he said. "I'll go without water equipment until I can afford to have a driven well on the premises."
Beyond a numbness of the feet and legs, Allen made no complaint as to his physical condition.

GERMANS ATTACK ALLIES NEAR THE BELGIAN COAST

Allies Claim Progress Between Arras and Roye and Continue Assault on Lille, Which is Still Held by Germans—Stubborn Fighting in Vicinity of St. Mihiel—Report Allies Retake Ostend Not Confirmed

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The plunging German attacks on the allied line near the Belgian coast between Arras and Dixmude, similar tactics by the allies in France between Arras and Roye where progress is claimed, a continued allied assault on Lille still held by the Germans and stubborn fighting in the vicinity of St. Mihiel where for days the allies have been trying to drive the Germans from their southernmost lodgment were the main points today in the sprawling battle area of France and Belgium.

The communications issued in behalf of the allies last night enabled Britons to visualize for the first time in days the approximate battle line after crossing the Belgian frontier and showed how the allies during the days of censorship were throwing their forces westward to meet the inevitable German advance which followed the taking of Ostend.

The fighting is now centering only a few miles southwest of that city and the Belgian army, heretofore reported as having repulsed the Germans on the banks of the river Yser, is again in the thick of the fight being credited with bending back the German line as far as the approach of 13 miles northwest of Courtrai, which point they are holding, according to the latest reports available when this despatch was written.

A despatch dated merely "north of France," says that the allies have retaken Ostend but this is not confirmed and is at variance with the German contention that they have reached the neighborhood of Dunkirk where inhabitants as well as those of Boulogne are in a state of panic. If the Belgians are holding Roulers it seems incredible that the Germans have advanced so far as that would mean a complete bending back of the allied left which rests on the coast west of Ostend.

Tormenting rains have been falling recently near the scene of the coast fighting, making the flat country a sea of mud and this with the network of canals makes the movement of German guns extremely difficult.

News from the east shows no notable change in the battle lines. The Russians contend that the Germans are still held on the Vistula and San rivers.

TRAINS CARRYING SOLDIERS COLLIDED—50 KILLED AND 80 INJURED
LONDON, Oct. 20.—A despatch to the Chronicle from Pass De Calais dated Monday, says that between 40 and 50 passengers were killed and 80 were injured in a train wreck Saturday between Calais and Boulogne.

Two trains carrying soldiers and refugees collided, owing to the fact that a broken signal wire released the danger signal. Many carriages were wrecked.

ALL NON-COMBATANT FRENCHMEN ALLOWED TO DEPART FROM GERMANY
LONDON, Oct. 20.—A Reuter as-spatch from Berlin says that all Frenchmen and women under 31 and over 60 years will henceforth be allowed to depart from Germany by the regular trains via Schaafhausen, Switzerland. The German authorities will facilitate their departure as much as possible and a bureau established in Berlin will assist them in passing through Switzerland. The measure is reciprocal in nature and meant to meet a similar departure of Germans in France.

REPORTED ALLIES TAKE OSTEND—LAST NIGHTS WAR FEATURES
Ostend again in allies' hands, it is reported. Berlin says Germans have reached neighborhood of Dunkirk. Germans repulsed by Belgian army and British warships on Dixmude-Nieuport line.

Allies advance to Roulers, where heavy fighting is in progress. Allies make progress eastward below Arras. British battleship triumph damaged by German fire at Taisgau. Report German cruiser Karlsruhe damaged in engagement with British warship.

Turkey refuses to dismiss German crews of cruisers Breslau and Goeben. French cruiser sinks Austrian submarine. State department will investigate seizure of American steamship Brindilla by British.

FOR LOWELL PRODUCTS
CONGRESSMAN ROGERS STATES THERE IS A MARKET IN EUROPE—LETTER TO BOARD OF TRADE
According to Congressman John Jacob Rogers of this city, the products manufactured in Lowell can readily find purchasers in Europe and he suggests in a letter written to the secretary of the board of trade that the board prepare a list of all articles manufactured in Lowell and supply the representatives of European countries in the United States with such a list as well as the names of the manufacturers.

Congressman Rogers' letter, which is self explanatory, is as follows: October 15, 1914.
Mr. John H. Murphy, Secretary, Lowell Board of Trade, Lowell, Mass.
Dear Mr. Murphy:

It is a matter of common knowledge that the countries of Europe, including not only the belligerents but also their neighbors, are beginning to buy in great quantities and variety. It is generally believed that this activity will, during the war, increase even more rapidly than it has in recent weeks, as the reserve supplies of Europe gradually become depleted. Those products in which Lowell excels are certain to be in great demand.

The European embassies and legations in Washington and the consulates-general in New York are naturally the intermediaries between their respective countries and United States producers. I am advised that many of these foreign representatives are preparing an elaborate list of those products which their governments may be interested in, and that these representatives will turn to their lists and, without resorting to competitive bidding, purchase from the concerns of whom they thus have knowledge.

It occurred to me that the Lowell board of trade might care to use its facilities to compile a list of the products of Lowell and vicinity of the importance to our wage earners of the present situation, and to suggest that they lay before the representatives of the various countries who may be "on the market" the information concerning those commodities in which such countries might naturally be interested. It may be that the board of trade could profitably couple and furnish to each European representative a detailed description of all appropriate articles produced by Greater Lowell. If desired, I shall be glad to furnish a list of the European representatives and to render such further assistance as I can.

Very truly yours,
John Jacob Rogers.

F. E. VOGEL, PARTNER OF SIEGEL, DIED SUDDENLY

Autopsy to Determine Cause of Death Ordered by Coroner—He Was Under Fourteen Indictments, Following the Failure of Siegel Stores and Banks

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—On orders from Coroner Hollenstein, issued, it was stated, at the request of the family, physicians today will perform an autopsy to determine the cause of the death last night of Frank E. Vogel, who with his business associate, Henry Siegel, was to have gone on trial this month on indictments charging grand larceny in receiving bank deposits while insolvent in connection with their department stores in this city. The autopsy is proposed to set at rest any suspicion that death was from any other than natural causes.

Vogel, with his wife, who was Miss Blanche Siegel, a niece of his partner, and their two children, returned on Sunday to New York from their country home in Hiram, N. Y. Vogel was then in his usual health and apparently in good spirits. Yesterday he rose at his usual hour, went down town on business and after luncheon went, as was his practice, for a walk. He returned to his hotel apartment about five o'clock and a few minutes later was stricken.

Vogel and Henry Siegel were each under 11 indictments which followed the failure of the Siegel stores and banks. The amount of money involved in those indictments against Mr. Vogel was $649,000, in those naming Siegel, $525,000.

TRIALS OF SUPER DREADNOUGHT
ROCKLAND, Me., Oct. 20.—Trials of the super dreadnaught New York which have been delayed since last spring by the ships participation in the Mexican crisis were begun today with the standardization test on the Rockland course. This trial contemplated 20 or more runs over the measured mile.

The return of fair weather gave the battleship a good start early in the morning and at 7 o'clock she was pacing the course on her low speed runs. Warming up at a 12-knot clip she gradually increased her speed until at noon she was nearly ready for the final run which would prove the supreme test. It was the expectation that the trial would last until darkness and offered the range marks and it is possible that the final runs may not be made until tomorrow.

ALLIES HALT GERMANS' NEW MOVE ON PARIS

MRS. CARMAN'S MAID TO TELL OF CRIME

MINNEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—After physicians have established the cause of the death of Mrs. Louise E. Bailey, who was shot and killed in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman at Freeport on June 30 last, Cella Coleman, the negro maid in the Carman household, is expected to take the stand today to tell her story of the crime of which her former mistress, Mrs. Forence C. Carman, is accused. Questions put to the talesmen yesterday by District Attorney Smith indicated that about the testimony of the maid he will build his case against Mrs. Carman.

The short time in which the jury was selected yesterday led District Attorney Smith to express the opinion that the trial would be short and that a verdict might be expected this week.

Before court opened today William D. Bailey, husband of the murdered woman, indicated that he would occupy a less conspicuous place in the trial room than he did yesterday, when he sat beside the district attorney and as a result brought references from Mrs. Carman's counsel to himself seeking to influence the jurors. Whether Mrs. Carman will be a witness in her own defense has not been determined. Her appearance on the stand would depend, it was stated, upon the strength of the case her counsel considered the district attorney had woven around her.

Miss Bailey to Testify

Madeline Bailey, the 17-year-old daughter of the murder victim, was in court to testify as a witness, notwithstanding the urgent request made by her father that she be spared the ordeal.

Immediately after court opened, District Attorney Smith began his opening address to the jury. He sketched in some detail Mrs. Bailey's action on the day of the murder, the arrangement of the Carman house in general and the physician's office particularly. He told the jury how the wife sat at the window to the office was propped up, the window pane broken, a revolver thrust through the opening and a bullet fired into the heart of Mrs. Bailey. Although she died within a minute, he said, her body lay on the floor for some time before the police were notified.

"We shall show," declared the district attorney, "that the fatal shot was fired by this defendant. We shall show that she passed through the kitchen on the morning of the shooting and that she returned through the kitchen immediately after it. We shall show further that the motive was jealousy and suspicion of her husband."

Says Defendant Slapped Woman

"To prove this we shall call a woman who Mrs. Carman slapped on one occasion when she saw her husband give her money while the pair were in the physician's office. Also we will show why and how she secured a telephone instrument or mechanical contrivance so she could spy on her husband, of whom she was intensely jealous."

The district attorney also told how the defendant tore out the instrument the morning after the murder and hid it in the garret.

"We will also show some things about George M. Levy, this defendant's counsel," Mr. Smith continued. "We will show how he called this lawyer in on the day after the murder and consulted him and how he immediately questioned the colored girl, Cella Coleman, about what she had seen. We will show that before this defendant had even been suspected she began to prepare for her defense and that she instructed the colored girl what to say in case the officers of the law should question her. After we show all this, gentlemen, we shall expect you to bring in a verdict of murder in the first degree."

John J. Graham of Mrs. Carman's counsel, took exception to Mr. Smith's statements concerning the defendant's talk with Mr. Levy.

Mother of Mrs. Bailey Called

"When the district attorney had finished his address he called to the witness stand, Mrs. Jennie Duryea, the aged mother of Mrs. Bailey and had identified the dress the latter wore when she was shot. By other witnesses, the state established the time of Mrs. Bailey's entrance into Dr. Carman's office and her whereabouts just prior to that time. Other preliminary evidence had to do with the location and plan of the Carman home and the doctor's consultation room therein.

Mrs. Hazel Cowles, a stenographer of Freeport, testified that she went to Dr. Carman's office to consult him on the night of June 30 and that while she was waiting in the reception room a woman wearing a dark dress entered. It was inferred that the woman was Mrs. Bailey. Mrs. Carman passed through the reception room twice, the witness said, once after the woman in the dark dress had arrived. When Miss Cowles left the office the dark gown woman was still there.

Coroner Norton Testifies

Coriden Norton, coroner and justice of the peace in Freeport, testified that he was called to the Carman house about 8.45 o'clock. Mrs. Bailey was dead then. Dr. William Runcie arrived, the witness said, and extracted the bullet from Mrs. Bailey's body. Later the coroner said he examined the window through which the shot had been fired. He said the screen was propped up with a piece of shingle. The staple and fastening on the screen were undamaged. Some of the glass from the broken pane was on the floor of the office and some was on the ground outside.

Dr. Howard E. Phillips of Hempstead, a succeeding witness, described the course taken by the bullet. The physician said the autopsy also showed that Mrs. Bailey would have become a mother had she lived.

BRITISH SUBMARINE SUNK BY GERMANS

Allies Threaten to Cut German Line—Battle in Region of Upres, Belgium—Heavy Fighting Along River Meuse—Paris Claims Entire Battalion of German Artillery Destroyed—Japanese Occupy German Island in Pacific—German Torpedo-boat Destroyed by Japs—Russo-Turkish Naval Battle Fought in Black Sea—King George Returns to London

That the allies are frustrating the attempt of the reinforced for the extreme right wing of the German army to skirt the English channel ports with the supposed object of the finding a new route to Paris is indicated by the French official statement given out this afternoon which asserts that the Belgian army is maintaining its position on the River Yser.

Further actions are being fought between the allies and the Germans in the region of Ypres, Belgium. From Ypres, the allied left wing extends to the English channel where it is being supported by British naval forces.

Along the remainder of the 350 mile battle front stretching from the North sea to Switzerland, where the defenders and invaders have been entrenched for 37 days, the only activity noted is that in the region of the Meuse river, where heavy fighting goes on incessantly principally in the vicinity of Camp Des Romains.

French batteries at St. Mihiel south of Verdun are reported to have destroyed an entire battalion of German artillery which had been active in sweeping the French positions.

Russian official reports say that the efforts of the Austrians to cross the river San have been repulsed.

In the Pacific ocean Japan has occupied "for military purposes" the German islands in the archipelagos of Marshall, Mariana and Caroline. The occupation of Yap, one of the Caroline islands, gives Japan control of the German cable station which connects China with the Malay archipelago.

Tokio officially announced that the German torpedo-boat S-90, after escaping under cover of darkness from Tsing Tau, ran ashore at a point south of Kiao Chow bay and was destroyed by the Japanese blockading squadron.

Advices from Bucharest, Rumania, by way of Berlin, reiterates earlier reports that a big Russo-Turkish naval engagement has been fought in the Black sea.

King George and Queen Mary returned to London today from Sandringham.

A report from Berlin via wireless to Sayville, L. I., says it was officially stated that the British submarine E-3 was sunk on Sunday, Oct. 18, by German warships in the North sea.

LUNCH CART MEN FINED

Five bashful appearing keepers of lunch carts made their way up to the bar of the local police court this morning to plead to the charge of selling milk below the standard. In every case the defendant was found guilty.

Joseph McAtee, Moulton avenue and Middlesex street, Joseph L'Heraux, Merrimack and Suffolk streets, William A. Walsh, Western avenue, Alphonse Plourde, Stuckpole and East Merrimack streets, and Albert Allard, Moody and Worthen streets, were the unfortunate brought before Judge Enright today.

The Masters-Coughlin combination had proved too strong for them in every case. Collector Coughlin bottled samples of milk in each lunch cart and then Inspector Masters found it below standard. Five $10 fines was the result of this morning's activities.

Stray Youth Had Revolver

Morris E. Littleton, a youth of eighteen years, was found about one o'clock this morning up at the junction of Central and Middlesex streets by Officer Patrick Clark and stopped as a suspicious character.

When the young fellow failed to answer the officer's questions in a convincing manner he found himself pinched and on the way to the market street toms. When he was searched a revolver came to light aided and abetted by a box of business-like cartridges.

Young Littleton was charged with carrying a pistol and pleaded guilty. He gave short and evasive answers to the questions put to him today and Judge Enright ordered a fine of $5 to be imposed. The defendant gave his home as Taunton but showed little knowledge of that place.

Sold Deceitful Horse

James Jacobson was present at this morning's session as a requested guest, said request being made because Jacobson sold a horse which was unfit for work. And you mustn't sell that kind of a horse.

The officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals who captured the defendant also captured some photos of the horse which was sold. At first inspection a guess was necessary in order to differentiate between a horse and a skeleton.

The poor animal was bleeding at the hoofs, the officer said, and was in a general tumbledown condition. The equine might have been 30 years old, said the witness.

It seems that the defendant brought the animal a distance of six miles or so over the road to an auction here and attempted to sell it there. Falling in this he later sold the pony for $3. Without saying more—it was some story.

The law states plainly that no one shall sell a horse either in public or private which is unable to work. The defendant allowed that he sold the horse to be killed. As a stranger in this city he confided in the court. Stranger or not it cost him $20 to sell a $3 horse.

Stole Detective's Boots

It's going pretty far when a chap with a propensity for other people's belongings picks out a detective to work on, but that's just what Louis W. Muhlrich did one day last July. Louis was accused of "going south" with a pair of rubber boots belonging to M. J. Noyer, the guardian of the majority of Lowell's large corporations.

The major, the parawalker where the defendant sold the boots and several others wound a chain of circumstantial evidence about Louis which really should have proved vastly discouraging. But Louis was very certain that a mistake had been made even when confronted with his own contradictory evidence.

Louis was also asked whether or not he had been drunk. He had been drinking, said the witness, a dignified manner. The third complaint against the defendant accused him of being a shiftless husband.

Judge Enright found him guilty of stealing the boots but withheld sentence until tomorrow when his other two cases will be heard.

Brown Beaten Up

Sumner L. Brown was arrested by Patrolman Connelias and to judge by appearance this morning Sumner looked like a man that was over by the road roller. Both eyes bore evidence of contact with some solid substance, not that we mean to call the officer names or anything like that. The defendant's general appearance seemed to be one of lassitude.

The chief informed the court that Sumner was a nuisance. This is not the first time that he has had an altercation and tried to beat up a cop. The cops have something else to do besides stopping and beating up Sumner every time he starts on a racket. Judge Enright sentenced the defendant to five months in the house of correction. The beating by the cop was thrown in for good measure.

Assaulted Wife

Because his wife did not go to work this morning, Thomas Killeen struck her over the right eye while she was lying asleep in bed, inflicting a bad gash. The woman appeared in court in a weak condition.

The court listened to the defendant's tale and then brusquely waved him from the stand. In spite of the fact that the couple have two small children, Judge Enright did not feel that he could allow such an assault to go unpunished. Killeen was sentenced to four months in the house of correction.

Second Edition CITY COUNCIL APPROVES PUBLIC MARKET TEST

It looks now as if Lowell would have a public market on trial. The public market question will appear on the ballot at the state election and the suggestion that it be given a tryout beforehand in order that the voters might vote intelligently on the subject was offered by O'Sullivan Brothers.

They addressed a letter to Mayor Murphy, a copy of which appeared in The Sun on Saturday, in which they offered the use of a floor in the Association building for a term of 30 days, the space in Worthen street formerly occupied by the "Crystal".

The letter from O'Sullivan Brothers was read at the meeting of the municipal council today and was accepted and placed on file. The city clerk was instructed to notify the lessees of the council's appreciation of their good intentions and while the council has nothing to do in the matter, the intention was expressed the hope that the trial would prove a success. The council voted that the tryout would assist the people to vote intelligently on the public market question.

The council was late, as usual, in getting down to business. The meeting was delayed because of a telephone message received by the mayor from Commissioner Brown who was on his way home from New York. The mayor waited until 11.15 before calling to order and Mr. Brown was still absent, but put in an appearance some after the meeting started.

The first business before the meeting had to do with a petition by the Lowell Electric Light corporation for garage and gasoline licenses. The company asked for a renewal of a permit issued in 1912, the permit having expired. Permission was granted. Then there followed other similar petitions all of which were referred.

A petition by the Bay State Street Railway company, for a relocation in Lawrence street, near Epping street, was voted a hearing Nov. 10. The petition of W. B. Hatch, Horns company, American Safety Tread company, and others for gasoline and garage licenses were set for hearings on Nov. 10.

Francis B. McGrath was appointed a weigher of coal. Kazimierz Podgorski made application for appointment as constable and was given leave to withdraw. Commissioner Carmichael allowed that Lowell has as many constables as are necessary at the present time, and a few extra, and it was on his motion that Mr. Podgorski was given leave to withdraw.

Mayor Registration

The mayor read a letter from the civil service commission stating that the commission would, on Nov. 2, install the system for the registration of city laborers and mechanics and on the mayor's motion it was voted to appropriate $75 for the installation of the system.

Want Their Money

There may come a time when no old bills will be hanging fire at city hall, but the chances are decidedly remote, about as remote as the possibility of resurrecting the Huntington hall fund. Old bills are forever showing their heads at council meetings. Today the mayor read a communication from Thomas Reafferty & P. A. Carlin. The city owes them $1870.48 for paving blocks and they want their money. It has been owed them for a year or more and it will be owed them a while longer as the council voted to refer the matter to the city solicitor.

The State Election

The call for the meeting of the voters for the state election, Nov. 3, was read by the mayor and the order accompanied the call was adopted. The report on the petition of Harry Demarais and others for a sewer in Lawrence street was accepted and an order appropriating $145.00 for the construction of the sewer was adopted.

For Public Square

Mayor Murphy read a communication for the city beautiful committee of the board of trade relative to the use of land in Gorham and Carlisle streets for a public square. It was stated in the letter that the land could be purchased for $160. The mayor thought it would be better to make the land in question a part of the street instead of establishing a square. The matter was referred to the mayor and the commissioner of streets and highways.

School Board Objects

The school committee complains of a sort of robbing Peter to pay Paul, act that has been going on in connection with the building in Kirk street used last year by the high school as a temporary annex. The building, numbered 40 Kirk street and is occupied at the present time. The school committee still continues to pay $50 a month rent for the building while the $50 a month received from the present occupants finds its way to the general treasury. The committee had a communication before the council and it was accepted and placed on file.

Contracts Approved

The contract entered into by Commissioner Donnelly for the plastering of the Kirk street annex to the high school, amounting to $350, was approved, as was also the contract between the purchasing agent and the Hildreth Granite Co. for 250,000, more or less, paving blocks at $37 a thousand.

Sunday's Band Concert

On motion of Commissioner Donnelly the council voted its appreciation of the excellent band concert rendered by the Lowell Musicians union on the South common, last Sunday afternoon, when the new band stand was dedicated.

The council adjourned to meet again on Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

B. & M. RESPONSIBLE

GEORGETOWN, Oct. 20.—In his findings on the inquiry into the deaths of Harry C. Mender and Carlton C. Mender, young brothers of Beverly, who were killed at the King street crossing of the Boston & Maine railroad in Georgetown, Sept. 5, when a train struck the automobile in which they were riding, Judge Otis J. Carlton of this city charges the railroad with responsibility. He has just filed his finding in the superior court at Salem. Judge Carlton finds there is no protection at the crossing by the way of gates, signals or flagman provided by the railroad and further finds that the cause of the accident was the failure of the Boston & Maine to provide suitable protection for travelers on the highway at this point.

POPE DECLINES

Pontiff Would Not Bless the Troops of Austro-Hungary

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Jean de Bonneton, a leading French Catholic, revealed yesterday that Emperor Francis, Joseph of Austro-Hungary, in an autograph letter, implored Pope Benedict XV to bless the Austro-Hungarian army. The pope refused, reminding the Austrian emperor that he is also the spiritual protector of the Serbian Catholics. The kings of Bavaria and Saxony also asked the pope to bless their Catholic troops, but the requests were ignored. St. Bonneton makes public part of the new encyclical on war which Pope Benedict XV completed on Oct. 3rd. In it His Holiness asks: "What would be the position of the papacy materially deprived of liberty and enclosed in a narrow circle of a state, if that state separated it from all communication with civilization or even exposed the person of the pope and the sacred college to a bombardment of Rome, which is always possible in a European war? We don't demand a temporal power, but facilities for the exercise of spiritual power."

The pope assumes the attitude of the guardian of the rights of men and the natural protector of religious buildings belonging to all denominations and hospitals of all nations during war. Benedict XV also refers diplomatically to the capitulations abolished by Turkey to which the Vatican was one of the contracting parties.

KEY OF TROY TO EVERS

TEN BANDS, SEVERAL DRUM CORPS AND 6000 MEN IN LINE AS JOHNNY COMES MARCHING HOME

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Troy gave Johnny Evers, champion of Boston Braves, the world's champion, a rousing reception last night upon his return to his home in this city. There was a parade with 10 bands and several drum corps and more than 5000 men in line.

Nearly every organization in the city, including the chamber of commerce and the fire companies, were represented, besides many prominent business men. The marchers carried baseball bats and red fire, and each wore a large button the size of a tea saucer and which bore Evers' picture. Capt. Evers rode at the head of the column in an automobile with Mayor Burns and other city officials, and he was wildly cheered all the way. The streets were crowded with spectators and Greek fire illuminated the line of march.

After the parade there was a banquet at the state armory, at which about 500 guests were present. Evers was welcomed by Mayor Burns, and he responded briefly, expressing his appreciation of the honor shown him by his fellow-townsmen.

Among those present were: James F. Gaffney, president of the Boston Nationals; Joseph J. Lannin, president of the Boston Americans; Harry N. Harpstead, president of the New York Giants; Edward Barrows, president of the International League; George Stallings, manager of the world's champions; John B. Foster, secretary of the New York Nationals; John J. Medraw, manager of the Giants; John M. Cowen, commissioner of records, New York City, and Charles E. Gehring, superintendent of public records, New York City.

The annual address by the president, Mrs. Katherine L. Stevenson of Boston, was followed by the presentation of reports by department officials. The convention will last through Thursday.

ON COMPENSATION ACT

A hearing coming under the workmen's compensation act was held at city hall this forenoon and it was the shortest hearing of its kind on record at city hall. The case had to do with Adolphus Johnson who was injured while in the employ of James P. Robinson & Sons. The accident responsible for the injury, occurred on May 25, last, on a farm in Billerica. In attempting to get on a wagon the man's foot slipped and he fell heavily to the ground where he remained for three or four hours before assistance arrived. He was finally removed to the hospital and was attended by Dr. McAdams. An X-ray examination by Dr. Joseph McNeahan disclosed the fact that Mr. Johnson had dislocated and fractured a vertebra. It was stated at the hearing that he had just regained the use of his hands. He was receiving $12 a week at the time of the injury and the insurance company expressed its willingness to continue to pay the usual amount, one half of the wages he incurred one was receiving at the time of the accident, until such time as he is able to work again.

Mayor Dennis J. Murphy was counsel for the petitioner and a Mr. Luthin of Boston appeared for the insurance company. The arbitrators were Dudley L. Holman, for the industrial board, Commissioner James H. Carmichael for the injured and Mr. Baycroft for the insurance company.

SEIZED AS PRIZE OF WAR

NO LEGAL PROCEEDINGS EXPECTED IN CASE OF AMERICAN STEAMER

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 20.—No legal proceedings were expected to be taken today in the case of the American tank steamer Brindilla, seized as a prize of war and towed here by a British cruiser on Sunday. It was explained that the steamer employed by the British admiralty have not had time to prepare the necessary papers. The Brindilla was recently transferred from German to American registry. Local attorneys generally believe that this case will be one of the most important in international law and that the validity of the transfer and also the validity of the congressional act by which the United States provided for American registry for foreign built and owned ships will be tested. It is pointed out that if Great Britain refuses to recognize transfers of registry after a declaration of war, a situation international viewpoint will be opened. Halifax experts in admiralty law admit that they are not familiar with all the provisions of the recent act of the United States congress permitting changes in registry and therefore are uncertain whether the act conflicts with the provisions promulgated in the declaration of war regarding transfer of belligerent ships.

The British prize crew remained on board the Brindilla today, but the steamer has not yet been handed over to the prize court marshal.

Case of Rabbi Wolfson Heard in Probate Court—Louis N. Price Opposed Petition

The court house on Graham street was a busy place for a few hours this forenoon as three courts were in session from 10 o'clock until long after noon. The regular session of civil superior court was resumed after a day's adjournment while the monthly sitting of probate court also was held today.

In the contested session of probate court, Judge McIntire presiding, Rabbi Elias Wolfson of this city and his wife, Annie, entered a petition asking that they be allowed to adopt their grandchild, William Herbert Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Price, and change his name to Wolfson. Frank Goldman appeared for the petitioners, and J. L. O'Neill for the respondent.

Rabbi and Mrs. Wolfson, in their petition, allege that Louis N. Price has willfully deserted and neglected to provide proper care for the maintenance of the child for the past two years; and that the mother, Sarah N. Price, is confined in the state hospital at Danvers. They ask that the child be adopted by them, and that his name be changed to William Herbert Wolfson.

Three witnesses testified before Judge Lawton. He afterward declared that he would reserve his decision until a later date. Rabbi Wolfson, who resides on Howard street, told the court that he is the father of Sarah Price, aged 36 years. He stated that his daughter and son-in-law formerly lived in Framingham but a few weeks before the last child was born. Mrs. Price left her husband and went to her parents' home in Lowell. The boy, whose adoption is petitioned for, was born on April 13, 1912. The witness stated that since that time Mr. Price has never been to his house to see or inquire for the health of the child, although on several occasions he has met the older boy outside and talked to him for hours at a time.

Mr. Wolfson stated that he would like to adopt the boy William. He said that for 22 months after the boy was born he received nothing from the father toward the support of the child. Later he received a check for five dollars with a letter saying that the money was for the child's support. Several checks for the same amount were received after that time, it was said.

Cross-examined, Rabbi Wolfson said that he never tried to avoid Mr. Price when out walking with the child and never asked anyone else to keep the child one away from his father. He said he did not cash the checks because he did not believe they were in payment for the child's keeping.

HORSE LEAPS INTO AUTO

NORTH ADAMS, Oct. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Floyd A. Pattison of Holden st. were cut and bruised last night when a runaway horse leaped into their automobile.

Mr. Pattison was driving the machine, a light runabout, toward West Main street to go around a wagon-load of bricks. A horse was coming toward the auto on the run and there was no room for him to pass between the wagon and the auto, so he leaped through the windshield and landed with both forefeet in Mr. Pattison's lap.

Pedestrians rushed to the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Pattison and removed the horse, after which Mr. and Mrs. Pattison were taken to a nearby house. Dr. T. D. Stafford later took them to their home.

Mr. Pattison had several bad scalp wounds and it is feared a serious head injury. Mrs. Pattison sustained a few slight cuts and suffered from shock.

MEGAN'S STARS

Two three men, bowling teams, composed of employees of The Sun engaged in a little contest on the alleys last night and while no records were broken a few pins were and the alley boys had several narrow escapes.

The rivalry was intense and when a man on the opposing team would fall down or have a chance for a spare the shouting, especially when George Tighe's fog horn got going, resembled the German army shouting the Antwerp forts.

Well, after a close fight all the way the trio rolling under the name of Sullivan's Pets came out on the long end of the score, having just 14 pins to spare. What were the scores? Oh, yes, well the writer doesn't want his beneficiary to collect yet, so the scores are omitted. Suffice it to say that the game was a hummer and after a little practice Fred Philotte, who failed to pilot his team to victory, will be back with a challenge and the smiles "adorning the countenances of the 'Big Three' today will be supplanted by gloomy expressions—"may he," say the winners. The lineups and not the scores were as follows:

Sullivan's Pets: Joe Sullivan, George Tighe and Arlene Guy.
Finnegan's Stars: Frank Finnegan, Fred Philotte and Capt. Mr. Arthur St. Hilaire.

Game Commissioners Refuse to Act on Protests — Pheasants Liberated Solely as Game Bird

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Chairman George W. Field of Sharon and George H. Graham of Springfield, members of the Massachusetts fish and game commission, in spite of state-wide protests, refused yesterday to take action relative to the slaughter of pheasants throughout the state.

According to a special act of the legislature, these two men, together with W. C. Adams of Winthrop, have absolute jurisdiction pertaining to the shooting of the pheasant, and it is in their power to shorten the season or stop altogether the shooting of these birds, which, according to scores of sportsmen, will be wiped out if the present shooting privilege is allowed to continue.

"Had No Complaints"

Commissioner Graham maintains that the pheasant was originally introduced into the state to be killed by hunters, and that, inasmuch as the hunter pays good money to the state treasury, he should be allowed to kill them.

And while scores of men high in professional life and in the world of sport cry that it is an outrage and a wholesale slaughter, the three commissioners say, "We have had no complaints therefore why should we stop the hunter from killing them?"

Cleaned Out in 1907

The present season on pheasants was opened by the fish and game commissioners on Oct. 12, for the first time since 1907, when the males were so heavily cleaned up that it became necessary to put the ban on them again during the very next season. This ban has been on ever since and prominent sportsmen say that it is a pity to clean the birds out again just when they are getting a real foothold in the state.

Some insist that the season should be closed for at least two or three years more, while others say that a week is plenty enough time in which to shoot them. The present season does not end until Nov. 12.

The storm of protest against the slaughter of the birds, this season, which began with the wiping out of 3000 on Columbus day, gained tremendously yesterday and resulted in definite steps being taken by sportsmen in the eastern section of the commonwealth to put an end to the needless slaughter of the semi-domesticated birds.

Dr. Cabot's Plan

Dr. Hugh Cabot of the Back Bay has come forward with the plan of vesting in the governor full power to shut off a disastrous open season whenever it has been found that needless destruction is resulting to any species of animal or bird life, and he has back of him such well-known sportsmen as Collector of the Port Edmund Billings and Joshua Crane.

Dr. Cabot's idea was expressed yesterday afternoon. "I have read of the great numbers of pheasants killed, it seems to me needlessly, by hunters of Massachusetts during the first few days of the open season, and I think the slaughter should be shut off right away."

"The pheasant is an easy bird to get, especially to a man who has had experience shooting partridge and quail. My plan would be to vest more power in the governor of the commonwealth, so that he might shorten the season declared by the

A QUAIN LUNCHEON

"I am going to give a 'going away' luncheon to my niece before she starts for school and I want you to help me," pleaded Marjorie.

"Of course I will," answered helpful Marie. "Why don't you make it an aster luncheon?"

"If you'll tell me how," delightedly replied Marjorie.

"An aster luncheon given by your aunt last year was so pretty that I am sure a description will help you," said Marie.

"An aster means a 'star'—the centerpiece was a star-shaped form made of thin; it was filled with delicate pink and lavender radiating cardboard and the names were written in white ink."

"There was a corsage bouquet at each plate with a long violet headed pin. Pinkish lavender is a charming daytime color, but it does not light up well, so as the day was not an artificial light was used, not even candles."

"There was no attempt made to carry out the color scheme in the food except candied violets were sprinkled over the top of the pineapple ice, which was served in tall glasses with pink lace paper doilies underneath; the plates were decorated in violets and the effect was lovely."

"For diversion the hostess provided easy chairs, hammocks and cushions, a box of delicious candy, a bowl of feed tea made strong with lemon and pineapple juice and then she proceeded to read aloud a most fascinating story."

"It was time to depart all too soon, and one of the guests facetiously remarked that 'she was so glad the hostess 'aster' and everyone was kind enough to forgive the horrible pun, as it voiced the sentiments of all present."

fish and game commission on animals and birds as the results of the first few days demand. I would give him the right to close the season abruptly on certain species, his ruling to be held good till the next meeting of the legislature could meet to act on the matter."

"This, in my opinion, would put a check on any unwise thing which might result from a too long initial open season. It is obvious to anyone now that the open season on pheasants is too long at this time, and the governor ought to be able to act whenever such an open season threatens the establishment of birds here, especially after so much money has been spent to import a species."

Commissioner's View
The following statement was issued by the fish and game commission yesterday:

"The fish and game commission has had called to its attention the articles in the press referring to the slaughter of pheasants. While the commissioners do not care to enter into any controversy on the proposition, they deem it wise to point out to the public the following propositions:

"First—The pheasants were liberated in this commonwealth primarily and solely as game birds.
"Second—Unlike the quail and the ruffed grouse, the artificial propagation has developed to the point where they can be bred and raised in large numbers at a reasonable expense.
"Third—Their qualities as a game bird are pronounced, and the alleged amenity of the pheasant is entirely over-estimated or over-described to the public.
"The shooting of pheasants will direct a large percentage of the shooting population to the pursuit of these birds and away from the quail, ruffed grouse and woodcock, over the production of which latter birds man has today very little control.

Regulress Report
"The last session of the legislature authorized the commissioners to open the season on pheasants in such counties as it appeared to them advisable, and subject to such bag limits and other regulations as they deemed necessary. The commissioners opened the season in seven counties, namely, Barnstable, Norfolk, Essex, Middlesex, Worcester, Hampden and Berkshire. They provided a bag limit of two birds a day, or six in a season, and further required that a report be sent to the state house of the date upon which birds were killed, the number and the sex, and the town in which they were killed."

"The first consideration, as pointed out above, is that these birds were placed in the covers at a substantial expense, but through revenues very largely, if not entirely, supplied by the sportsmen themselves. There is plenty of opportunity for that portion of the public which desires to increase the supply of insectivorous birds to carry on an active campaign to bring back some of these useful species, and the sportsman is essentially a game bird. The talk of being 'game' as chickens is all very true in certain instances, but the same thing is equally true of any other varieties of game birds during the breeding season. It is entirely possible to get whole coveys of quail on the ground, and in some sections of the country partridges when budding on the trees in the winter, but if a pheasant is hunted as a game bird, over a dog, his qualities as a game bird are many."

The Pictures Are Before You CHOOSE!

"NAP-A-MINIT"

USED BY DR. GAGNON IN HIS SUPERIOR PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old, harsh method employed to this day by many dentists: Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work, and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation; a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTISE IT. This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to CHOOSE if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at my offices? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value-giving dental offices in New England.

Dissolution Suit is on Docket for Final Argument Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—After testimony has been taken in different sections of the country during the greater part of the last three years the government's suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation on the ground that its creation was a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law was on the docket of the United States district court here today for final argument. The suit was filed in the United States court for the district of New Jersey Oct. 28, 1911, and was transferred to Philadelphia for argument before judges of the third judicial court.

The government asks that the corporation be broken up into the numerous companies that had been merged illegally, the government alleges, into the gigantic concern. The court is asked to divide under wholly independent ownerships, the following companies controlled by the Steel corporation:

The Carnegie Steel Co. of New Jersey, National Steel Co., American Steel Hoop Co., American Sheet & Tin Plate Co., American Tin Co., American Sheet Steel Co., Federal Steel Co., American Steel & Wire Co., National Tube Co., Steel Corporation, other than those of the Tennessee Co. he divided among the Clairton, Union and

WANT AMERICAN AUTOS

French Factories Closed—British Need Cars—Great Demand for American Machines

These are days of thrilling adventures and experiences for American representatives in Europe, said a foreign representative of an American company upon his arrival in New York the other day.

The sea is well patrolled by British cruisers, and our trip over was without incident, although there was an atmosphere of suppressed excitement that kept the passengers keyed up.

The great war has affected the production of British-made automobiles but slightly, but that fact will have no bearing on the greater opportunities for American export that will eventually grow out of the struggle.

While the factories are running overtime they are producing cars for government service.

The French factories are all closed, not from want of money, but from lack of labor. Every able-bodied man from 16 to 65 years of age is in the front. The factory organization will be so badly demoralized at the close of the war that it will require months, if not years, for plants to return to full production. There should be a big demand for trucks and delivery vans and automobiles of low and medium price.

This fact should give American makers their opportunity, for the car now in the army will be short-lived owing to the fact that factories are not in position to furnish damaged parts in the few days used by the armies can ever be returned to the owners.

European countries, with the exception of Great Britain, are and will be at the close of the war practically without automobiles. There should be, therefore, a great market for American cars.

Auto Business Readjusted

The automobile business has gradually become readjusted so that sound judgment prevails among manufacturers and consumers alike. The day has passed when a man's enthusiasm to own and drive a car will make him lose sight of the business side of the proposition at the time of buying. It is an easy matter to tell a man that a car is simple and that all parts are accessible, but the shrewd man insists on having it proved to him that such is the case. The manufacturer realizes that if he is to continue in business it is to his interest to build a car that will give years of continued satisfaction.

Common sense will tell a man that a cluttered up engine will not last as long as the neatly designed, clean cut engine, and the tendency is to eliminate all complications and make one part do the work of two parts in a better way. A chassis with a few parts cannot wear out as quickly and make the noise that one with many parts will.

The thinking man is looking for economy and he will hesitate in buying gasoline for a car that has a weight of around 100 pounds per passenger when he can get the same convenience and pleasure from one with but 600 pounds weight per passenger. He knows it is expensive to push the extra 100 pounds around just for the fun of it. The foolishness of useless weight has been realized and the automobile designer is doing much to reduce it. The result is that the mileage per gallon of gasoline is being doubled. The sensible man is going deeper than the horse and stock market and the body finish. The combining of all the good points of motor car construction in one car appeals, and saves much expediting on the part of the manufacturer and dealer.

Complications Eliminated

fought shy of them. They had the money and the inclination, but lacked the necessary confidence in the cars themselves. This was due to a measure to the complicated construction of the operating devices and the machinery in general.

This fault has been entirely eliminated in the modern automobile. A man no longer worries about a hurried and one thing while driving his car and does not have to familiarize himself with each and every little detail of its construction. After one or two lessons he acquires the necessary confidence and all that remains for him to do is to follow a few set rules.

There was a time when a man did not feel safe in taking his family out unless he had an experienced chauffeur at the wheel. There were so many things liable to happen at a moment's notice, requiring the attention of a practical man, that he did not care to take a chance on his own meager knowledge of the car. But those times have passed. The young son or daughter nowadays is just as expert at driving as the father and it is a common occurrence to see the junior member of a touring party piloting the car across country. In fact the operation is so simple that the father often finds the garage empty when he least expects it.

Report Ward Bros. of Extermination of Birds is, Feared—Slaughter Not Sport

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Local baseball clubs were started today by a report that the Ward brothers, backers of the Brooklyn Federal league club, were negotiating for the purchase of the New York American league club. The report carried a rider to the effect that this move was the first of a series which would eventually restore peace in the ranks of organized and independent baseball.

Frank J. Farrell, president of the local American league club, denied there was a particle of truth in the story. He said that he had never discussed the sale of the Yankees with any federal league owners or representatives and that the club was not for sale.

The report, Mr. Farrell said, "is without grain of truth. My club is not on the market at any price."

Robert B. Ward, president of the Brooklyn Federal club, had been approached by a man in no way connected with baseball, who said that the New York Americans were on the market and who asked him to purchase the club. Mr. Ward said that in reply he answered that he could consider the proposition if the price was right and the other Federal league clubowners protected and recognized by the majors. This was as far as negotiations had gone.

RT. REV. BISHOP ANDERSON

CONFIRMED 250 CHILDREN AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, NO. CHELMSFORD, YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

For the first time in six years a class of children received the sacrament of confirmation at St. John's church, No. Chelmsford yesterday. Right Rev. Bishop Anderson was the prelate. The church auditorium was filled to its capacity during the services, which opened at 3 o'clock and continued for nearly two hours.

The boys and girls, 250 in number, assembled at the church rectory shortly before 3 o'clock and marched to the church, only a short distance away. As the procession entered the church Miss Grady Quigley, organist, played the "Venite Creator" and the choir sang the hymn. The 250 children who assembled in the front of the church represented North Chelmsford, Granville and the Middlesex county training school, the large class being due to the fact that no confirmation has been held in the town for several years.

Following the hymn, Bishop Anderson delivered a short address to the children, emphasizing the importance of the day to them and giving them some strong advice for the future. The children were then confirmed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Anderson, with John R. McMahon acting as sponsor for the boys and Miss Kate Connolly of Granville for the girls.

At the benediction which followed the Rt. Rev. Bishop Anderson acted as celebrant and he was assisted by Rev. Edmund Schofield, deacon, and Rev. E. C. Mitchell, subdeacon.

AT NORTH CHELMSFORD

REV. EDMUND T. SCHOFIELD OBSERVES 34TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS PASTORATE

Rev. Edmund T. Schofield of St. John's church, No. Chelmsford, Sunday celebrated his 34th anniversary as pastor of the parish. There was no formal celebration of any kind but Fr. Schofield received the best wishes of many of his parishioners for many more years of health and happiness in his good work. Fr. Schofield has been pastor since his coming to North Chelmsford, 13 years ago and during his stay has witnessed the loss, through death, of many of the oldest members of the parish. A younger generation has grown up during his incumbency and to these young people he now looks for the future success of the parish.

Fr. Schofield was the celebrant at both masses in the morning and during the course of his remarks he referred to the anniversary which he was celebrating, and told his parishioners that it was his wish that there should be no formalities of any kind. On the 17th of December, the venerable priest will celebrate his 34th anniversary as a priest and that day will be one of rejoicing among the people of the parish.

At the second mass in the morning Edward P. Shea, William Gookin and John Dalton, composed a trio, sang at the offertory and after Holy Communion. Their singing was very effective and was highly appreciated by the members of the congregation.

Will Die of Starvation Unless Succored by the United States

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—More than 100,000 men, women and children will die of starvation in Albania before Christmas unless succored by the United States, declares the Rev. William Howard of New York, a missionary, before the weekly meeting of Baptist ministers here today.

The present war is not to blame, he explained. The plight of the Albanians is due to the devastation of the Greek and Serbian armies, which, he said, destroyed 300 villages and killed 200,000 men, women and children. Shiploads of provisions must be sent in haste to prevent famine, the speaker urged.

THE BOARD OF TRADE

MEETING OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE HELD YESTERDAY—BUSINESS DISCUSSED

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Lowell board of trade yesterday a communication was read from the Middlesex Women's club asking that the board of trade cooperate with the club in promoting an educational campaign for the suppression of tuberculosis.

The committee decided to refer the matter to the board of trade committee on public health with instructions to assist the Middlesex Women's club in every possible way in what seemed to be a matter of public interest and importance.

There was discussion of the coming general meeting of the board of trade which will be held at Middlesex and Colonial halls on Thursday evening, November 5, at 6:30 o'clock. A light buffet lunch will be served and the evening will be devoted to some speaking and possibly to other forms of entertainment. It is hoped to secure a speaker of national or international reputation to talk on the European war and its effect on the United States. A line is already out to secure the presence of one of the foremost authorities on the subject and announcement of the name will be made as soon as an acceptance is received.

At the meeting of the municipal affairs committee to be held Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, Representative Dennis A. Murphy will appear before the committee and explain the provisions of the public market bill and tell why he believes that it will be a benefit to Lowell. Representative Murphy introduced the bill relative to a public market in this city. Other business will be taken up at that time.

Colonel Leaves Chicago, Ill., for Gary, Ind., by Automobile Today—Time for Progressive Party to Gain Recruits

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Clad in the big army coat that saw service in Cuba, that was pierced by an assassin's bullet at Milwaukee and later protected him against the maelstrom vapors of South America, Col. Roosevelt went from this city to Gary, Ind., by automobile today.

The colonel's program today included two speeches, one at Gary in behalf of former Senator Beveridge, progressive candidate for the United States senate from Indiana and a big mass meeting here tonight in furtherance of the senatorial candidacy of Raymond Robins.

In his remarks at Gary, Col. Roosevelt declared this was the time for recruits of the progressive party to come forward. The candidacy of James Watson, he said, was an attempt to bring a political corpse to life. Murphy and Barnes, he said, belonged to different parties, "but you couldn't get a sheet of tissue paper between them so far as any real difference exists."

EXEMPT FROM SEIZURE

PRESIDENT WILSON TALKS OF REPORTED SEIZURE OF AMERICAN SHIP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—President Wilson has not been officially informed of the seizure of the American steamer Brindilla by a British cruiser but told callers he was following the case with interest.

Generally speaking, the president said, a ship of a neutral nation, bound from one neutral port to another, is exempt from seizure. He added, however, that he did not know enough of the particulars to say what position would be taken by the American government.

Acting Secretary Lansing of the state department received a message from the American consul general at Halifax reporting the arrival of the Brindilla under convoy of the British auxiliary cruiser Caronia. No details of the circumstances of the seizure were given and Mr. Lansing said that in the absence of further information no expression of opinion would be made by the department.

PRESIDENT WILSON TO UNDERWOOD

Could the letter of President Wilson to Chairman Underwood, relating to the work of the present session of congress, be read by every intelligent voter in the United States, and judged in a non-partisan spirit, it would prove the most convincing campaign document of the moment. Meant to be read by the general public and also meant to take the place, in part, of the personal speeches which the president had intended to give in many districts before critical international matters caused him to alter his plans, it is a masterly review of a fruitful and beneficial congressional session and incidentally a most convincing argument for the continuation of the democratic party in the control of government.

Without beating about the bush or making any apologies for his statement, the president, in the first paragraph, declares his firm conviction that "the people of the country have been served by the members of this congress as they have seldom, if ever, been served before." The one main intention of this service he declares to have been "to destroy private control and set business free." To demonstrate how it has been done, he declares: "That purpose was manifest enough in the case of the tariff and in the legislation affecting trusts; but, though perhaps less evident upon the surface there, it lay at the very heart of the currency bill, too." He adds that the freedom of business "has been the object of the foreign policy of the government during the last 18 months."

Then follows a discussion of the tariff which the chief executive calls the safest hiding place and covert of private control. He regrets that the war in Europe started before the new law could vindicate itself, and he also expresses regret that the falling off in revenue makes a war tax necessary, but he emphasizes a point seldom mentioned by economists or politicians of any party, viz: that "The import duties collected under the old tariff constituted a much larger proportion of the whole revenue of the government than do the duties under the new. A still larger proportion of the revenue would have been cut off by the war had the old taxes stood, and a larger war tax would have been necessary as a consequence."

With splendid condensation and characteristic clearness of expression, he deals with the subject of monopoly, declaring that the total rejection of monopoly is the point on which the democratic party differs from all other parties most sharply. "We have seen," he said, "the nature and the power of monopoly exhibited. We know that it is more apt to control government than to be controlled by it; for we have seen it control government, dictate legislation, and dominate executives and courts." To this there is no answer that does not agree with his subjoined declaration: "We will not consent that an ungovernable giant should be reared to full stature in the very household of the government itself."

The letter does not conclude with the necessarily limited review mentioned. It contains a summary of the program of constructive legislation remaining unfinished. The president calls attention particularly to the necessity for building up the merchant marine and "the completion of a great program for the conservation of our natural resources and the development of the water power of the country." He also says truly that "without a congress in close sympathy with the administration a whole scheme of peace and honor and disinterested service to the world, of which they have approved, cannot be brought to its full realization."

Having gone over the record of achievement and forecasted the future, the president had good reason to say in conclusion:

The democratic party is now in fact the only instrument ready to the country's hand by which anything can be accomplished. It is united, as the republican party is not; it is strong and full of the zest of sober achievement, and has been rendered confident by carrying out a great constructive program such as no other party has attempted; it is absolutely free from the entangling alliances which made the republican party, even before its rupture, utterly unserviceable as an instrument of reform; its thought, its ambition, its plans are of the vital present and the hopeful future. A practical nation is not likely to reject such a team, full of the spirit of public service, and substitute, in the midst of great tasks, either a party upon which a deep democratization has fallen or a party which has not grown to the stature that would warrant its assuming the responsible burdens of state. Every thoughtful man sees that a change of parties made just now would set the clock back, not forward. I have a very complete and very confident belief in the practical sagacity of the American people.

IRELAND AND THE WAR

The fate of Ireland is linked with that of England in the present war and were it not for the protection afforded by the British navy, the Emerald Isle might suffer as much from German aggression as did poor little Belgium.

For the past ten, or we might say fifteen, years England has done more for Ireland than for her own people and as a result Ireland today is under preeminently just laws, while the people enjoy a degree of prosperity never excelled since the days of Grattan's parliament. All that is now needed is a measure of local self government to increase that prosperity and provide industrial opportunities for a much larger population so that the stream of emigration may be stopped and the people remain contented and happy in their own land.

If the Irish people want to safeguard home rule they should follow the advice of their distinguished leader, Mr. Redmond, who foresees the disaster that might come from any attitude of indifference or of antagonism to England in her death struggle with Germany.

For many years past the Irish leader and his party pleaded for home rule on the ground that it would go far to overcome the enmity of the Irish race towards England on account of her mistreatment of Ireland in the past.

The time has come to test the sincerity of these professions of good feeling as a result of granting home rule. If the people follow Mr. Redmond's wise counsel they may not only save home rule but avert subjugation by Germany.

If Germany should win in this war all the reforms won by Ireland during the last twenty years would be tumbled down like a house of cards and rule and most of the other liberties they have won, through the old curse of disunion. The question is, "Why should not Ireland help to fight her own battles and thus not only save her promised freedom but help avert the threatened subjugation by Germany and all this would mean in a realm of militarism under which the Irish Nationalists would have to fight the battles of Germany whether they liked it or not. In such a national crisis every country, and especially Ireland, should look to its accredited leaders whose patriotism, honesty and statesmanship have been well tried, rather than follow the fomenters of factional strife whose counsels would lead to national disaster."

BRIGHT SPOTS

It is refreshing to find that from entirely unexpected quarters appeals are being issued to the American public to forget the dark side of the business situation due to the European war and to cultivate a cheerful attitude. "Fibre and Fabric," the well known weekly review of the American trade, is one of the latest to sound the clarion call of optimism, advising its readers to "consider the bright spots in the situation" instead of "casting about for lame ducks." Then in the best manner of a business journal it proceeds to enumerate some bright spots that presage sunshine when the clouds are blown away.

One of the bright spots mentioned is the greater use of fabrics in the manufacture of shoes than ever before. Most of the expensive skins used in the manufacture of high grade shoes have come from abroad, particularly from Russia and Germany, and since the supply is cut off almost entirely, the American textile manufacturer has been called upon to supply a substitute. Even before the war there was a tendency to use American textile products in the manufacture of shoes, but now the war has made it imperative. Lowell, in common with other textile centers, will reap the benefit.

The textile journal also predicts a larger export trade, not only with South America but with Europe after the cessation of hostilities. "There is every reason," it says, "for expecting a greater volume of business. It may not come next week, nor all at once, but it is inevitable, and this is the time to prepare for it." If the other influential trade papers of the country could put aside their lobbying activities and their desires to influence party politics, and preach instead the good old patriotic doctrine of optimism, not only would it encourage the public to look for bright spots but it would bring bright spots to gloomy corners. When there is such good reason for confidence, it is a shame that any interest should deliberately strive to spread feelings of diffidence or pessimism.

THE OPEN SEASON

In lifting the ban which he had imposed on hunting until the rain made it less dangerous, Governor Walsh expressed the hope that the sport will not be indulged in to such an extent as to endanger the existence of any species of game. That his hint was timely is well proved by the returns made since the permit to hunt was given. During the first day, 3000 pheasants are reported shot, probably an under statement. Considering the fact that there are 65,000 hunters in Massachusetts and that others up to the number of 100,000 are permitted to shoot on their own property, there is grave danger that the pheasant will be almost entirely exterminated—each hunter being permitted by law to shoot six.

Among the many who regret this state of things are hundreds who regard it in an economic rather than in a sentimental sense. Pheasants have been propagated and protected for years at great expense and their wholesale slaughter would endanger their existence entirely and make it necessary for the state to introduce them again. Whether a week or two of cruel sport for the few is worth this very questionable. Indeed, the testimony of the hunters is, that the pheasants are so common that there is no difficulty in killing them. The extermination of such a beautiful and useful species would be a reproach to the citizens of Massachusetts and it would not do much to establish the reputation of our public for common sense. Something should be done before it is too late to prevent the "sport" of the few from destroying what is of benefit to the people as a whole.

NORTHERN BATTLE LINE

Since the taking of Ostend, battle forecasters have talked quite freely about the designs of Germany on England, basing their arguments on the apparent desire of the Germans for positions on the channel, as near the English coast as possible. Many take this as an indication of an invasion of England, a possibility that is feared by many residents of England. It does not follow, however, that Germany will attempt any invasion on a large scale at the present time. To do so would be to invite annihilation by the English navy which up to the present has been almost powerless, owing to German naval inactivity. All manner of tales are afloat about long-distance siege guns and Zeppelins to be used in the attacks on England, but they are without sure foundation. Germany seems to be facing a long struggle and is making preparations to entrench her forces strongly in Belgium. Nevertheless the proximity of the Germans must keep England in an anxious state of mind, until some definite plan of warfare is revealed along the northern end of the battle line.

VOTERS WILL DECIDE

Citizens who are annoyed at the rumors and counter rumors involving a commissioner at city hall, and who are asking the mayor to take some definite action to bring matters to a head, should have patience a little longer. FREE SPEECH

So far these United States have done very little in exercising a strict neutrality with respect to the European war. The rank and file of the people have their opinions and they express them. It is the duty of the government to have a slight taint of rabidness either in the press or among the people. As a nation we have evinced cool-headedness that is somewhat remarkable in view of the fact that the greatest war struggle within the realm of recorded history now takes place. —Worcester Gazette.

HOW TO STOP STOMACH TORMENT

Sound Advice From a Well-Known Physician

Men and women who suffer from what they call "Dyspepsia," indigestion or just plain "stomach-trouble" usually seek regular relief in the form of some pill, opium or tablet, or other artificial aid. This experience teaches me, is a serious error. It is caused by the development of acids in the stomach, formed by the fermenting of the food. Instead of a digestant, being required, something should be taken to dissolve or neutralize this acidity, when normal digestion will follow as a matter of course. This acid matter is distinctly poisonous and unless it is dissolved, digestion merely carries the mass of fermenting food from the stomach to the intestines, where its poison is absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body.

If all the great army of people who suffer after nearly every meal would make it a point to take a teaspoonful of Dissolved Magnesia in a quarter glass of water after each meal, there would be no formation of acidity and consequently no distress or discomfort. Sour, flat, gassy stomach, heartburn, belching, bloating, etc., would then be a thing of the past. "Dissolved Magnesia" is a physician's prescription. It is inexpensive and can be obtained at any drug store. It is prepared for just such trouble and the best proof of its efficiency is that it will stop the sharpest, biting stomach distress in five minutes from the time it enters the stomach, simply by dissolving the acids that have been formed there. Its action is absolutely harmless.

close of the war we shall doubtless find that not only our brilliant but many of our most brilliant lives have been ended. The death of Vanni Marcoux, the Boston Opera singer is a case in point. THE MUNSTERBERG MATTER

Harvard seems likely to end the Munsterberg incident by requesting the professor to withdraw his resignation and ignoring the threat of Captain Clarence Walker of London to withdraw a tentative legacy of $10,000. Harvard can better afford to lose $10,000 than to consent to the throwing out of its most popular and most learned professors, under such circumstances. —Newport News.

THE WELCOME RAIN

After 47 days of drought, rain has come to the relief of the thirsty land. It has been a long time without the moisture of the gentle rain. The forests have suffered from the drying process which has turned the fallen leaves to tinder, ready to take up a carelessly dropped spark and destroy the beauty which has required centuries to produce. Had the rain come earlier large tracts of woodland would not now be blackened patches of burned tree trunks, offensive to the eye and sore reminders of heavy losses to the owners of the property. To the forest fire fighters the rain came as a powerful reinforcement, welcome and timely. The forest fire fighters say that there is water on his crops, even though it is too late to be of much service. —Lynn Item.

Mr. Kelley was a Civil war veteran and was well known in the business field in this city. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted three times, each time being taken out by his father on account of his age. He persisted in his efforts to fight for his country, however, and Aug. 28, 1862, enlisted at Worcester. Sept. 30 he was mustered in as a private in the 51st Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. He fought in many skirmishes and battles while in the service.

He was honorably discharged from service May 30, 1865, at Newbern, N. C. Jordan at Haverhill Jan. 21, 1873. Mr. Kelley came to Lawrence directly after the close of the war. For a number of years he was an overseer at the old Sutton mills at North Andover. Later he was employed at the Atlantic mills in this city, remaining with the latter concern for many years. He was at one time in the grocery business. He is a member of Needham Post No. 39, G. A. R. He is survived by a widow and two sons, B. Frank and Charles E., and two grandsons, Charles E. and G. Frank Kelley.

AN ALLEGED CONFESSION

BOSTON POLICE HAVE NO KNOWLEDGE OF REPORT THAT LION TRAINER KILLED MAN

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Police officials today said they had no knowledge of an alleged confession by a lion trainer here that he had shot Emerson Dietrich, whose body was found in a cage of lions in Chicago last June. They were unable to state who sent the telegram from this city signed "Chief Hapla" and telling of the supposed confession which was received yesterday by Dietrich's father, Ernest G. Dietrich, an architect of Brooklyn, N. Y. The lion show of which Dietrich formerly was manager appeared in this city two weeks ago but the troupe is no longer here. It is understood that the young woman exhibitor of the lions, who was in Chicago at the time of Dietrich's death is now in Bayonne, N. J.

MGR. BENSON IS DEAD

SON OF ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, WHO JOINED CATHOLIC CHURCH, PASSED AWAY

SALFORD, Eng. Oct. 20.—Mgr. Robert Hugh Benson, son of the late archbishop of Canterbury, died here yesterday.

Mgr. Benson's conversion to Catholicism, in view of his father's position as head of the church of England, created a sensation at the time he entered the Catholic church.

After being educated at Eton, Mgr. Benson read for orders with Dean Vaughan and served as curate at Plean and Kensing. He was received into the Catholic church in 1903 by Fr. Reginald Buckner and was ordained a priest in Rome a year later. He was made a private chamberlain to Pope Pius X. in 1911 and attained widespread renown as an author.

Mgr. Benson is widely known in America through his lecture tours. His lectures at the church of Our Lady of Lourdes in New York city last Lent will be remembered.

Mgr. Benson attained renown as an author. Some of his publications are: "The Light Invisible," "A Book of the Love of Jesus," "By What Authority," "The Religion of the Plain Man," "The Neogrammers," "None Other Gods" and "Christ in the Church," as well as many magazines and newspaper articles.

One of his most recent articles was a denunciation of the German Emperor in which he said that semi-civilized Russia was sublime in comparison with Prussia.

Two brothers survive him, Arthur Christopher Benson, fellow and lecturer in Magdalen college, Cambridge, and author of "Dodo" and many fictional and critical works, and Edward Frederic Benson, also an author.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

Great interest is being taken by the members of the Immaculate Conception parish in the annual parish reunion which is to take place on Oct. 28 and which from all accounts promises to be one of the biggest events in the history of the Belvidere parish. In conversation with a party of parishioners recently, the subject of the reunion came up and one of the party started a discussion as to when the first reunion was held, being of the opinion that it was held as far back as 25 years ago. The reunions were inaugurated by the late Rev. William D. Joyce, O. M. I., while pastor of the Immaculate Conception, about 20 years ago. Prior to that time most of the social events of the parish were conducted by the Christian Doctrine society and the Immaculate Conception Temperance society. Twenty-five years ago this week, both of these old societies held forth, and the Sun reported their gatherings as follows:

"Monday evening the Immaculate Conception Temperance society dedicated its new hall in the Wier building in Market street. The new quarters were once occupied by the Salvation Army as barracks but under the direction of the new tenants the place has been completely changed and makes a most cozy meeting place. In honor of the dedicatory exercises the new quarters were prettily decorated and pictures of Fr. Mathew and Fr. Burke occupied prominent places. President James Reynolds opened the exercises by giving a comprehensive sketch of the society, which had its origin in the church of the Immaculate Conception. John S. Colby of the Vox Populi spoke cheering words for the society, urging the members to do everything in their power for its success. A recitation by John Feeney was received with great favor. Rev. Daniel M. Burns, O. M. I., addressed the audience in a few well chosen remarks, assuring the society of his support in every way. His words were listened to with marked attention. Misses Ann and Mary Meagher sang a duet very sweetly. Rev. William D. Joyce, O. M. I., gave the society some sound advice and assured the members that the Oblate Fathers would strengthen their desire to live temperate and virtuous lives. Remarks were also made by Edward P. Slattery and John Coyne."

Concerning the Christian Doctrine society, the old Sun said:

"Wednesday evening's meeting of the Christian Doctrine society of the Immaculate Conception church was made highly interesting. A fine musical and literary program, headed by the meeting, and near the close the society elected Rev. Daniel M. Burns, O. M. I., to represent it at the coming Catholic congress to be held at Baltimore. The reverend gentleman said that he would attend the congress if possible, and thanked the society for its selection of him. The members are very anxious that he should go to Baltimore, his activity in the cause of religion has never flagged since he came to Lowell. Should Fr. Burns go to Baltimore his keen powers of observation will cause him to return with a graphic account of what he witnesses."

President Hugh F. Gillon called the meeting to order. The first number was the singing of "The Saw Mill," a quartet consisting of Messrs. David P. Martin and John McCabe and Misses Mabel Ware and Rosa Smith. Miss Mary Hope was accompanist. Fr. Burns referred to the feast of St. Theresa, which fell on Tuesday, and the feast of St. Margaret Alacoque, which was on Wednesday. "To Jesus Heart All Burning" was sung by the society. Miss Mary Joyce read with fine expression "The Priest's Leap." Frank Richardson read "A Convert's Story," a beautiful selection. Miss Hattie Farley sang very sweetly "A Summer Show-er." Miss Annie Harkins read a very comprehensive paper on Cardinal Newman. President Gillon read a paper from "The Messenger of the Sacred Heart" on the feast of Blessed Margaret of Alacoque. The meeting closed with the singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

Evening School Registration

According to the old Sun the following was the evening school registration of a quarter of a century ago:

"Up to last night 1768 persons had signified their intention of attending the free evening schools. Last year at this time but 140 were recorded. The pupils are distributed as follows: High school, 547; Green, 261; Worthen, 185; Franklin, 189; Bartlett, 183; Colburn, 154; Varnum, 111; Moody, 135; Butler, 132."

While at this writing the figures of this year's attendances were not available the total number is more than twice as great as 25 years ago, and now there are 10 elementary evening schools. The Butler, Edison, Cabot street, Franklin, Green, for boys and girls, Greenhalse, Howard street, Mann, Old Money, Colburn, and the comprehensive school laws of the state have greatly swelled the number of pupils at these schools. The high school at the present time, at which attendance is not compulsory, has 570 pupils.

The old Sun also gives us the list of evening school teachers of 25 years ago as follows:

HAVE YOU NEURASTHENIA?

Neurasthenia is a condition of exhaustion of the nervous system. The causes are varied. Continuous work, mental or physical, without proper vacation periods, without proper attention to diet and exercise, also worry over the struggles for success, are the most common causes. Excesses of almost any kind may produce it. Some diseases, like the grip, will cause neurasthenia. So also will a severe shock, intense anxiety or grief. The symptoms are over-sensitiveness, irritability, a disposition to worry over trifles, headache, possibly nausea.

The treatment is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring a non-alcoholic tonic. As the nerves get their nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed toward building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Two useful books "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., if you mention this paper.

Lizzie F. Gara, Mary McSorley, Agnes T. Fay, Margaret J. King.

Fred W. Farnham, J. Nelson Dennis and M. W. Foster were elected assistants in the evening drawing school.

Fred Walsh Cured

From the driver's seat on a grocery wagon to the owner's seat in a luxuriously appointed 1914 model shows how J. Fred Walsh has moved along in quarter of a century, for the Sun of 25 years ago had the following:

"At the close of business, Saturday night, the bookkeeper in behalf of the employer and employees of Pike's market, presented J. F. Walsh, a driver of one of the order delivered beautiful gold headed cane, it being the close of his term of service with the firm, as he is soon to enter in business on his own account in Middlesex street. After the presentation Mr. Pike took all the employees to supper at Futuna's restaurant."

Fred Walsh has successfully demonstrated how a young man with ambition and ability can come along in the world and incidentally get a good time out of it. After leaving Pike's, he opened the Union market in Middlesex street and made that business a big success. While yet engaged in the provision business the Buicks struck the town, and Fred was one of the first to purchase a machine. An enthusiast in all his undertakings, he soon became an enthusiastic and far-seeing business possibilities in the automobile, he abandoned the market and entered the automobile business in which he has met with great success. His business soon outgrew the limited confines of Lowell and he opened up in Boston, where he is now kept busy, though he finds time to run up to see his old acquaintances occasionally.

Old Ambulance Corps

For many years Lowell had an ambulance corps as one of its local military organizations and along with being a grand drilled and equipped organization its social affairs were among the foremost of their day. Twenty-five years ago the corps had one of its annual field days, which the old Sun reported as follows:

"The target shoot of the Ambulance corps was held on Thursday at the city farm range and was a very enjoyable affair. Sergeant G. E. Lull won the corps medal given by Lieutenant Howard. Honorary members won prizes as follows: Lieutenant Howard, a dressing case, given by Marston & Co."

—AN OPEN LETTER—

Mr. Fuel Buyer:

The best grade of pea coal at $5.25 per ton, burned in connection with the best grade of Otto Coke at $5.00 per ton, will cut your fuel bill in two. Try a sample order, one-half ton of each will cost you $5.37.

Start your fire with the coke, putting the pea coal on top, burn with a light draft, it will give you more satisfaction and better results than any ton of hard coal that you can buy at any price. It is suitable for kitchen range, sitting room stove, furnace, or boiler, but in ordering for furnace or boiler, be sure and order Otto Coke. I will stake my reputation as a fuel expert of thirty years' experience on the above combination, and if used as directed and it fails to give satisfaction I will cheerfully remove it from your premises.

Mail and telephone orders will receive immediate attention.

Bouquet for Bros. Smith and Bayles

Says the old Sun:

"Monday night Mr. Joseph Smith resigned from the office of secretary of the overseers of the poor. He will take the city editor's desk in the Morning Mail office on November 2. The overseers elected Capt. Charles H. Richardson as his successor. Mr. Smith's salary was $1300 and the use of the horse and carriage. The Mail will pay him $1500 for his services and will get full value for the money. Mr. Smith is a writer of ability and he will take to the Mail office a dash and literary finish it has not enjoyed since Editor Bayles of the Citizen was there."

"Joe" remained on the Mail until the coming of Editor McCleery, when he and Mr. McCleery got along together like two strange bull-dogs. Mr. Smith is now contributing editor to Truth, a Boston publication, and we recently were given an inside tip through the columns of a delightful little sheet known as the "Menace," that "Joe" is now in the "pay of Rome." "Joe" recently took up his trenchant pen and took a wallop out of the "Menace" leaving nothing of it but the "acc." and the editor of the "Menace" after he came to, thought up the worst thing that he could say in reply and that was that "Joe" is in the "pay of Rome." "Joe" must be making money since we were told.

Speaking of Editor Bayles who still writes most entertainingly for the Courier-Citizen, the same issues of the old Sun had the following:

"Editor Bayles has written an Italian story for a book to be sold at the Young Women's Home Bazaar. It is said that a scapling soiree which occurs in the story is really a disguised report of the recent republican councillor convention. If this is so, the story is sufficiently narrowing."

The republican convention that year was a rather tame affair. After a seven-hour wrangle in Huntington hall the convention adjourned without making a choice. The candidates were Luman T. Jeffs, of Hudson, Byron Trull of Lawrence Charles F. Loring of Melrose and James Pierce of Malden; all good boys. In fact, as fine a bunch of boys as ever sunk an axe into a log. There were 18 delegates present representing four cities and 42 towns and all vacancies were filled and the old Sun says there was some amusement when Alderman Fuller of Lowell voted for Billerica and Alderman Sawyer appeared as the lone delegate from Roxbury, while Major Keyes represented Marshboro. The delegates voted all afternoon with no choice, the contest being between Messrs. Loring and Trull and then adjourned to a later date. The Sun had the following comment on the convention:

"Candidate Loring ordered dinner for 100 persons to be served at the Merrimack house at noon. He expected to be nominated for councillor before the convention was an hour old. The splendid fight made by the Trull men caused the dinner to grow cold and somebody had to pay the score for the uneaten banquet."

"All of Lawrence is coming up here to settle the councillor fight. A dark horse may be led in unexpectedly. It is said the animal is being groomed up in ward 1."

And this one:

"The way that Lowell went back on Trull was a caution. Old promises made by Lawrence were broken by the Lowell republicans in a shameful manner."

At the second convention Trull was victorious and the old Sun said:

"Byron Trull of Lawrence is the republican candidate for councillor. He was nominated Tuesday after another characteristic row by the republican delegates. Loring and Jeffs are left and they charge Trull with having bought up delegates enough to break the deadlock. It costs Loring $200 for his experience and the Trull men spent a good deal more but they are satisfied with the substance, while the gentlemen who were left must be satisfied with the shadow. It will be surprising if there isn't some tall cutting of Trull when election day comes."

Wasn't it awful the way the republicans used to behave in those days. It's no wonder that a third party has sprung up, the old organization, having followed the same old path, to go to waste on account of a simple deadlock. Had that been a democratic convention, would a dinner have grown cold? Not even the steam that rises from the soup when it first appears out of the kitchen would have been missed.

THE LADY'S WORKBAG

A sewing hint worth remembering is the necessity for bolting buttonholes that are to be covered with wash material before they are covered. This will prevent the coloring in them from coming through and will save the trouble of recovering every time the dress is washed.

The discarded talcum powder box with a perforated top may be made to do duty for a hatpin holder. The box may be covered with a piece of fancy figured ribbon or brocade, the edges may be finished with galleon if necessary.

When drawing threads for hem-stitching or drawn-work, wet a small brush, rub it over white soap until it lathers, then scrub the threads that you are going to draw. You will be greatly astonished to find how easily they will come out without breaking when you treat the goods in this manner.

are carried out in lazy daisy stitch and outlining. Sometimes the leaves are merely done in single short stitches.

Now is the time when the "forehand" woman is getting some of her sewing done. Before making of the colored wash materials she shrinks them and "sets" the colors.

Green and lavender materials will retain their colorings, unhurt by laundry work, if they are soaked first fifteen minutes in about two gallons of cold water to which half a cupful of strong vinegar has been added.

Salted water or water to which turpentine has been added, will set pinks and blues. Colored silk stockings may be successfully washed by following the same rule.

MIDDLESEX WOMEN'S CLUB

Mrs. MacDowell Told of Colony at Peterborough, N. H., Founded by Her Husband

The story of the founding of the MacDowell Memorial Colony at Peterborough, N. H., was beautifully told by the composer's wife in a lecture-recital which opened the season at the Middlesex Women's club yesterday afternoon. Mrs. MacDowell gave glimpses of her husband's life and the ideals which she shared with him. It was MacDowell's idea that in a New England village might be developed an art expression that from the very nature of the American temperament would surpass that of the old-world villages. The Peterborough pageant, enacted for the most part by villagers has gone far to prove that the composer was right. Mrs. MacDowell paid a fine tribute to the development of the Peterborough chorus under the direction of Mr. Hood, the leader of the Lowell Choral society. Among the numbers played by Mrs. MacDowell were:

"From a Log Cabin" and "Indian Idyl" from "New England Idyls," "1630" from "Sea Pieces" and "Indian Legends," "Uncle Remus," "In Autumn" and "The Wild Rose" from the "Woodland Sketches."

For Coughs, Colds, Cramps, Colic. Dropped on sugar children love to take it. Used externally it quickly relieves Sprains, Sore Muscles, Cuts, Blisters and Bruises.

JESSE SOUGHT PARDON

Burkett Apologized at League Session to Gray for Blow Struck in Worcester Park

Yesterday's annual meeting of New England league magnates at the Quincy House, Boston, proved to be one of the most eventful sessions of its kind on record notwithstanding the fact that Jimmy Gray and Jesse Burkett met there for the first time since the August afternoon when Burkett slapped the Lowell man's face on the Worcester ball park.

Jesse Burkett stepped up to Gray soon after the magnates of the New England franchises had gathered at the hotel and, with outstretched palm, made a public apology to the Lowell man, which was taken in the same spirit that it was proffered. "I'm sorry," he said, "I'm sorry I hit you."

In his apology Burkett commended Gray upon his admirable control of his temper and declared his own action as ungentlemanly. Soon afterward Jimmy and Jesse were apparently as friendly as in days of yore.

Secretary Arthur D. Cooper was unanimously elected to his old berth but resigned as soon as the vote had been cast. The election or appointment of the new secretary was held over until the next meeting of the league in December.

President Timothy Murnane announced that his job was secure for another year as his term of office does not expire until 1915. Some talk was made relative to the appointment of a successor to Sec. Cooper, said appointment to be made by the president, but no definite action was taken on this matter.

The only important piece of business which was transacted was the straightening out of the Haverhill-Lawrence-Lynn franchises. Dan Noonan is now sole owner of the Haverhill club and Louis Pieper signed his intention of selling his holdings in the Lawrence team as soon as possible. In fact Pieper will not assume title to the Lynn holdings until he has sold out his interest in this year's pennant winner.

The magnates also spent some time discussing the advisability of shortening the New England league playing season. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that games played after Labor day were losing propositions. No action was taken on this, however. The baseball men present at yesterday's meeting were: Lowell, James J. Gray, Andrew E. Roach; Lawrence, Louis Pieper, Daniel Noonan; Haverhill, Louis Pieper and Daniel Noonan; Lynn, Eugene Fraser; Portland, Hugh Duffy; Worcester, Jesse Burkett, Mr. O'Donnell; Lewiston, Joseph Burns; Manchester, Fred Lake.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOT

LONDON MOB ATTEMPTS TO WRECK SHOPS WHERE MANY HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Another mob attempted to wreck German shops in the Borough of Deptford last night, but a large force of special police, who had been placed in the district in anticipation of scenes similar to those previously enacted, dispersed the crowd. Many of the German shopkeepers, fearing that attacks would be made on their premises, had strongly barricaded them.

A judge in the police court declined to accept bail in the cases of over 20 rioters arrested during Sunday night's demonstration. The public prosecutor advised that this course be adopted by the court, declaring that the conduct of the participants in the wrecking and looting of the stores and living apartments of the Germans was a disgrace to Englishmen.

The newspaper campaign against the employment of subjects of enemy countries continues. Several additional hotels announced that all German and Austrian employees had been discharged. A number of large restaurants have substituted girl waiters for the Germans and Austrians who previously held the positions.

WILLIAM HODGE IN "THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS" AT THE WILBUR THEATRE, BOSTON

William Hodge is in the fifth week of his big success at the Wilbur theatre, Boston, where "The Road to Happiness" is being traveled every night by a host of playgoers, who find that the play sends them away feeling better and life looking brighter. The Wednesday 11 matinee is a popular one and tomorrow it will be specially observed as a Lowell matinee.

Some of the sentiments expressed by Jim Whitman, village youth and optimist, the new character impersonated by Hodge in this piece, bear the same element of homely thought as did the sayings of Daniel Voorhies Pike, the role Mr. Hodge made famous in "The Man from Home."

"You can't fight trouble with tears; tears help trouble as water helps flowers," says Jim, "The only way to whip trouble is to smile at it, and if you can't sing, whistle. If you weep, your heart aches, and if you smile it dances."

The title of the play comes from the lines expressed by Mr. Hodge as the young optimist: "Courage and honesty and truth—these form the road to happiness. If you have not courage, borrow it."

At one time in the play when Jim Whitman (the part that Hodge plays) complains that his girl throws him over every time her pa coughs, he says: "An' then I have to recite fifty to yer for an hour and propose all over again," and that reminds you that the play is made something after Lilley's recipe:

What we want, as I sense it, in the line
O' poetry is sompin' yours and mine—
Sompin' with live stock in it, and outdoors,
And old crick bottoms, snags and sycamores—
As well as Johnny-jump-ups, all so fresh
And easy-like—and groun' squirrels—
Yes, and "We"
As sayin' is—"We, Us and Company!"

AMUSEMENT NOTES

OPERA HOUSE

James P. Lee is winning back his old following, as well as attracting new admirers, in his entertaining play with music, "Safety First." Both star and play are proving popular at the Opera House, and well they might. The play is clear, clean, healthy fun from beginning to end, and is not only brightly written, but brilliantly acted. It is sure to draw a large and loyal following of mirth, and was voted by all to be the best ever. To describe just how this is accomplished, and to tell of the many side-splitting situations, would be anticipating, and only spoil the surprise that the play always creates. Enough to say that no end of mirth provoking situations follow with galling gun rapidly, finally raising the roof with shouts of laughter.

Lowell has seen some fine tango dancers, and has seen Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Chase in the picture, "Safety First." It is safe to say that Mack and Hickey who are being featured in "Safety First," are the best two that ever danced on the local stage, and they come nearest to being perfect. It is a pity that they are not seen outside of New York. Their version of the Argentine Maxima was most charming and well-nigh perfect, and met with the hearty approval of all. Miss Hickey with her few lessons in dancing to any lady or gentlemen attending the performance during her engagement here, and it is a well known fact that the social people of many of the best circles owe their knowledge of the society dances to the instructions given them by Miss Hickey.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The program at the B. F. Keith's theatre this week comprises seven comedies, all of the A. 1. quality, as well as a series of motion pictures which are both pleasing and instructive. The bill is one of the very best produced at this popular theatre for a long time, and if one is to judge by the cordial reception given each number at yesterday's performances, the management of the theatre have selected just what the patrons expect.

The headline on the program is a dandy little play entitled "The Turn of the Tide," which is being staged by Madden and Fitzpatrick. This is a one-act play, the scene of which is in New York, while the time is the present. The performers are Lewis B. Madden and James William Fitzpatrick representing "Mozart Milligan" and "Richard Crawford" respectively. The latter is in love, without hope. He arrives at his apartment late at night and picks up an old letter which he has cherished, the main point of which is that to do some good in any way, it is after all the main reason for living. There is no wayfarer in sight, but soon a burglar steps in to escape the police. Now "Crawford" decides that this dirty looking rascal is the way to get ahead, and he is the only thing which can be used and the burglar is loaded with the liquor. A satirical interchange of repartee goes on and finally the burglar pulls himself together and decides to change his name. The act is very pleasing and is well staged.

Another interesting sketch is that produced by Maud Muller and Ed. Stanley. Maud is a little woman just how to use it. For fifteen minutes the pair entertain in a most delightful way with witty sayings and funny movements, and finally the woman drops his big voice and sings a grand opera aria with a most delightful soprano voice.

The Cox Sisters assisted by Frankie Ray present "A Little Bit of Everything," a sketch which consists of singing, dancing and a little touch of comedy. The quartet are very entertaining and their sketch is cleverly given.

"A Business Proposal" is the comedy staged by Chaucer Moore & Co. It deals with a young woman in love with a 200-pound clerk. The clerk is very bashful and the woman who is struck on fat men has the nerve to propose to the fat clerk. Of course everything ends well. This act means constant laughter from the minute the actors appear before the footlights until the end of the sketch.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
The Merrimack Square Stock company yesterday presented for the first time a four act drama, entitled "Little Lost Sister," taken from the book of Virginia Brooks and, judging from the size of last evening's audience and the applause which greeted the various members of the company, the presentation fully satisfied the onlookers. The play will be repeated afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week.

"Little Lost Sister" unfolds a story which though very interesting, at times exposes the white slave traffic in a way that might be questioned by the average theatregoer. However, it teaches a moral lesson which should be heeded by all who witness it.

In the first act a pretty innocent little country girl is lured from her home by a white slave agent on the pretense of marriage. He takes her into a large city where she is obliged to live in a neighborhood of vice, although at times the young girl attempts to gather up strength enough to leave her evil companions and go back to her mother's home. Finally the mother, heartbroken over the disappearance of her younger daughter, goes to the city and secures employment in a large of a very interesting nature. The mother and daughter are brought together but only for a minute as the "Little Lost Sister" is hurried from the building by one of her companions. The final act brings the whole family together again in their country home.

Presenting throughout this presentation is the work of a wealthy young woman, who spends her whole time trying to rid the community of these undesirable citizens and help the young girls who are lured from their mothers' arms on a false pretence. This part is taken by Miss Sadie Gaillope, known in the play as "Sally Randall," who gives a delightful interpretation of her lines. Miss Eva Marsh, making her last appearance in this city, is seen in the part of "Patience Welcome," who goes to the city to seek her "little lost sister," an excellent part. As "Michael Grogan," Joseph Thayer supplies the comedy of the production, while the other members, including Florence Agnew, the lost sister, are very good.

It was announced that next week "The Blindness of Virtue" will introduce a new leading lady, Miss Frances Shannon.

What is undeniably one of the most wonderful photo-plays ever presented in this city is being shown at the Academy of Music for the last time this afternoon and this evening. It is a Rango supreme masterpiece enacted through Dante's "Planes" created by a company of all-star screen artists.

In addition to this masterpiece there is a program full of corking good features such as "The Dead Man," an Indian play enacted throughout by pure blooded Indian performers, "Meg and her friends," a comedy sketch, and a gang of crooks. "The Anglers" is a good-old rip-roaring Keystone Comedy which will cause you to hold your sides with joy.

Tomorrow and Thursday the big extra feature, "The Red Club" will be shown in connection with another big show. The prices are five and ten cents.

THE OWL THEATRE

"The Lure," one of the latest stage productions to be filmed, is making an enormous hit at the Owl. Capacity houses marked its first two appearances yesterday, and the program also contained five other great photo-plays. Same show today. A wonderful all-around show at wonder-box prices. New policy in this house after Oct. 26. Watch for particulars, you'll shout for joy.

Another ex-High School Player Breaks Into College Company

Local Boy Landed 'Varsity Position on Mt. St. Mary's Eleven

Paul J. Cahill, one of last year's high school mainstays on the gridiron, has matriculated at Mount St. Mary's college, Emmitsburg, Md., this year and until the recent sad accident at that college, which caused the dropping of football for the season, played right end on the 'varsity.

One of the members of the football squad was tackled hard during a scrimmage and received injuries from which he died in less than hour. Action was taken on the matter at once by the faculty and last week the gridiron game was abolished at the institution for the remainder of the season.

To the Lowell boy, however, goes the distinction of capturing a berth on the 'varsity for which he will receive his school letter just the same as though the season had been completed. While at Lowell high Cahill was prominent in track athletics as well as upon the football field. He will be a candidate for the track team at Mt. St. Mary's college as well as should catch on with the "training table" fortunes without much trouble.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Continued

New Agents for Cadillac

The Cadillac people are to be congratulated on securing Mr. Dana and his son, G. Russell Dana, as agents for their cars. As salesmen of automobiles these two local dealers have established an enviable reputation. In years past they have carried several makes of cars and have always increased their contracts each following year. The auto man says: "Watch the Cadillac."

Geo. R. Dana Busy

Geo. R. Dana, and associated with him, his son G. Russell Dana, Jr., are apparently developing some reputation in the automobile business. These people have enjoyed an enviable standing as dealers and service men while handling the Stevens-Duryea and Hudson cars for some years past, and in today's issue they announce themselves as representing the Cadillac car (with the new eight cylinder V type motor)

No answer. All he heard was the "busy buzz" of factory, mill, and store.

GIANTS WON, 42-3

The Y. M. C. A. Giants, a basketball team composed of employees of the local mills and factories, scored their first victory of the season last night by defeating an aggregation composed of Y. M. C. A. athletes on the gym floor. The feature of the game was the shooting of Hartigan of the winning team for the track team at Mt. St. Mary's college. Wrenn and Dobson also played well for the winners. The final score was 42-3. The Giants are ready to meet any team in the state at 175 pounds or over. Address, 3112 Wrenn, Y. M. C. A.

EDDIE CAWLEY AT COLBY COLLEGE

A Former High School Star One of Backfield Stars in Maine College

EDDIE CAWLEY

Eddie Cawley, two years ago, the most prominent figure upon the horizon of local high school athletics, is now a sophomore at Colby college, where he has achieved as enviable an athletic reputation as he enjoyed here.

Cawley is rated as one of the best back field men that Colby ever had. Several critics chose him last year in their selections for All-Maine teams. The local boy shone at fullback last season and is even improving on his work this year.

Cawley is an athlete who would attract attention on any football squad in the country. He is husky, carries the ball well and is very hard to pull down after getting under way. Added to this, he is a quick starter and a natural football player.

The local boy is better known, however, for his ability on the diamond than for any other branch of athletics, although he is also better than the average in the weight events. But as a baseball player Cawley stars.

Cawley was picked out by Connie Mack two seasons ago and spent several weeks under the wing of the Athletics' manager. This, too, without ever having played professional ball. It is expected that Cawley will prove to be one of the greatest athletes who ever attended Colby before he finishes his course at the Maine college.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

The Army-Navy football game was abandoned, definitely today by the athletic committees of the two academies. Secretaries Daniels and Garrison were advised of the fact and it would appear that Annapolis and West Point will not battle on the gridiron this year. The football public have lost this famous game simply for the reason that the Middies wanted to play in Philadelphia and the West Pointers declared for Polo grounds and no happy compromise was in sight.

Joe Finnegan, last year with Lowell and this past season one of the Feder's successful pitchers, is planning on playing basketball this winter. Joe has already signed up with a quintet which will travel through Jersey and New York.

Ad Wolgast and Freddie Welsh signed articles yesterday for their 10-round bout in Madison Square Gardens on Nov. 2. The Englishman gave away weight for the battle. Welsh is not afraid of a weight advantage in a 10-round go.

Bob Parads of this city is a candidate for the job of secretary of the New England league and appears to have the inside track at present. Here's luck, Bob!

Johnny Evers was certainly given a royal welcome in Troy, N. Y., yesterday. "The Braves" captain was received with the most cordial and pomp upon his arrival in his home town than any other individual heretofore.

The meeting of the City league last night showed marked enthusiasm among star local bowlers for the new organization. E. F. Clark was elected president, Walter Jewett chosen as secretary and Michael Driscoll named as treasurer. With these men at the head of it the city's newest bowling league ought to experience every success.

At the New England league meeting yesterday Lawrence was formally awarded the pennant for this league while at a similar session of the Eastern association New London was presented with the championship emblem. It will be the last flag that Pieper will win for Lawrence fans.

classic. Hinky has long been accepted as the greatest coach for ends in the country, but placing him in charge of the entire squad this fall was an experiment.

Marty O'Toole was handed back to the Pittsburgh club by Johnny McGraw and now there is bound to be feeling over the matter. On the face of it the Pittsburgh club did not want the Braves to win the pennant. However, all's well that ends well and the Braves should worry with that world series money jingling in their pockets.

William R. Higgins, considered to be the best athlete in the Lawrence high school, was barred from taking part in any more school athletics by Principal Horne. It is alleged that Higgins did not show very good school spirit on several occasions. Higgins will be sorely missed in the Lowell high-Lawrence high game on Thanksgiving day.

Willie Brennan defeated Al McCoy last night in their ten round bout at Buffalo. McCoy was outpointed in every session and Brennan possessed a good margin at the conclusion of the fight.

RECEPTION TO 1200

BROCKTON, Oct. 20.—More than 1200 people attended a reception and inspection of the new $200,000 building of the Y. M. C. A. last evening. At 6:30 there was a banquet, the speakers being ex-Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton, Mayor Howard A. H. Whitford, general secretary of the Buffalo Y. M. C. A., Edward W. Hearn, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and George E. Keith, first president of the local Y. M. C. A.

THE KASINO

Don't forget the big attraction at the Kasino tonight—LeRoy Young and Miss Amelia Burham of New York, who will depict all the modern dances to your absolute satisfaction. Those artists have been the sensation in and about New York city, where they have danced before thousands of people daily for the past three months. To have secured them for Lowell is some achievement on the part of the Kasino management. A record breaking crowd will surely attend the exhibition.

WARE MAN, BURIED IN QUICKSAND 24 HOURS

WARE, Oct. 20.—Being rescued after 24 hours imprisonment in a quicksand, 34 feet below the earth's surface, is characterized by Maurice Allen as "the real thing in a return from the grave."

Unkempt, unshaven, although little the worse for his thrilling experience, Allen sat propped up in a bed at his modest home last night and gave his impressions of that close call from death. His wife and three children showered him with food, caresses and endearing words as his part in the joyous family reunion.

To the several hundred men who labored desperately with shovels, ladders, ropes and other equipment, Allen owed his deliverance at 3:30 yesterday afternoon from the treacherous bottom of the well that he was digging when disaster overtook him.

Since a Sunday afternoon when a series of rain-falls left him hurried to his neck and with the lower part of his body imbedded in the quicksand, the rescuers who swarmed to the mouth of the pit waged their battle for Allen's life.

Disheartening reverses beset them. Once when they had almost freed Allen, the sides of the well caved in and he was buried up to his neck. Several of the rescuing party had narrow escapes from being caught themselves. But, undaunted, they quickly rallied around the well top and lowered by means of rope a man who dug away the earth from Allen's face. With danger of suffocation thus averted, the rescuers propped Allen from below by placing over his head a barrel to which was attached the tubing of a pump.

All through the night and well into yesterday afternoon fresh air was pumped to him. Meanwhile the rescuing party, among whom were many police and firemen, were hard at work digging a trench through the hillside in which the well was located. They had decided that the one means of extricating the man was to penetrate the side of the well by means of a trench and remove the earth from around Allen by means of a bucket brigade. To dig the trench seemed a herculean task, but it was finally accomplished after a cut 30 feet in length and 25 feet in width had been made. This ditch and also the sides of the well had been carefully shored up with planks to prevent a repetition of the accident that befell Allen.

Rescued by Chum

At noon time the rescuers were within 10 feet of the well. At 2 yesterday afternoon they had broken into the side of the pit. Then began the real delicate work of the rescue. "Zeno" Bourgeois, a boson friend of the imprisoned man, was lowered by means of a rope from a fire extension ladder that had been placed over the mouth of the well.

Shortly and carefully Bourgeois began the work of digging away the earth from the barrel-topped Allen. Then, after he had made a little headway, he piled a shovel. Next Perry Duhamel, superintendent of highways for the town of Ware, was lowered to the side of Bourgeois.

He, too, worked at removing the earth. Little by little, but with slowness that seemed to voice the reluctance of the quicksand to release its prey, the rescue progressed. And as progress was made a tail hold was maintained on a rope which, fastened under Allen's arm pits, prevented his sinking farther. From the top of the well, Chief of Management, the success whose good will and help in the rescue of the dangerous undertaking is generally attributed, alternated his instructions as to procedure with repeated caution of "safety first."

But at last the earth had been removed until only Allen's legs as far as his knees remained in the quicksand. A board which had remained jammed against his right leg was carefully removed. Then Allen, who had been kept under his barrel equipment was asked if he would risk a concerted tug at the rope fastened to him.

"Pull away for your life, do anything as long as you get me out of here," said the well digger.

Plans were at once made for a mighty tug on the rope. In preparation for this move the diver-like headgear was removed from Allen. All rescue work momentarily came to a halt when Allen demanded "another

GERMANS ATTACK ALLIES NEAR THE BELGIAN COAST

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The planning German attacks on the allied line near the Belgian coast between Nieuport and Dixmude, similar tactics by the allies in France between Arras and Douve where progress is claimed, a continued allied assault on Lille still held by the Germans and station fighting in the vicinity of St. Mihiel where for days the allies have been trying to drive the Germans from their southernmost lodgment were the acute points today in the sprawling battle area of France and Belgium.

The communications issued in behalf of the allies last night enabled Britons to visualize for the first time in days the approximate battle line after crossing the Belgian frontier and showed how the allies during the days of censorship were drawing their forces westward to meet the inviolable German advance which followed the taking of Ostend.

The fighting is now centering only a few miles southwest of Ostend and the Belgian army, heretofore reported as having repulsed the Germans on the banks of the river Yser, is again in the thick of the night being credited with bundling back the German line as far as Roulers, Belgium, 13 miles northwest of Courtrai, which point they are holding, according to the latest reports available when this dispatch was written.

A dispatch dated merely "north of France," says that the allies have retaken Ostend but this is not confirmed and is at variance with the German

STEPS BEING TAKEN TO ACCEPT FIRE PREVENTION ACT—BOSTON TEACHERS FOR INSPECTORS

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—It is understood that citizens of Salem are taking the preliminary steps to have their city council vote to accept the fire prevention act, which will mean the inclusion of that city in the district supervised by Fire Prevention Commissioner John A. O'Keefe.

The bill creating the fire prevention bureau specified that it should apply to the Metropolitan district. The act, however, applies to any and all cities and towns in this commonwealth, as in the case of a city, by a two-thirds vote of its city council present and voting, and in the case of a town, at any meeting called for that purpose by a majority of its voters present and voting, may vote to accept the provisions of the act.

Although Mr. Walsh has not yet appointed a deputy fire prevention commissioner and a secretary has not yet been chosen by Commissioner O'Keefe, it is probable that the deputy commissioner will be named Wednesday at the meeting of the executive council. The deputy and the secretary are to be selected with special reference to their fitness for the positions and because of their familiarity with branches of the work.

Another important task before Commissioner O'Keefe is the selection of inspectors. The act provides for an "ad hoc" force of inspectors, and it is probable that they will be selected from among individuals with particularly strong qualifications. It is the belief of Mr. O'Keefe that the fire drills among public school pupils should be inspected by young women school teachers. He feels that they will be more familiar with pupils and school conditions, and they will be better fitted to go before meetings of teachers and address them on the subject of fire prevention. He will select two inspectors from among the public school teachers of Greater Boston.

Mr. O'Keefe wants two representatives of organized labor to be inspectors. They will not only be familiar with the routine of shops, mills and factories, but will be able to go before meetings of labor unions and explain the purpose of the bureau. Mr. O'Keefe says that many laboring men lose employment whenever a fire takes place and therefore are anxious to have a prominent part in carrying out fire prevention measures.

For the other inspectors Mr. O'Keefe wants a man who knows garages "inside and out," a man who has handled paints and oils for years and knows all about them, and a man who is expert in the construction of chimneys and who will be able to do much toward preventing fires from "detective fires." Commissioner O'Keefe will have to take his inspectors from the list of certified applicants furnished by the civil service commission.

At noon time the rescuers were within 10 feet of the well. At 2 yesterday afternoon they had broken into the side of the pit. Then began the real delicate work of the rescue. "Zeno" Bourgeois, a boson friend of the imprisoned man, was lowered by means of a rope from a fire extension ladder that had been placed over the mouth of the well.

He, too, worked at removing the earth. Little by little, but with slowness that seemed to voice the reluctance of the quicksand to release its prey, the rescue progressed. And as progress was made a tail hold was maintained on a rope which, fastened under Allen's arm pits, prevented his sinking farther. BOOKS NEVER SOLD

Mrs. Watts of Manchester and Mrs. Preston of Weston testify in the Rare Book Case

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Mary A. Watts of Manchester, N. H., testified yesterday in the trial of James J. Larner, William J. Hartley and others, charged with a $10,000,000 rare book swindle, that she paid Glenn Barker and Hartley $20,000 for so-called rare books upon their assertions that the books would be sold later at a large profit.

"I was also told that I would receive a large picture of Theodore Roosevelt, signed by himself, and a public document, both of which were very valuable," Mrs. Watts testified.

Mrs. Marlon W. Preston of Weston, Mass., testified that in 1910 Glenn Barker induced her to buy a set of books, with the understanding that later he could sell them for her to a man in Europe. Mrs. Preston then bought two other sets for $5000, she testified.

OUTSIDE, LOOKING IN

ONE LOCKED IN CAFE, OTHER LOCKED OUT—PART OWNER DOESN'T DARE TAKE DRINK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Padlocks on the inside doors of Hurton's cafe, northeast corner of One Hundred and Forty-fifth street and Amsterdam avenue, since Saturday night have kept Watchman James Curry from entering the place. Padlocks on the outside of the two doors for the same period have been equally effective bars to the emergency of Charles Eberschacher.

The curious who gazed from time to time at the two men, one locked in, the other locked out, have deduced that Curry has the better of the argument, especially if he happens to desire food or drink. For while Curry is free to roam about in search of sustenance, Eberschacher's abiding place is said to contain nothing to eat. Of drinkable there is plenty within the cafe, but they have been formally seized by Bernheimer & Schwartz, brewers, and Curry maintains that if Eberschacher refreshes himself by so much as one little drink he will be guilty of appropriating the property of another.

Eberschacher and Alfred Swanson were partners in the saloon up to Sept. 30. The two couldn't agree, so Swanson closed up on the last night of last month and left a note for Eberschacher saying he had quit. Besides leaving the note Swanson surrendered the license to Bernheimer & Schwartz, who had hidden in financing the wet goods venture. The brewers brought seizure proceedings and took formal possession of fixtures and stock. Then they put James Curry in charge as watchman pending legal solution of the partnership tangle.

Next Lichtenberg Brothers, landlords, brought dispossession proceedings against the partners, alleging that the saloon was due. The case is to be heard in the Manhattan street municipal court.

Saturday night as Curry emerged from the saloon to lock up and go home, Eberschacher, Curry says, rushed into the place and snapped heavy locks on both doors. Curry then put locks on the outer doors.

THE BILLBOARD TAXATION

FAVORED BY SEVERAL AT STATE HOUSE HEARING GIVEN BY LEGISLATIVE COMMISSION

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—The taxation and regulation of advertising signboards was favored by several men at the state house yesterday morning before the special commission appointed by the legislature to conduct an investigation.

Ames Weston, president of the ward 10 Good Government association, objected to billboard in residential districts. James P. Roberts of Dedham suggested that a constitutional amendment giving taxing and restricting powers to the general court should be given E. W. Hartman, representing the Massachusetts Civic league, favored taxation of signs. Representative Channing Cox thought the step would require a constitutional amendment.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 20.—Saying that the death of Cadet William Bowles of Middletown, Md., as a result of a hazing escapade at St. John's college, here, on May 26, was an act of murder, Judge Brashears, in delivering the charge to the jury of Anne Arundel county, yesterday, urged that the tragedy be investigated. The five freshmen who are held responsible for the death of Bowles are Hugh Weaver, New York; Henry L. Valdez, Havana; Cuba; Fendall Marbury, Baltimore; R. A. Jones, Cambridge, Md., and John M. THE FLAWLESS COMPLEXION

Every woman over twenty should begin the zealous guarding of her complexion, one of her most priceless possessions, so that the sallowness and saggy muscles will not begin to make their fearsome appearance just when she has need of all her charms to offset her vanishing youth. If the complexion is very sallow and dingy, try a milk face bleach. You will not regret the slight trouble in the surprising result, for the face will immediately take on a fresh, rosy look and be fair where it has been muddy.

The best time to give the milk bleach is at night. Have ready a pan of sweet milk into which you have dropped two strips of cheesecloth.

HUMAN SYSTEM INJURED BY ONE CUP OF COFFEE

Its Constant Use Tends to Increase Fatigue Products Says Kansas City Physician

The constant use of coffee and tea tends to increase fatigue products in the human system, says Dr. G. Wilson Robinson, of the University Medical College, Kansas City, Mo.

"Coffee is used in coffee and tea as a beverage for its stimulating effects. Even in small doses, one cup of coffee or tea per day, the general result of the action of caffeine upon the nervous system is to increase the irritability of the brain.

"In order to respond to the stimulation of regular doses of caffeine, nerve and muscle tissue must draw upon their reserve energy and they must do their work in the presence of an excessive quantity of toxic fatigue products, and both of these conditions tend to exhaustion and perversion of function. "Caffeine is not a food to nerve or muscle tissue. It does not increase the elimination of fatigue products, but does increase their production."

NOTE—Too much cannot be said in favor of the value of an invigorating morning drink, especially during colder weather—but the drink must not be harmful. The food-drink, INSTANT POSTUM, while resembling the better grades of Java in flavor and appearance is pure, wholesome and wholly free from the coffee drugs "caffeine" and "tannin" and is rapidly taking the place of coffee as a table beverage for reasons of health.

SAYS SULPHUR IS SURE TO RELIEVE ITCHING ECZEMA

Get an Ounce of Bold-Sulphur and Heal Skin Eruptions Right Up.

Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur says a noted dermatologist. He informs us that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous diseases, the nature of its persistent, soothing property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in itching Eczema, proves very welcome.

SICK DANDY

Once upon a time Frank had taught his pony, Dandy, one or two tricks, and as everyone thought that was very smart both for Frank and the pony, Frank said that he was going to teach Dandy some others, so he set about teaching Dandy to get his own dinner by going to the corn box, poking his nose under the lid, and, in that way, get to the corn.

Frank would put in just the right amount of corn and Dandy of course would eat it all up. One day Frank was very busy playing ball and forgot to go to the barn and get Dandy's dinner ready. Dandy waited as long as he usually did, and even a little longer, and then he started out to see what was the matter. He went to the box, lifted up the cover and of course expected to find his nice meal of corn, but much to his surprise there was nothing in the box, so he went over to the other side of the barn and looked about and as he saw a box that looked like his own feed box he walked up, stuck his nose under the cover and opened it without any trouble.

It was full of the nicest looking corn and he began to eat as fast as he could. When he had eaten all that he wanted (and that was a great deal more than he had ever eaten at one time before) he trotted back to his stall. In a little while he began to feel very sick and he wished that he hadn't been such a pig and eat so much.

When Frank remembered that he had not fed Dandy and hurried to the barn to do so, he found a very sick horse. He had to give Dandy some horrid tasting medicine before he was well and stay with him for a long time.

The next day when he went to the barn to give Dandy his dinner and lead him out to the corn box Dandy turned his head away and would not open the box, and so you know, he would never do that trick again.

Frank said that he didn't blame him one bit and he thought that only proved that Dandy was a smart pony, and after that his dinner was given to him in his stall.

Secretary Farrell of the Manufacturers Building league is hard at work on the schedule and is of the opinion that everything will run off smoothly. How about that challenge from the Y. M. C. I. team of pin tossers, Charlie?

Frank Warnock, recently elected president of the Trades & Labor council, was inducted into office at the meeting held last Thursday night. Mr. Warnock has had a great deal of experience in the labor movement and should make an able leader.

Joe Hurley of the C. B. Coburn Co. avers that the dance Thursday night will attract all the dancing fraternity of Lowell, as both the modern and old style dances will be danced to the strains of one of Lowell's leading orchestras. As a special attraction, Teddy Bears will be given free to the ladies.

William Liston, employed at the American Hide & Leather Co. and secretary of the Leather Workers union, started this morning on a hunt for pheasants, accompanied by two post-office employees. Bill was armed with a shotgun and ammunition, and his friends carried rifles. They were headed in the direction of Tewksbury.

SOFT FLUFFY HAIR IS FIRST AID TO BEAUTY

If your hair is not fluffy, soft and lustrous, it is falling out, streaked, faded, brittle, or full of dandruff, and if the scalp itches, do not think it must all be that way, for pretty hair is only a matter of care and the use of the proper hair dressing. Your hair is like a plant—if neglected it soon dies, while with a little attention it keeps fresh and beautiful.

Parisiene Sage is a scientific preparation that supplies just the elements needed to invigorate the hair roots and stimulate your hair to grow long, thick, fluffy, soft and lustrous. It removes all dandruff with one application and quickly stops itching head and falling hair. It is the ideal hair tonic and scalp treatment—contains nothing injurious and is delicately perfumed.

Any druggist can supply you with Parisiense Sage—it is inexpensive. You cannot be disappointed with this delightful and helpful toilet necessity, for it will surely give your hair the beauty and charm of youth.

Their motive, we suppose is to get the edge on their fellow members of the team. It is said that they opened their eyes of the spectators with their strikes and spares. Andy Livingston of the same team is out for the high individual average in the Mercantile league.

A Big Purchase

It is reported that western saddlery makers met recently in Indianapolis and divided a contract for 37,500,000 worth of saddlery for the British war office.

Cargo of Chemicals

A New York firm has chartered the Ward line steamer Matanzas and has sent it to Rotterdam in ballast to bring back a cargo of dyes from the German laboratories.

Uruguay Wants to Trade

Uruguay has 150,000,000 pounds of wool that it wishes to sell to the United States. It is worth about $55,000,000. Uruguay offers to buy at least $10,000,000 worth of manufactured goods from the United States if the latter will take its wool. Uruguay also has $15,000,000 worth of hides to sell.

Southern Situation

The editor of the Houston Post wrote in New York recently said that while the situation in the southern states is pretty serious, no believes that in the end things will be adjusted without damaging results. He thinks that the farmers can stand the drop in cotton.

U. S. Cartridge Co.

The United States Cartridge company resumed night work last night. The plant had been operating nights but stopped about a month ago and since that time a day force has been maintained. It is rumored that the company has received a large order for cartridges from the war zone.

President Wood at it Again

President Wood of the American Woolen Co. is certainly hard put in his attacks on the present administration. He now terms the woolen industry "the football of politics." It will be remembered that not very long ago he said that if he could put wheels under his mills in Massachusetts he would run them out of the state. The mills are still here and, according to reports, prospering.

Boot & Shoe Workers Union

Organizer Daniel E. Whalen of the Boot & Shoe Workers union has called a special meeting for tomorrow night in the union headquarters in the Runkel building. The meeting will not be restricted to members of the union only, and every shoe worker in the city is earnestly invited to attend. Very important business will come up for transaction and Mr. Whalen will have some very interesting facts to bring before the notice of the gathering.

English Workers Ask Rent Reduction. Unemployment in England seems to be on the increase. On last Tuesday night in the town of Burnley the monthly meeting of the Burnley Trades council was held. The Burnley Trades council is a local association which was passed at a recent meeting. "That we instruct our labor and socialist members to move in the council chamber that the property owners be asked to reduce their rent until the termination of the war, or until trade resumes its normal condition."

Loomfixers Held Meeting. A very largely attended and interesting meeting was held last evening by the members of the Loomfixers union in the union headquarters in the Runkel building. President Pierre Courtois presided. A list of routine business was transacted. Several committees submitted important reports and they were accepted as read. Two propositions were received and they were acted upon. Communications from various sources were properly referred to the secretary. The secretary-treasurer's report showed the union to be in a strong financial condition and all members were urged to contribute.

Lawrence Mule Spinners Organized. An open meeting was held Saturday evening by the members of the Mule Spinners' union, local No. 7, in Mule Spinners' hall, 154 Broadway, for the purpose of organizing the mule spinners in the local mills. Branch of Mass. Mills in South. Engineers are now busily engaged at the Massachusetts mills in Lunenburg, taking out about 45 old style looms and installing in their places new automatic weaving machines, built by the Hopedale Co. of Holyoke, Mass. Plans for this work had been made some time ago. Eventually the company intends to replace all its old style machines with the latest automatic looms. The Georgia cotton factory is practically a branch of the Massachusetts mills of this city and is capitalized for $2,000,000. The Lunenburg plant has 97,000 ring spindles, 2650 broad looms, 560 narrow looms and 830 carders, driven by steam power and employing about 1500 operatives. Coarse sheetings, shirtings, duck and drills are the products.

South American Trade. Trade with South American countries is bound to grow, according to an observer of trade conditions, below the equator. This year of hard times in South America will not seriously set back development of business there. Heavy spring rains interfered with planting in several South American countries. So crops are small. In Argentina the rainfall was so heavy that the men could not go into the forests and get out logs. The war in Europe seriously hurt business in South America. Most of the banking there is done by English and German firms. The money market is so tight that a man might have trouble in buying a lead pencil, even if he had a letter of credit for a million. But capital from the United States is beginning to flow toward South America. The continent is so rich that it must develop. When it starts to grow, it will grow like the great west of the United States.

General Labor News. Cigar makers International and National Stogie makers leagues will amalgamate. Michigan unions urge the elimination of female workers in foundries. France created its first labor inspection department in 1874. Cooks and waiters union of Phoenix, Ariz., demand a uniform wage of $2 a day. England employs 125,115 women as against 122,353 men in the clothing industry. There are almost 2000 union women in the New York printing trades. In Serbia 267 or 7.8 per cent of the printers are organized. Canada and the United States have two and a half million organized workers. Five million workers are employed in the 800,000 factories and workshops of England. Women in Belgium who earn from 5 to 7 cents an hour are considered well paid. Halifax, Canada, has 24 local unions with a total membership of 1739. Within the last year iron molders throughout the country have increased wages 2.6 per cent. Men employed in the knitting industry in the Piedmont, Italy, district make from 47 to 72 cents a day. The union label stands for the right of workers to organize. Printers at Bulawayo, Rhodesia, So. Africa, are paid $12 a week. Philadelphia (Pa.) Teamsters union has a membership exceeding 15,000. A 44-hour week is aimed at by the International Photo-Engravers unions throughout the country. Carpenters at East St. Louis, Ill., will build a labor temple to cost $30,000. Labor federations will be established in Saskatchewan and other western provinces of Canada. Ladies' Garment Workers International has enforced a standard working week of 50 hours. Passes for workers in New York city are being organized and will join the United Hebrew Trades. Telegraphers in the employ of Canadian railroads will demand a semi-monthly payday. Elevator operators at Dallas, Texas, have formed a union. Carpenters at Galveston, Texas, are now receiving 56 1/2 cents an hour, an increase of 50 cents a day.

LOYAL WAMESIT LODGE OBSERVES ITS 25TH ANNIVERSARY BY BANQUET AT HAMILTON HALL. Twenty-five years of successful work were rounded out yesterday by Loyal Wamesit lodge, I. O. O. F., Manchester Unity, and the anniversary was observed with a supper and entertainment in Hamilton hall, Odd Fellows building, last evening, about 200 members and friends of the order attending. THE OFFICIAL REPORT ON TRUDEAU'S DEATH

Representative John W. Brennan of Brant is in receipt of a full report concerning the death of Ronald Trudeau of this city, who died at the Westboro state hospital on Sept. 26, the said report being from State Inspector Robert E. Mott to James A. Stiles, district attorney for Worcester county.

At the request of the wife of deceased, Rep. Brennan called upon Governor Walsh and asked the state's chief executive for an investigation of the death of Trudeau, who, the wife claimed had been brutally abused by some of the attendants at the hospital. The investigation was conducted by the state police and a copy of the report was sent to Rep. Brennan by the governor.

Worcester, Oct. 1, 1914.

Mr. James A. Stiles, District Attorney, Gardner, Mass.

Dear Sir: In regard to the death of Ronald A. Trudeau, a patient in the Westboro state hospital, who was found dead in one of the corridors at above named hospital, on September 26, 1914 at 1:30 a. m. The autopsy showed a fractured skull, and three ribs cracked, not broken.

James E. Pryor, 130 June street, Worcester, states that Trudeau (his patient) was restless all the forenoon, Trudeau going into the clothes room, and putting on extra clothing, and wandering to go to the kitchen.

About 10:15 a. m. Trudeau fell on the floor, and got up unassisted. At 11:15, Supervisor Simons advised taking off the extra clothing from Trudeau. Three persons, Simons, McDaniel and Pryor, removed the clothing from Trudeau while he was standing up. Supervisor Simons left at this time, and advised locking the door to the clothes room.

At this time, James E. Pryor, the attendant, was in the clothes room near the door and Trudeau rushed in and grabbed him about the waist. Thomas J. Smith, an attendant, had five patients in the wash room, and took hold of Trudeau by the shoulder.

At the door of the clothes room, which opened into the corridor, Smith released his hold and went back to his five patients in the wash room, which was a part of the clothes room. At this time, Smith saw Trudeau push Pryor into the corner against the wall, Pryor having released his hold of Trudeau. The patient, Trudeau, slipped, the back of his head struck the wall, and he then fell on the floor.

Smith, seeing both men on the floor, went back to his five patients in the wash room.

Thomas Baker was sent by one of the supervisors to notify Smith to come to dinner, and just got to the head of the corridor when he saw Pryor over in the corner of the floor, and Trudeau lying on his back on the floor. They immediately notified Dr. Atzinger, who came up and found Trudeau dead.

In our investigation, we learned that Attendant Pryor had reported to Dr. Atzinger early in the forenoon that Trudeau was getting beyond control.

Thomas Whalen, night watch in the ward in which Trudeau was confined, states that Trudeau came running down the hall during the night, being Trudeau's habit to go into the water section during the night. "After Trudeau went into the water section I heard a fall. I went in to see what the trouble was, and found that a patient, Mr. Kedjan, had thrown Trudeau on the floor. I separated them. They were scrambling, with Mr. Kedjan on top of Trudeau. The floor was a brick floor."

From all our investigation, I am of the opinion that the injuries to Trudeau were not the result of any attendant, but the result of a fight between James E. Pryor and a very consistent story. Everything he says is corroborated. Pryor states he was only person that had hold of Trudeau when they fell. The injuries to Trudeau's ribs were undoubtedly received when he was wrestling with Kedjan, another patient.

The fracture of his skull is on the back of his head, and I am informed it is a slight crack, hardly noticeable. His injuries are consistent with the story of a fight between two men.

We can find nothing that will indicate any person, or persons, being responsible for the injuries to Trudeau.

Under our investigation, I am of the opinion that if any act, by any attendant, other than accidental, was committed, we would have learned of it. I think the medical examiner is of the opinion we are, especially after we informed him of the evidence of Trudeau and another patient having a wrestling match and falling on a brick floor in the bath room during the night.

Yours respectfully,
(Signed) Robert E. Mott,
State Inspector.

ASSAULTED BY ROBBER

Woman in Tyngsboro Knocked Down—Change in Postmaster Predicted at No. Chelmsford

A woman named Mrs. Richardson was forcibly knocked down and assaulted last Wednesday night in Tyngsboro road, within a short distance of her home by an unknown man who afterwards made good his escape. Mrs. Richardson was on her way home, when the man who had apparently been hiding behind a clump of bushes, jumped out and attacked her. Her cries for help put the culprit to flight and he got away. Robbery was his intent, but he did not secure anything. Constable Marcell received word shortly after the assault and hurried to the scene but could find no traces of the man. It is believed that he made his escape over the boundary line.

000,000. The demand for capital for purely war purposes and for the settlements which succeed the war, said Mr. Conant, "will be so great as to absorb an amount equal to the entire savings for investments made in all civilized countries for a period of several years." The effect of this, he said, would be to raise the rate of interest on investment securities, higher than for many years.

FRENCH ARE NOW FIRMLY ESTABLISHED IN ALSACE

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Increasing satisfaction was shown by the people of Paris today on reading the latest reports from the front. These indicate that the allies are continuing offensive operations at points which, in the opinion of French observers, promise the best results. The action of the Belgian army and of a squadron of British warships in repulsing an attack by the enemy is a subject of particularly favorable comment.

The public was equally, if not more gratified with the announcement of the situation in Alsace. This was the first time in several days that the war office has indicated definitely the French positions. It is now seen that French troops have almost reached the outlet of the valley leading to the plains of the river Ill, which flows north through Alsace and empties into the Rhine. The French now consider that they are firmly established in Alsace on territory doubly dear to them. Word has been received also that the Germans are hastily preparing new defensive works around Strassburg and digging innumerable trenches in front of this city.

Vincennes have been leveled by the German engineers in the carrying out of this work.

The fighting in the vicinity of Lille has been watched with deep interest here, and it is hoped that not many days will pass before the allies take this position.

After long continued negotiations through the intermediary of the American legation at Bern, Switzerland, exchanges are about to be made among the belligerent countries of interned civilians.

WALSH AT HYDE PARK

Governor Greeted by Large Audience—Mr. Bird Raps Cong. Gardner—Other Rallies

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—A strong plea for municipal ownership was made by Gov. Walsh last evening at a democratic rally in Waverley hall, Hyde Park. Representative William L. F. Gilman presided at this rally and the speakers, in addition to the governor, were Sec. of State Donahue, Richard Olney 2d of Dedham, Charles N. Proctor of Randolph, David W. Murray of Hyde Park, George N. Hubbard, president of the Brooklyn Jeffersonian club, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Leon R. Byges.

The governor's speech follows in part:

"It must be apparent to even the ordinary man that as far as the government of large cities is concerned the tendency of the times is toward municipal ownership of public utilities, such as, for instance, municipal lighting. It may be a surprise to you to know that 36 cities and towns of Massachusetts are now engaged in municipal lighting."

"In many respects our city government, when compared with the enlightened cities of the Old World, are somewhat primitive in their municipal affairs. Glasgow, Birmingham and Manchester, those splendid citadels of British democracy, are keeping true to their traditions by trusting their commoners to manage and control large quasi-public corporations. They have met with conspicuous success."

"I believe municipal ownership within certain limits is good democratic doctrine, and I am strongly of the opinion and have been for some time that this community should again be the pioneer of industrial reform by lending a helping hand to her cities and towns to go into the business of municipal lighting, at least."

"While the democratic party did not get their ideals fulfilled in this respect, nevertheless a noticeable step forward was made by the passage of the act entitled 'An Act to Consolidate the Laws Relative to the Manufacture, Distribution and Sale of Gas and Electricity.'"

"This act points the way to one method of solving the great problem of cities and towns, buying existing municipal plants, and that is by having the commonwealth and the city secure proper experts to pass upon the valuation of the properties."

"The change that was made in the law of the last session, during my administration, was to provide an experienced and skilled commission to hear evidence, and that skilled and efficient board was the gas and electric light commission."

"While believing in municipal ownership, the efforts of the legislature this year have not been to induce cities and towns to hastily adopt such a policy without proper and mature judgment, and to that end we have conservatively retained the barriers that existed, viz. two elections at two successive years."

"To those cities and towns, however, who have finally made up their minds to adopt such a course the commonwealth stretches out its protecting arm to save them from being misled out of large sums of money either under the guise of the cost for experts or for elaborate preparation of the case, the expenses in the past being something enormous and altogether out of proportion to the object gained; in some instances bills having been rendered as high as $100,000 for costs of court and advice of so-called experts."

GIVEN HEARTY RECEPTION

WELLESLEY, Oct. 20.—Several hundred persons, many of them Wellesley college girls, crowded the town hall last evening at a democratic rally at which Gov. Walsh was the principal speaker. The governor was given a very hearty reception, the college girls being especially demonstrative in their enthusiasm.

Dr. Otto L. Schofield of the board of selectmen presided and the speakers, in addition to the governor, were Lieut. Gov. Barry, Judge Thomas P. Riley, Congressman James A. Gallivan, C. Edson Abbott and William L. Hill, the last two being local candidates for senator and representative, respectively.

ATTACKS CONG. GARDNER

Mr. Bird Urges McCall to Repudiate Gardner—Scores Congressman's Anti-German Speech

BROCKTON, Oct. 20.—Joseph Walker, candidate for governor; Charles Sumner Bird and other progressives spoke to 300 persons at Canton hall last night.

Mr. Bird referred to Samuel W. McCall, the republican candidate, as one of the most reactionary men in the country. Mr. Bird also attacked Congressman Gardner for his statement in congress last week to the effect that Germany was waging an unholy war.

"For such words," said Mr. Bird, "Mr. Gardner deserves the unmeasured censure of every citizen, independent of party, race or religion. President Wilson has asked the people of our country to preserve a neutral attitude in both speech and action toward those nations engaged in desperate warfare; here is a man, the chosen leader of the republican party last year, and this year the republican congressional representative of a great district in Massachusetts, who, in utter disregard of the solemn appeal made by President Wilson, flouts in the face of millions of German-American citizens the statement that the German cause is an 'unholy one' and a menace to the principles of democracy."

"I urge Mr. McCall and other republican leaders in Massachusetts to repudiate in no uncertain manner Mr. Gardner's speech, which reflects discredit and dishonor upon his party and upon the state."

Mr. Walker touched on municipal finances, having been asked to because this city has the highest tax rate in its history and one of the highest in the state. He said, in part:

"Our cities and towns are running into debt because it is to the political advantage of every administration to keep down the local tax rate, which is immediately known and felt, at the expense of the debt, an increase in which is not immediately felt. The day of reckoning is now at hand for most of our municipalities. The only sound policy is to pay as you go."

"Municipal extravagance can only be held in check by a budget system in which estimates and appropriations are placed directly upon the mayor, where it belongs, and he should not be allowed by the citizens to escape such responsibility."

"Old-fashioned economy, real efficiency."

EX-PRES. WM. H. TAFT

PRaises PRES. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—With an address of welcome by President Wilson, with former President Taft in the chair and the entire supreme court sitting as guests of honor, the American Bar association today began its annual session here.

In his introduction of President Wilson, Mr. Taft pledged the association's earnest co-operation and its deepest personal confidence in the president's ability and purpose to guide the ship of state safely through the European crisis. Mr. Taft declared the American people were back of the president in his handling of the international situation and that he had the confidence of the nation.

President Wilson's response was that his strength rested in the confidence of the people. He pleaded for the "humanizing of the law" in this time of international crisis, not only as respect international law but as to municipal law. His reference to himself as a lawyer who had reformed, brought forth tumultuous applause. He said the world was now "stirred to its depths" but the best course for a nation to pursue was the disinterested one. He added that the unsettled world condition made a good time for international crisis, not only as respect international law but as to municipal law. His reference to himself as a lawyer who had reformed, brought forth tumultuous applause. MRS. CARMAN'S MAID TO TELL OF CRIME

Celerity Unparalleled in a Murder Trial Marked the Second Day's Session in Case of Mrs. Carman, Charged With the Murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Celerity unparalleled in a murder trial in this section of the country marked the second day's forenoon session in the case of Mrs. Florence Carman, charged with the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman, the defendant's husband in Freeport on June 30 last.

Smith made his address to the jury and a dozen witnesses testified for the state. The star witnesses for the prosecution were yet to take the stand. The first witnesses simply established the whereabouts of the victim on the day of the murder, her death, its cause—a bullet wound—and but few of the details of the crime.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The Army and Navy football game will be played this year at Philadelphia on Franklin field on Nov. 28 and four annual games thereafter will alternate between New York and Philadelphia by an agreement between the army and navy athletic association in session at Annapolis, Md. This morning a report was sent out that the game was definitely abandoned but late today the decision to play the game was reached.

HERMANN TALKS WAR

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 20.—August Herrmann, chairman of the national baseball commission, this afternoon emphatically denied that he had had any talk with Charles Weeghman of the Chicago Federal league club by telephone or otherwise concerning peace in the baseball war.

"I have had only one talk with Weeghman," said Mr. Herrmann, "and that was a decidedly informal one in New York last week and it had nothing whatever to do with peace between organized baseball and the Federal league."

PEACE IN BASEBALL WAR

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Charles Weeghman, head of the local Federal league and August Herrmann, chairman of the national commission, last night reached a tentative plan for peace in the baseball war, according to a statement made by Weeghman today. The plan was discussed at a meeting here today which was attended by President Gilmore of the Federal league, E. F. Gates, the league's attorney, Weeghman, and at the annual meeting in New York Friday and Saturday it will be discussed by all the club owners.

TO BUY CHICAGO CUBS

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 20.—President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati Baseball club stated today that while in New York recently he had an informal talk with President Charles Weeghman of the Chicago Federal league club and that he knew negotiations were on with a view to Weeghman purchasing the Chicago National league club.

Mr. Herrmann stated, however, that the deal was not near completion, so far as he knew, and that he had not heard anything definite concerning it since he returned from the east.

BRITISH SUBMARINE SUNK BY GERMANS

Allies Threaten to Cut German Line—Battle in Region of Upres, Belgium—Heavy Fighting Along River Meuse—Paris Claims Entire Battalion of German Artillery Destroyed—Japanese Occupy German Island in Pacific—German Torpedoed Destroyed by Japs—Russo-Turkish Naval Battle Fought in Black Sea—King George Returns to London

That the allies are frustrating the attempt of the reinforced for the extreme right wing of the German army to skirt the English channel ports with the supposed object of the finding a new route to Paris is indicated by the French official statement given out this afternoon which asserts that the Belgian army is maintaining its position on the River Yser.

Further actions are being fought between the allies and the Germans in the region of Ypres, Belgium. From Ypres, the allied left wing extends to the English channel where it is being supported by British naval forces.

Along the remainder of the 350 mile battle front stretching from the North sea to Switzerland, where the defenders and invaders have been entrenched for 27 days, the only activity noted is that in the region of the Meuse river, where heavy fighting goes on incessantly principally in the vicinity of Camp Des Romains.

French batteries at St. Mihiel south of Verdun are reported to have destroyed an entire battalion of German artillery which had been active in sweeping the French positions.

Russian official reports say that the efforts of the Austrians to cross the river Dan have been repulsed. In the Pacific ocean Japan has occupied "for military purposes" the German islands in the archipelago of Marshall, Marianne and Caroline.

The occupation of Yap, one of the Caroline Islands, gives Japan control of the German cable station which connects China with the Malay archipelago. Tokyo officially announced that the German torpedoed S-90, after escaping under cover of darkness from Taling Tau, ran ashore at a point south of Kiao Chow bay and was destroyed by the Japanese blockading squadron.

Advices from Bucharest, Rumania, by way of Berlin, refer to earlier reports that a big Russo-Turkish naval engagement has been fought in the Black sea.

King George and Queen Mary returned to London today from Sandringham.

A report from Berlin via wireless to Sayville, L. I., says it was officially stated that the British submarine E-3 was sunk on Sunday, Oct. 18, by German warships in the North sea.

The destruction of the British submarine E-3 by German warships in the North sea, as announced from Berlin, is the first loss sustained by the British submarine service since the outbreak of the war. The E-3 was a comparatively new boat, having been completed in 1913. She was equipped with four 21-inch torpedo tubes and her complement consisted of 16 men.

JAPANESE OCCUPY FOR MILITARY PURPOSES ISLANDS OF THE CAROLINE GROUP

TOKIO, Oct. 20.—The navy department has announced the occupation for military purposes of strategically important islands in the Marianas or Ladrone, Marshall, East Caroline and West Caroline groups.

Jalut, in the Marshall group, was occupied Oct. 14 by a division of the Japanese fleet. Jalut, it is explained, was the base of the enemy's maritime operations in the Marianne, Marshall and eastern and western Caroline archipelago. The Japanese found two German vessels there. One cent herself to the bottom and the other was captured with her crew. No damage was suffered by the Japanese fleet.

The Marianne Islands lie directly east of Lubon and about 1200 miles off Manila. With the exception of Guam, all the islands in this group were sold by Spain to Germany in 1899 and form part of a government district of German new Guinea.

Previous announcement has been made of the occupation by Japan of islands in the Marshall and Caroline groups. The occupation of an island in the Marianne or Ladrone group has not previously been reported.

(d)—Applicant shall have reached a position calling for supervisory work, such as foreman in a small plant or assistant foreman in a large plant.

(e)—Physical condition and a personality which indicates the probability of making a successful instructor.

Principal Fisher will be glad to talk over the situation with any who come within the requirements.

Women who are on the waiting list for sewing, or all those who wish to register will please report at the Morrill school Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Some of those who registered did not appear so that there is a splendid opportunity in the classes for dresses, skirts, coats, shirt waists.

Those who wish to learn how to do their own dressmaking should fill up the vacant places. Miss Goodkin, in charge will take in new pupils until all the classes are well filled. The school is in much better working condition this year than ever before.

Third Edition CITY COUNCIL APPROVES PUBLIC MARKET TEST

Today's Meeting of the Municipal Council Delayed on Account of Message From Ald. Brown—Contract for Paving Blocks Approved—Business of Meeting

It looks now as if Lowell would have a public market on trial. The public market question will appear on the ballot at the state election and the suggestion that it be given a tryout beforehand in order that the voters might vote intelligently on the subject was offered by O'Sullivan Brothers. They addressed a letter to Mayor

Murphy, a copy of which appeared in The Sun on Saturday, in which they offered the use of a floor in the state building for a term of 30 days, the space in Worthen street formerly occupied by the "Crystal."

The letter from O'Sullivan Brothers was read at the meeting of the municipal council today and was accepted. Continued on page five

OVER $500,000 FOR TAXES

Checks and Cash Swell Strong Box at City Hall—Street Oiling and Watering

This was the last day for the payment of taxes, the busiest day of the year for the city treasurer and his assistants. Taxpayers were on hand as soon as the office opened at 9 o'clock this morning and everybody connected with the department will be busy as millers until the office closes at 9 o'clock tonight.

Up to 8 o'clock this afternoon the total amount collected exceeded $500,000 and cash and checks were still pouring in. There may have been a scarcity of money elsewhere, but the general treasury was being well provided for. The two biggest checks received were from the Massachusetts and Merrimack mills. The check from the Massachusetts was for $55,429.65 and from the Merrimack, $57,336.93.

Oiling and Watering Streets
There has been further inquiry as to the cost to the abutter of street oiling as compared with street watering and the answer is a simple one. The cost is exactly the same, 4 1/2 cents a foot for a 40 foot street, 5 1/2 cents a foot on a 50 foot street, and 6 1/2 cents a foot on a 60 foot street. The city, however, will have to pay more this year than was paid heretofore because of the fact that two appropriations were made this year, one for oiling and another for watering. The appropriation for oiling streets was $17,000, and for street watering $19,000. There was no appropriation for oiling last year and the appropriation for street watering was the same as this year, $19,000.

POPE DECLINES

Pontiff Would Not Bless the Troops of Austro-Hungary

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Jean De Bonnefont, a leading French Catholic, revealed yesterday that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austro-Hungary, in an autograph letter, implored Pope Benedict XV to bless the Austro-Hungarian army. The pope refused, reminding the Austrian emperor that he is also the spiritual protector of the Serbian Catholics. The kings of Bavaria and Saxony also asked the pope to bless their Catholic troops, but the requests were ignored.

M. Bonnefont makes public part of the new papal policy on war which Pope Benedict XV completed on Oct. 3rd. In it His Holiness asks: "What would be the position of the papacy materially deprived of liberty and enclosed in a narrow circle of a state, if that state separated it from all communication with civilization or even exposed the person of the pope and the sacred college to a bombardment of Rome, which is always possible in a European war? We don't demand temporal power, but facilities for the exercise of spiritual power."

The pope assumes the attitude of the guardian of the rights of men and the natural protector of religious buildings belonging to all denominations and hospitals of all nations during war.

Benedict XV also refers diplomatically to the capitulations abolished by Turkey to which the Vatican was one of the contracting parties.

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Troy gave Johnny Evers, captain of the Boston Braves, the world's champions, a rousing reception last night upon his return to his home in this city. There was a parade with 10 bands and several drum corps and more than 5000 men in line.

Nearly every organization in the city, including the chamber of commerce and the fire companies, were represented, besides many prominent business men. The marchers carried baseball bats and red fire, and each wore a large button the size of a tea saucer and which bore Evers' picture. Capt. Evers rode at the head of the column in an automobile with Mayor Burns and other city officials, and he was wildly cheered all the way. The streets were crowded with spectators and Greek fire illuminated the line of march.

After the parade there was a banquet at the state armory, at which about 500 guests were present. Evers was welcomed by Mayor Burns, and he responded briefly, expressing his appreciation of the honor shown him by his fellow-townsmen.

Among those present were: James F. Gaffney, president of the Boston Nationals; Joseph J. Lannin, president of the Boston Americans; Harry N. Hampstead, president of the New York Giants; Edward Barrows, president of the International League; George Stallings, manager of the world's champions; John B. Foster, secretary of the New York Nationals; John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants; John M. Cowen, commissioner of records, New York city, and Charles E. Gehring, superintendent of public records, New York city.

ON COMPENSATION ACT

A hearing coming under the workmen's compensation act was held at city hall this forenoon and it was the shortest hearing of its kind on record at city hall. The case had to do with Adolphus Johnson, who was injured while in the employ of James P. Robinson & Sons. The accident responsible for the injury, occurred on May 28, last, on a farm in Billerica. In attempting to get on a wagon the man's foot slipped and he fell heavily to the ground where he remained for three or four hours before assistance arrived. He was finally removed to the hospital and was attended by Dr. McAdams. An X-ray examination by Dr. Joseph McLean disclosed the fact that Mr. Johnson had dislocated and fractured a vertebra. It was stated at the hearing that Mr. Johnson had received $12 a week at the time of the injury and the insurance company expressed its willingness to continue to pay the usual amount, one half of the wages the injured one was receiving at the time of the accident, until such time as he is able to work again.

For Decatur J. Murphy was counsel for the petitioner and a Mr. Luther of Boston appeared for the insurance company. The arbitrators were Dudley L. Hoffman for the industrial board, Commissioner James H. Carmichael for the injured and Mr. Bancroft for the insurance company.

NO LEGAL PROCEEDINGS EXPECTED IN CASE OF AMERICAN STEAMER

HALEFAX, N. S. Oct. 20.—No legal proceedings were expected to be taken today in the case of the American tank steamer Brindilla, seized as a prize of war and towed here by a British cruiser on Sunday. It was explained that the soldiers employed by the British admiralty have not had time to prepare the necessary papers for American registry for the vessel.

Local attorneys generally believe that this case will be one of the most important in international law and that the validity of the transfer and also the validity of the congressional act of the United States providing for the transfer of property of war vessels built and owned ships will be tested. It is pointed out that if Great Britain refuses to recognize transfers of property after a declaration of war, a situation interesting from both the legal and international viewpoint will be opened. Halifax experts in admiralty law admit that they are not familiar with all the provisions of the recent act of the United States congress permitting changes in registry and therefore are uncertain whether the act conflicts with the provisions promulgated in the declaration of London regarding transfer of belligerent shipping.

The British prize crew remained on board the Brindilla today, but the steamer has not yet been handed over to the prize court marshal.

Case of Rabbi Wolfson Heard in Probate Court—Louis N. Price Opposed Petition

The court house on Gorham street was a busy place for a few hours this forenoon as three courts were in session from 10 o'clock until long after noon. The regular session of civil superior court was resumed after a day's adjournment while the monthly sitting of probate court also was held today.

In the contested session of probate court, Judge McIntire presiding, Rabbi Elias Wolfson of this city and his wife, Annie, entered a petition asking that they be allowed to adopt their grandchild, William Herbert Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Price, and change his name to Wolfson. Frank Goldman appeared for the petitioners and J. L. O'Neil for the respondent. Rabbi and Mrs. Wolfson, in their petition, allege that Louis N. Price has willfully deserted and neglected to provide proper care for the maintenance of the child for the past two years; and that the mother, Sarah N. Price, is confined in the state hospital at Danvers. They ask that the child be adopted by them, and that his name be changed to William Herbert Wolfson.

Three witnesses testified before Judge Lawton. He afterward declared that he would reserve his decision until a later date. Rabbi Wolfson, who resides on Howard street, told the court that he is the father of Sarah Price, aged 28 years. He stated that his daughter and son-in-law formerly lived in Framingham but a few weeks before the last child was born, Mrs. Price left her husband and went to her parents' home in Lowell. The boy, whose adoption is petitioned for, was born on April 15, 1912. The witness stated that since that time Mr. Price has never been to his house to see or inquire for the health of the child, although on several occasions he has met the older boy outside and talked to him for hours at a time.

Mr. Wolfson stated that he would like to adopt the boy William. He said that for 22 months after the boy was born he received nothing from the father toward the support of the child, later he received a check for five dollars with a letter saying that the money was for the child's support. Several checks for the same amount were received after that time, it was said.

Cross-examined, Rabbi Wolfson said that he never tried to avoid Mr. Price when out walking with the child and never asked anyone else to keep the child away from his father. He said he did not cash the checks because he did not believe they were in payment for the child's keeping.

Mrs. Wolfson corroborated the former witness' testimony, emphasizing that she wanted to adopt her grandchild. She said that they had clothed the child since birth and had only received one pair of shoes from the father.

Louis Price, a local business man and father of the child, took the witness stand and said he had done all in his power to care for his child. He admitted that he had not spent much money toward the boy's support, but stated that he had intentions of making back payments.

Mr. Price said he formerly lived in Framingham and came to this city in March of this year. He claimed he was afraid to go to his father-in-law's house to inquire for the child but said he had sent children to bring the

Sullivan's Pets Won
Joe Sullivan's Pets, and "Deak" Fin-negan's Stars, two three men; bowling teams, composed of employees of The Sun engaged in a little contest on the alleys last night and while no records were broken a few pins were and the alley boys had several narrow escapes.

The rivalry was intense and when a man on the opposing team would fall down or have a chance for a spare the shouting, especially when George Tighe's fog horn got going, resembled the G-man army shelling the Antwerp forts. Well, after a close fight, all the way, the trio rolling under the name of Sullivan's Pets came out on the long end of the score, having just 11 pins to spare. What were the scores? Oh, yes, well the other doesn't want his beneficiary to collect yet, so the scores are omitted. Suffice it to say that the game was a hummer and after a little practice Fred Pilote, who failed to pilot his team to victory, will be back with a challenge and the smiles adorning the countenance of the "Big Three" today will be supplanted by gloomy expressions, "may be," say the winners. The lineups and not the scores were as follows:

Sullivan's Pets: Joe Sullivan, George Tighe and Arlene Guy.

Finnegans Stars: Frank Finnegan, Fred Pilote and Capt. Mr. Arthur St. Hilaire.

Game Commissioners Refuse to Act on Protests — Pheasants Liberated Solely as Game Bird

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Chairman George W. Field of Sharon and George H. Graham of Springfield, members of the Massachusetts fish and game commission, in spite of state-wide protests, refused yesterday to take action relative to the slaughter of pheasants throughout the state.

According to a special act of the legislature, these two men, together with W. C. Adams of Winthrop, have absolute jurisdiction pertaining to the shooting of the pheasant, and it is in their power to shorten the season or stop altogether the shooting of these birds, which, according to scores of sportsmen, will be wiped out if the present shooting privilege is allowed to continue.

"Had No Complaints"
Commissioner Graham maintains that the pheasant was originally introduced into the state to be killed by hunters, and that, inasmuch as the hunter pays good money into the state treasury, he should be allowed to kill them.

And while scores of men high in professional life and in the world of sport cry that it is an outrage and a wholesale slaughter, the three commissioners say, "We have had no complaints therefore why should we stop the hunter from killing them?"

Cleaned Out in 1907
The present season on pheasants was opened by the fish and game commissioners on Oct. 12, for the first time since 1907, when the males were so badly cleaned up that it became necessary to put the ban on them again during the very next season. This ban has been on ever since and prominent sportsmen say that it is a pity to clean the birds out again just when they are getting a real foothold in the state.

Some insist that the season should be closed for at least two or three years more, while others say that a week is plenty enough time in which to shoot them. The present season does not end until Nov. 12.

The storm of protest against the slaughter of the birds this season, which began with the wiping out of 3000 on Columbus day, gained tremendously yesterday and resulted in demands being taken by sportsmen in the eastern section of the commonwealth to put an end to the needless slaughter of the semi-domesticated birds.

Dr. Cabot's Plan
Dr. Hugh Cabot of the Back Bay has come forward with the plan of vesting in the governor full power to shut off a disastrous open season whenever it has been found that needless destruction is resulting to any species of animal or bird life, and he has back of him such well-known sportsmen as Collector of the Port Edmund Hinkins and Joshua Crane.

Dr. Cabot's idea was expressed yesterday afternoon.
"I have read of the great numbers of pheasants killed. It seems to me needlessly, by hunters of Massachusetts during the first few days of the open season, and I think the slaughter should be shut off right away."
"The pheasant is an easy bird to get, especially to a man who has had experience shooting partridge and quail. My plan would be to vest more power in the governor of the commonwealth, so that he might shorten the season declared by the

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

A QUAIN LUNCHEON

"I am going to give a 'going away' luncheon to my niece before she starts for school and I want you to help me," pleaded Marjorie.
"Of course I will," answered helpful Marie. "Why don't you make it an aster luncheon?"
"I will if you'll tell me how," delightedly replied Marjorie.
"An aster luncheon given by your aunt last year was so pretty that I am sure a description will help you," said Marie.

"An aster means a 'star,' the centerpiece was a star-shaped form made of tin; it was filled with delicate pink and lavender radiated card-board and the names were written in white ink.
"There was a corsage bouquet at each place with a long violet headed pin. Pinkish lavender is a charming daytime color, but it does not light up well, so as the day was hot no artificial light was used, not even candles.

"There was no attempt made to carry out the color scheme in the food except candied violets were sprinkled over the top of the pineapple ice, which was served in tall glasses with pink lace paper doilies underneath; the plates were decorated in violets and the effect was lovely.
"For diversion the hostess provided easy chairs, hammocks and cushions, a box of delicious candy, a bowl of iced tea made strong with lemon and pineapple juice and then she proceeded to read aloud a most fascinating story.

"It was time to depart all too soon, and one of the guests facetiously remarked that 'she was so glad the hostess 'aster,' and everyone was kind enough to forgive the horrible pun, as it voiced the sentiments of all present."

fish and game commission on animals and birds as the results of the first few days demand. I would give him the right to close the season abruptly on certain species, his ruling to be held good till the next meeting of the legislature could meet to act on the matter.

"This, in my opinion, would put a check on any unwise things which might result from a too long initial open season. It is obvious to anyone now that the open season on pheasants is too long at this time, and the governor ought to be able to act whenever such an open season threatens the establishment of birds here, especially after so much money has been spent to import a species."

Commissioner's View
The following statement was issued by the fish and game commission yesterday:
"The fish and game commission has had called to its attention the articles in the press referring to the 'slaughter' of pheasants. While the commissioners do not care to enter into any controversy on the proposition, they deem it wise to point out to the public the following propositions:
"First—The pheasants were liberated in this commonwealth primarily and solely as game birds.
"Second—Unlike the quail and the ruffed grouse, the artificial propagation has developed to the point where they can be bred and raised in large numbers at a reasonable expense.
"Third—Their qualities as a game bird are pronounced, and the alleged tameness of the pheasant is entirely over-estimated or over-described to the public.
"The shooting of pheasants will direct a large percentage of the shooting population to the pursuit of these birds and away from the quail, ruffed grouse and woodcock, over the production of which latter birds man has today very little control.

Requires Report
"The last session of the legislature authorized the commissioners to open the season on pheasants in such counties as it appeared to them advisable, and subject to such bag limits and other regulations as they deemed necessary. The commissioners opened the season in seven counties, namely, Barnstable, Norfolk, Essex, Middlesex, Worcester, Hampden and Berkshire. They provided a bag limit of two birds a day, or six in a season, and further required that a report be sent to the state house of the date upon which birds were killed, the number and the sex, and the town in which they were killed.

"The first consideration, as pointed out above, is that these birds were placed in the covers at a substantial expense, but through revenues very largely, if not entirely, supplied by the sportsmen themselves. There is plenty of opportunity for that portion of the public who desire to increase the supply of insectivorous birds to carry on an active campaign to bring back some of these useful species, and the sportsman, as a class, feel that the pheasant is essentially a game bird. The talk of being 'game as chickens' is a very true in certain instances, but the same thing is equally true of any other varieties of game birds during the breeding season. It is entirely possible to get whole covens of quail on the ground, and in some sections of the country partridges when budding on the trees in the winter, but if a pheasant is hunted as a game bird, over a dog, his qualities as a game bird are many."

ing the breeding season. It is entirely possible to get whole covens of quail on the ground, and in some sections of the country partridges when budding on the trees in the winter, but if a pheasant is hunted as a game bird, over a dog, his qualities as a game bird are many."

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of TWO KINDS OF DENTISTRY. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old, harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work, and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. THIS IS DENTISTRY AS I DO NOT DO IT.
Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation; a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of DENTISTRY AS I DO PRACTISE IT. This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my PATIENTS. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use one may have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because IT WILL NOT HURT.
Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to CHOOSE if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at any offices? U.S. STEEL CORP.

Dissolution Suit is on Docket for Final Argument Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—After testimony has been taken in different sections of the country during the greater part of the last three years the government's suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation on the ground that its creation was a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law was on the docket of the United States district court here today for final argument. The suit was filed in the United States court for the district of New Jersey of Oct. 28, 1911, and was transferred to Philadelphia for argument before judges of the third judicial court.

The government asks that the corporation be broken up into the numerous companies that had been merged illegally, the government alleges, into the gigantic concern. The court is asked to divide under wholly independent ownerships, the following companies controlled by the Steel corporation:

The Carnegie Steel Co. of New Jersey, National Steel Co., American National Steel Co., American Sheet & Tin Plate Co., American Tin Co., American Sheet Steel Co., Federal Steel Co., American Steel & Wire Co., National Tube Co., Shelby Steel Tube Co. and the American Bridge Co.
The court is also asked to make independent the Duluth & Iron Range R. R. Co., the Duluth, Missabe & Northern R. R. Co., the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., Union Steel Co. and the Clairton Steel Co., and 50 ore and coal properties of the United States Steel Corporation other than those of the Tennessee Co. be divided among the Clairton, Union and

French Factories Closed—British Need Cars—Great Demand for American Machines

These are days of thrilling adventures and experiences for American representatives in Europe, and a foreign representative of an American company upon his arrival in New York the other day.

The car is well patrolled by British cruisers, and our trip over was without incident, although there was an atmosphere of suppressed excitement that kept the passengers keyed up.

The great war has affected the production of British-made automobiles but slightly, but that fact will have no bearing on the greater opportunities for American export that will eventually grow out of the struggle. While the factories are running overtime they are producing cars for government service.

The French factories are all closed, not from want of money, but from lack of labor. Every able bodied man from 21 to 50 years of age is at the front. The factory organization will be so badly demoralized at the close of the war that it will require months, if not years, for plants to return to full production. There should be a big demand for trucks and delivery vans and automobiles of low and medium price.

This fact should give American makers their opportunity for the expansion in the army will be short lived owing to the fact that factories are not in position to furnish damaged parts, and few cars used by the armies can ever be returned to the owners. European countries, with the exception of Great Britain, are and will be at the close of the war practically without automobiles. There should be, therefore, a great market for American cars.

Auto Business Readjusted
The automobile business has gradually become readjusted so that sound judgment prevails among manufacturers and consumers alike. The day has passed when a man's enthusiasm to own and drive a car will make him lose sight of the business side of the proposition at the time of buying. It is no easy matter to tell a man that a car is simple and that all parts are accessible, but the shrewd man insists on having it proved to him that such is the case. The manufacturer realizes that if he is to be continued in business it is to his interest to build a car that will give years of continued satisfaction.

Common sense will tell a man that a cluttered up engine will not last as long as the neatly designed, clean cut engine, and the tendency is to eliminate all complications and make one part do the work of two parts in a better way. A chassis with a few parts cannot wear out as quickly and make the noise that one with many parts will.

The thinking man is looking for economy and he will hesitate in buying gasoline for a car that has a weight of around 700 pounds per passenger when he can get the same with less weight and less fuel consumption.

He knows it is expensive to push the extra 100 pounds around just for the fun of it. The foolishness of useless weight has been realized and the automobile designer is doing much to reduce it. The result is that the mileage per gallon of gasoline is being doubled. The sensible man is going deeper than the bore and stroke, and the body finish. The combining of all the good points of motor car construction in one car appeals, and saves much explaining on the part of the manufacturer and dealer.

Complications Eliminated

fought shy of them. They had the money and the inclination, but lacked the necessary confidence in the cars themselves. This was due in a measure to the complicated construction of the operating devices and the machinery in general.

This fault has been entirely eliminated in the modern automobile. A man no longer worries about a hundred and one things while driving his car and does not have to familiarize himself with each and every little detail of its construction. After one or two lessons he acquires the necessary confidence and all that remains for him to do is to follow a few set rules.

There was a time when a man did not feel safe in taking his family out unless he had an experienced chauffeur at the wheel. There were so many things, liable to happen at a moment's notice, requiring the attention of a practical man, that he did not care to take a chance on his own meager knowledge of the car. But those times have passed. The young son or daughter nowadays is just as expert at driving as the father and it is a common occurrence to see the junior member of a touring party piloting the car across country. In fact the operation is so simple that the father often finds the garage empty when he least expects it.

Mr. Bachelder Announces 1915 Indian

After many moons the new 1915 In-

Indian is announced and George Bachelder, who has charge of the local reservation of this silent automobile, is impatiently awaiting his arrival.

About the new model his chief Bachelder speaks most enthusiastically. It has many important changes both in mechanism and beauty. The improvements number about thirty.

To quote Mr. Bachelder:

"Indian leadership has never had greater exemplification than in its 1915 models; never achieved so sure and so fully; never, for all its remarkable past, more deeply justified its position as the premier machine of its kind."

"For some time there has been a desire among riders for a light-weight machine developing 10-horse power. To meet this demand the manufacturers of the Indian have developed a light-weight, twin-cylinder model of 10-horsepower, which is 75 pounds lighter than the regular twin. It is expected that this machine will prove unusually attractive to those who want a light motorcycle for city use, or who dislike the weight of the high-powered twin."

"One of the main features of this model is the motor construction. All the bearings and cam mechanism are identically the same size as are used in the larger twin. A specially designed roller-bearing clutch is used that amply takes care of the power and weight of the machine plus the strains and usage."

Mr. Bachelder tells of the sad plight of a machine he witnessed on the road to Littleton, N. H., last Sunday. While bowling over the road at the start of his trip a big, heavy machine swept past him majestically and soon left him out of sight. After covering a number of miles Mr. Bachelder saw this same machine, but it was stationary—very stationary. In fact it was sitting very solidly on its differential. As he passed the unfortunate car Mr. Bachelder turned to his companion in the car and with his quiet smile said: "It pays to make haste slowly."

IMPORTANT TRADE CONFERENCE LUNCH CART MEN FINED

To Be Held at Copley Plaza Friday, Oct. 30, for Business Men

Methods of Industrial Development to be Discussed

Mr. Edwin Mulready, commissioner of labor sends out the following announcement of a conference on "Industrial Development and Foreign Trade Extension," to be held on Friday, October 30, at the Copley Plaza, Chairman Alfred W. Donovan of the state board of labor and industries today called attention to the fact that Massachusetts leads all the other states in the establishment of an industrial development bureau. The Bay State, Mr. Donovan says, is the first of the states to go after foreign trade as a state.

The Copley Plaza conference, one week from Friday, will do something more than "discuss" opportunities in the way of foreign-trade extension. Men really interested will be given specific information; will be told "how."

Chairman Donovan maintains that there has been a sufficiency of "planning" and that what Massachusetts manufacturers and Massachusetts industrial workers want to see now is action, more action, and more action. The state board is prepared to furnish the power.

Manufacturers, wholesalers, bankers and workers will attend the Copley Plaza conference which will be a commonwealth wide affair to present-day opportunities and will be told just how to take advantage of great masses of information that have been collected, for their benefit.

Chairman Donovan, himself a shoe manufacturer, will preside at the conference and will introduce speakers of national reputation. One of these speakers is likely to be Secretary Redfield, of the department of commerce and labor. There will be but one subject.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

and placed on file. The city clerk was instructed to notify the lessees of the council's action and to have the council's intentions and while the council has nothing to do in the matter, the members expressed the hope that the trial would prove a success. The council voted that the trial would assist the people to vote intelligently on the public market question.

The council was late, as usual, in getting down to business. The meeting was delayed because of a telephone message received by the mayor from Commissioner Brown who was on his way home from New York. The mayor waited until 1:45 before calling to order and Mr. Brown was still absent, but put in an appearance soon after the meeting started.

The first business before the meeting was to do with a petition by the Lowell Electric Light corporation for the garage and gasoline houses. The company asked for a renewal of a permit issued in 1912, the permit having expired. Permission was granted. Then there followed other similar petitions all of which were referred.

A petition by the Bay State Street Railway company, for a relocation in Lawrence street, near Lippin street, was voted a hearing Nov. 10. The petition of W. E. Hatch, Home Coal company, American Safety Tread company, and others for gasoline and garage licenses were set for hearings on Nov. 10.

Francis B. McGrath was appointed a whipper of coal, Kazimierz Pogorski

TWO NERVOUS WOMEN

Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headache, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness."

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicines the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."—Mrs. MARY JOHNSON, 210 Siegel Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Bad Case.

Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysterical spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."—Mrs. J. W. HORNBERGER, R. No. 3, Ephrata, Pa.

For over thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as dyspepsia, indigestion, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

OTAWA, Ont., Oct. 20.—L. P. Pelletier has resigned as postmaster general and was succeeded this afternoon by T. Chas. Chagnon, of Montreal. B. Nantel, minister of inland revenue, was appointed to the railway commission to succeed M. E. Bernier, whose term had expired.

P. E. Blondin, deputy speaker of the commons, was appointed to succeed Mr. Nantel.

ject: "The Development of Massachusetts Trade and Industry."

"But the emphasis of the conference," Mr. Donovan says, "will not be on the formal addresses but on a general discussion of the practical industrial problems of Massachusetts, and on the most immediate and practical way of strengthening and expanding Massachusetts industries."

With that end in view the present problem of foreign-trade extension will be given great prominence and the greater part of an all day program will be taken up with discussions from the floor.

"The most important feature of the day, perhaps, will be the Question Box."

"A number of experts of national reputation on industrial expansion and foreign trade have promised to be present. Anybody in Massachusetts is privileged to submit in writing any question relating to the concrete problems of securing foreign trade, or of securing domestic trade, or of securing new industries. The best men who can be discovered will be asked to stand up before the conference and reply to these questions with specific information."

This conference, it is announced, will be divided into two sessions, lasting from 10 o'clock in the forenoon until 12:30 p. m., and from 1:30 o'clock until 5:00 p. m.

made application for appointment as constable and was given leave to withdraw. Commissioner Carmichael allowed that Lowell has as many constables as are necessary at the present time, and a few extra, and it was on his motion that Mr. Pogorski was given leave to withdraw.

Mayor Murphy read a letter from the city service commission stating that the commission would, by Nov. 2, install the system for the registration of city laborers and mechanics and on the mayor's motion it was voted to appropriate $75 for the installation of the system.

Went Their Money.

There may come a time when no old bills will be hanging here at city hall, but the chances are decidedly remote, about as remote as the possibility of old bills being the Huntington hall fund. Old bills are forever showing their heads at council meetings. Today the mayor read a communication from Thomas Rafferty & P. A. Carlin. The city owes them $1870.48 for paving blocks and they want their money. It has been hanging there for a year or more and it will be owed them a while longer as the council voted to refer the matter to the city solicitor.

The State Election.

The call for the meeting of the voters for the state election, Nov. 3, was read by the mayor and the order accompanying the call was adopted. The report on the petition of Harry D. Marzani and others for a sewer in Lawrence street was accepted and an order appropriating $415.00 for the construction of the sewer was adopted.

For Public Square.

Mayor Murphy read a communication for the city beautiful committee of the board of trade relative to the use of land in Gorham and Carlisle streets for a public square. It was stated in the letter that the land could be purchased for $150. The mayor thought it would be better to make the land in question a part of the street instead of establishing a square. The matter was referred to the mayor and the commissioner of streets and highways.

School Board Objects.

The school committee complains of a sort of robbing Peter to pay Paul act that has been going on in connection with the building in Kirk street used last year by the high school as a temporary annex. The building is occupied at the present time. The school committee still continues to pay $50 a month rent for the building while the $50 a month received from the present occupants and its way to the general treasury. The committee had a communication before the council and it was accepted and placed on file.

Contracts Approved.

The contract entered into by Commissioner Donnelly for the plastering of the Kirk street annex to the high school, amounting to $350, was approved. It was also the contract between the purchasing agent and the Hildreth Granite Co. for 250,000, more or less, paving blocks at $3.00 a thousand.

Sunday's Band Concert.

On motion of Commissioner Donnelly the council voted its appreciation of the excellent band concert rendered by the Lowell Musicians union on the South common last Sunday afternoon, when the new band stand was dedicated.

The council adjourned to meet again on Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

L. P. PELLETIER RESIGNS.

OTAWA, Ont., Oct. 20.—L. P. Pelletier has resigned as postmaster general and was succeeded this afternoon by T. Chas. Chagnon, of Montreal. B. Nantel, minister of inland revenue, was appointed to the railway commission to succeed M. E. Bernier, whose term had expired.

P. E. Blondin, deputy speaker of the commons, was appointed to succeed Mr. Nantel.

Had Milk Below Standard—Youth Fined for Carrying Revolver—Other Cases Heard

Five breakfast appearing keepers of lunch carts made their way up to the bar of the local police court this morning to plead to the charge of selling milk below the standard. In every case the defendant was found guilty. Joseph McAttee, Moulton avenue and Middlesex street, Joseph L'Hercule, Merrimack and Suffolk streets, William A. Walsh, Western avenue, Alphonse Plourde, Stackpole and East Merrimack streets, and Albert Allard, Moody and Warren streets, were the unfortunate brought before Judge Enright today.

The Masters-Coughlin combination had proved too strong for them in every case. Collector Coughlin bottled samples of milk in each lunch cart and then Inspector Masters found it below standard. Five $10 fines were the result of this morning's activities.

Stray Youth Had Revolver.

Morris E. Littleton, a youth of eighteen years, was found about one o'clock this morning up at the Junction of Central and Middlesex streets by Officer Patrick Clark and stopped as a suspicious character.

When the young fellow failed to answer the officer's questions in a convincing manner he found himself pinched and on the way to the market street toms. When he was searched a revolver came to light and abetted by a box of business-like cartridges.

Young Littleton was charged with carrying a pistol and pleaded guilty. He gave short and evasive answers to the questions put to him today and Judge Enright ordered a fine of $50 to be imposed. The defendant gave his home as Taunton but showed little knowledge of that place.

Sold Deceitful Horse.

James Jacobson was present at this morning's session as a requested guest, said request being made because James sold a horse which was unfit for work. And you mustn't sell that kind of a horse.

The officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals who captured the defendant also captured some photos of the horse which was sold. At first inspection a guess was necessary in order to differentiate between a healthy and a skeleton.

The poor animal was bleeding at the hoofs, the officer said, and was in a general tumbled down condition. The equine might have been 30 years old, said the witness.

It seems that the defendant brought the animal a distance of six miles or so over the road to an auction here and attempted to sell it there. Failing in this he later sold the pony for $3. Without saying more—it was some steeper.

The law states plainly that no one shall sell a horse either in public or private which is unable to work. The defendant allowed that he sold the horse to be killed. As a stranger in this city he could find in the court, it was argued, a not it cost him $20 to sell a $3 horse.

Stole Detective's Book.

It's going pretty far when a chap with a propensity for other people's belongings picks out a detective to work on, but that's just what Louis W. Mulhinch did one day last July. Louis was accused of "going south" with a pair of rubber boots belonging to Maj. Noyes, the guardian of the majority of Lowell's large corporations.

The major, the pawbroker where the defendant sold the boots and several others would a chain of circumstantial evidence about Louis which really should have proved vastly discouraging. But Louis was very certain that a mistake had been made even when confronted with his own contradictory evidence.

Louis was also asked whether or not he had been drunk. He had been drinking, said the witness in a dignified manner. The third complaint against the defendant accused him of being a shiftless husband.

Judge Enright found him guilty of stealing the boots but withheld sentence until tomorrow when his other two cases will be heard.

Brown Benten Up.

Sumner L. Brown was arrested by Patrolman Connelino and to Judge by appearances this morning. Sumner was a man who was passed over by the road roller. Both eyes bore evidence of contact with some solid substance, not that we mean to call the officer names or anything like that. The defendant's general appearance seemed to be one of lassitude.

The chief informed the court that Sumner was a special counsel for the commission, laid stress on his questions on the Baltimore & Ohio investment of more than $200,000 in the Ohio line and its assumption of obligations of a like amount.

The witness said the investment represented only an interest charge of $1,000,000 annually and insisted that would not have effected the present situation of the line.

Mr. Willard declared the present condition of all railroads was such that they were compelled to allow their rolling stock and roadways to drop below standard.

ABOLITION OF COMMISSION.

Proposed in Bill to Be Introduced in Michigan—Plan to Have Streets Under One Head.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 20.—Councillor Michael F. O'Neil will present a bill at a meeting of the city council providing for the abolition of the street commission. The bill, if accepted, will be sent to the legislature next year for consideration.

The bill provides for the abolition of the street commission and the creation of a new commission to consist of one member, who shall be an engineer. The bill is similar to one introduced in the legislature last year and defeated.

MISAPPROPRIATED FUNDS.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 20.—George Brewster of Newburgh, a prominent lawyer, pleaded guilty in the supreme court at Goshen this afternoon to misappropriated funds belonging to the Erie hospital. He was sentenced to hard labor in Sing Sing for not less than two years or six months.

Raymond St. Marie of Moose River, Me., is the guest of Edouard Houle of Moody street.

ran from the office to the side of the lawn and with Archie Post, searched for the murderer, but saw no one. The police then returned to the office. Dr. Carman's office, where he saw Mrs. Bailey lying on the floor gasping for breath. Then he went out and looked at the broken window. When he returned he helped Mrs. Powell and Dr. Carman lift Mrs. Bailey's body to the sofa.

Woman in white, Golder said, passed down the hall from the foot of the house and rear and back again a few minutes before the shooting. From the time the woman in white passed down the hallway till he heard the crash of breaking glass and the revolver shot, the witness said that he had seen no one else in the hall.

Golder completed his testimony at the opening of the afternoon session. The woman who admitted Golder to the building room, according to the evidence of Hazel Cowles, was Mrs. Carman and the latter wore a dark shirtwaist, Miss Cowles said.

Archie Post testified that he was in the waiting room with Golder and that at that time porters were drawn about a person might have passed down the hall without being seen by anyone in the room.

Post said he had helped Golder in the quest for the person who fired the shot but saw no one. About half an hour after the shooting, he said, he heard Dr. Carman call up Dr. Runcle on the telephone.

Walter Cozens, a Freeport policeman, testified it was nine o'clock when Dr. Carman called up police headquarters and asked that a man be sent to his office.

Mrs. Elizabeth Varance, a trained nurse, whose face Mrs. Carman slapped in a fit of jealousy a few months before the murder of Mrs. Bailey, was the next witness.

TO RAISE FREIGHT RATE

HEARING WAS DEVOTED LARGE-LY TO CROSS-EXAMINATION OF PRES. WILLARD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The hearing by the inter-state commerce commission on the application of eastern railroads for increased freight rates on their contention that financial exigencies brought on by the European war made them needful, was devoted largely to a cross-examination of President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio on the relations of that system to the Cincinnati Hamilton & Dayton.

Louis D. Hunt, special counsel for the commission, laid stress on his questions on the Baltimore & Ohio investment of more than $200,000 in the Ohio line and its assumption of obligations of a like amount.

The witness said the investment represented only an interest charge of $1,000,000 annually and insisted that would not have effected the present situation of the line.

The bill provides for the abolition of the street commission and the creation of a new commission to consist of one member, who shall be an engineer. The bill is similar to one introduced in the legislature last year and defeated.

MISAPPROPRIATED FUNDS.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 20.—George Brewster of Newburgh, a prominent lawyer, pleaded guilty in the supreme court at Goshen this afternoon to misappropriated funds belonging to the Erie hospital. He was sentenced to hard labor in Sing Sing for not less than two years or six months.

ran from the office to the side of the lawn and with Archie Post, searched for the murderer, but saw no one. The police then returned to the office. Dr. Carman's office, where he saw Mrs. Bailey lying on the floor gasping for breath. Then he went out and looked at the broken window. When he returned he helped Mrs. Powell and Dr. Carman lift Mrs. Bailey's body to the sofa.

Woman in white, Golder said, passed down the hall from the foot of the house and rear and back again a few minutes before the shooting. From the time the woman in white passed down the hallway till he heard the crash of breaking glass and the revolver shot, the witness said that he had seen no one else in the hall.

Golder completed his testimony at the opening of the afternoon session. The woman who admitted Golder to the building room, according to the evidence of Hazel Cowles, was Mrs. Carman and the latter wore a dark shirtwaist, Miss Cowles said.

Archie Post testified that he was in the waiting room with Golder and that at that time porters were drawn about a person might have passed down the hall without being seen by anyone in the room.

Post said he had helped Golder in the quest for the person who fired the shot but saw no one. About half an hour after the shooting, he said, he heard Dr. Carman call up Dr. Runcle on the telephone.

Walter Cozens, a Freeport policeman, testified it was nine o'clock when Dr. Carman called up police headquarters and asked that a man be sent to his office.

Mrs. Elizabeth Varance, a trained nurse, whose face Mrs. Carman slapped in a fit of jealousy a few months before the murder of Mrs. Bailey, was the next witness.

Mrs. Varance testified that before coming into the office to slap her Mrs. Carman pulled the window blind and that through which Mrs. Bailey was afterward shot. The incident occurred April 20 of this year.

Says Loss of Ships Sunk by British Will Increase Rather Than Decrease Pride of German Navy

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—(Wireless)—Information given out today in German official circles says:

Although the news of the fate of the German torpedo boats S 115, S 117, S 118 and S 119, which were sunk by British warships off the Dutch coast, has aroused feelings of deep regret throughout Germany, the loss of the ships will rather increase than decrease the pride of the Germans for their navy. The crews are much beloved but the vessels were but of little value.

Senator Strands, of Hamburg, has been appointed civil governor of Aulwerp.

Although two Belgian majors have related to a war correspondent of the Nieuws van de Dagh, that the German half of the Belgian army has been interned in Holland, a quarter of the whole army has deserted, they declare.

LATE WAR NEWS

NO CONFIRMATION OF THE STORY THAT ALLIES REOCCUPY OSTEND

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Nothing has been received up to the present time from the German intelligence department to counteract the British impression conveyed in the news both official and unofficial published here that the tide of battle in the eastern and western theatres is not for the moment flowing in favor of Germany.

The picture, however, continues so blurred that it is impossible except for the commanders on the spot accurately to gauge the effect of the momentary changes on the ultimate result so it may well be that the German great general staff when it considers the time right will present a scene of an entirely different aspect.

The Belgian minister at London has no confirmation of the story that the allies have reoccupied Ostend but in any case the German hold on that seaport must be somewhat precarious if the allies still retain the positions assigned to them in the latest French official statement.

Should the allies push their wedge beyond Roulers, where its point rested yesterday, Ostend would be in considerable danger of being cut off from the rest of the German army.

The Germans are making great efforts to break through their opponents' lines in the neighborhood of Arras, whereas General Joffre's statement points out that fighting has proceeded for ten days without a respite.

Millions in Conflict.

News of the conflict of millions of men along the Vistula river in Russian Poland is mostly of a negative character. Each of the vast armies claim that its opponent is on the defensive and neither pretends to have secured anything like a permanent advantage. The Austrians for the moment are claiming far more success against the Russians than are the Germans but even admitting the correctness of their claims their forces which are alleged to be driving the Muscovites out of the Carpathian mountains still are at least 70 miles south of both Przemyel and Lemberg.

Further to the southward, the Serbians are utilizing all the available strength in a general assault on Surazev. They especially are desirous of being in possession of the Bosnian capital before the court has given its decision in the trial of Gavril Princip, whose assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the Austrian heir apparent, was the direct cause for the war of the nations.

The significance of the announcement that Canada will keep sending batches of volunteer reinforcements, each numbering 10,000 men, so long as the war lasts, is fully appreciated in comments heard both in London and on the continent.

PATIS SAYS ALLIES HAVE MADE ADVANCE AT VARIOUS POINTS ON FRONT

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The French official communication, given out this afternoon, says that the Belgian army is holding its position at Yser. The "win" left wing the Germans continue to hold strongly their advance posts around Lille in the direction of Arras, Fournes and La Bassée.

"On the Meuse the enemy has endeavored in vain to drive back the advance posts of our troops, who have moved out along the right bank of this stream in the peninsula of the Camouff-Bonchamps."

"To sum up, during the day of October 12 we have made progress at various points on the front."

"Russia in East Prussia and on the Vistula river there is no change in the situation. The efforts of the Austrians to cross the river San have been repulsed. The battle south of Przemyel is unchanged and conditions favorable to the Russians."

The Belgians are somewhat the same in character but the recent damage to so many cities of Belgium has rendered them rather gloomy, though they are still full of fight and confident of eventual victory.

The British appear to be ready to seize the slightest opportunity to play the game when off duty. They are always cleanly shaven and love to plunge into a creek or river. Behind their trenches are many kneeling troughs captured from the German commissariat and now turned into tubs.

The Indian troops maintain a dignified silence except when in action. Then they utter weird cries in their eastern languages as they enter the fight.

BURNING HOUSES INDICATE LINE OF FIGHTING IN NORTHWEST BELGIUM

LONDON, Oct. 20.—"Burning houses indicate the line of fighting in northwestern Belgium," telegraphs the Flushing correspondent of the Evening News under date of Monday. "The northern columns of the Germans have been increased with reinforcements brought at night by train from Bruges, where there are now but few Germans left."

PRESIDENT WILSON TO UNDERWOOD

Could the letter of President Wilson to Chairman Underwood, relating to the work of the present session of congress, be read by every intelligent voter in the United States, and judged in a non-partisan spirit, it would prove the most convincing campaign document of the moment. Meant to be read by the general public and also meant to take the place, in part, of the personal speeches which the president had intended to give in many districts before critical international matters caused him to alter his plans, it is a masterly review of a fruitful and beneficial congressional session and incidentally a most convincing argument for the continuation of the democratic party in the control of government.

Without beating about the bush or making any apologies for his statement, the president, in the first paragraph, declares his firm conviction that "the people of the country have been served by the members of this congress as they have seldom, if ever, been served before." The one main intention of this service he declares to have been "to destroy private control and set business free." To demonstrate how it has been done, he declares: "That purpose was manifest enough in the case of the tariff and in the legislation affecting trusts; but, though perhaps less evident upon the surface there, it lay at the very heart of the currency bill, too." He adds that the freedom of business "has been the object of the foreign policy of the government during the last 18 months."

Then follows a discussion of the tariff which the chief executive calls the safest hiding place and covert of private control. He regrets that the war in Europe started before the new law could vindicate itself, and he also expresses regret that the falling off in revenue makes a war tax necessary, but he emphasizes a point seldom mentioned by economists or politicians of any party, viz: that "The import duties collected under the old tariff constituted a much larger proportion of the whole revenue of the government than do the duties under the new. A still larger proportion of the revenue would have been cut off by the war had the old taxes stood, and a larger war tax would have been necessary as a consequence."

With splendid condensation and characteristic clearness of expression, he deals with the subject of monopoly, declaring that the total rejection of monopoly is the point on which the democratic party differs from all other parties most sharply. "We have seen," he said, "the nature and the power of monopoly exhibited. We know that it is more apt to control government than to be controlled by it; for we have seen it control government, dictate legislation, and dominate executives and courts." To this there is no answer that does not agree with his subjoined declaration: "We will not consent that an ungovernable giant should be reared to full stature in the very household of the government itself."

The letter does not conclude with the necessarily limited review mentioned. It contains a summary of the program of constructive legislation remaining unfinished. The president calls attention particularly to the necessity for building up the merchant marine and "the completion of a great program for the conservation of our natural resources and the development of the water power of the country." He also says truly that "without a congress in close sympathy with the administration a whole scheme of peace and honor and disinterested service to the world, of which they have approved, cannot be brought to its full realization."

Having gone over the record of achievement and forecasted the future, the president had good reason to say in conclusion:

The democratic party is now in fact the only instrument ready to the country's hand by which anything can be accomplished. It is united, as the republican party is not; it is strong and full of the zest of sober achievement, and has been rendered confident by carrying out a great constructive program such as no other party has attempted; it is absolutely free from the entangling alliances which made the republican party, even before its rupture, utterly unserviceable as an instrument of reform; its thought, its ambition, its plans are of the vital present and the hopeful future. A practical nation is not likely to reject such a team, full of the spirit of public service, and substitute, in the midst of great tasks, either a party upon which a deep demoralization has fallen or a party which has not grown to the stature that would warrant its assuming the responsible burdens of state. Every thoughtful man sees that a change of parties made just now would set the clock back, not forward. I have a very complete and very confident belief in the practical sagacity of the American people.

IRELAND AND THE WAR

The fate of Ireland is linked with that of England in the present war and were it not for the protection afforded by the British navy, the Emerald Isle might suffer as much from German aggression as did poor little Belgium. For the past ten, or we might say fifteen, years England has done more for Ireland than for her own people and as a result Ireland today is under preeminently just laws, while the people enjoy a degree of prosperity never enjoyed since the days of Grattan's parliament. All that is now needed is a measure of local self government to increase that prosperity and provide industrial opportunities for a much larger population so that the stream of emigration may be stopped and the people remain contented and happy in their own land.

If the Irish people want to safeguard home rule they should follow the advice of their distinguished leader, Mr. Redmond, who foresees the disaster that might come from any attitude of indifference or of antagonism to England in her death struggle with Germany.

For many years past the Irish leader and his party pleaded for home rule on the ground that it would go far to overcome the enmity of the Irish race towards England on account of her mistreatment of Ireland in the past. The time has come to test the sincerity of these professions of good feeling as a result of granting home rule. If the people follow Mr. Redmond's wise counsel they may not only save home rule but avert subjugation by Germany.

If Germany should win in this war all the reforms won by Ireland during the last twenty years would be trampled down like a house of cards and instead of the freedom anticipated under home rule, would come a new era of oppression even worse than that from which she is now almost emancipated.

England in this war is fighting Ireland's battle as well as her own and if she wins she may try to punish the Irish people should they fail to render generous aid in the terrible war with Germany. On the other hand should England lose in the war Ireland would then have to shoulder a heavy responsibility for having held aloof on the pretext that it is none of her affair.

If the Nationalists of Ireland do not send a reasonable quota of recruits to the army, the liberals are likely to repeal the home rule act when the war is over or else pass an amendment for the exclusion of Ulster.

If the liberals mismanage the war, the English people will turn them out and put the Tories in power. In that case the home rule act would be promptly repealed unless Nationalist Ireland had done her full share in the war. If the Irish people be guided by their able leader, Mr. Redmond, the interests of the nation will be safeguarded under the worst contingencies that can arise—short of German domination, of course.

If in this emergency the people listen to the men who criticize Redmond and try to spread factional strife by asking "Why should Irishmen fight England's battles?" they may forfeit home rule.

and most of the other liberties they have won, through the old curses of disunion. The question is, "Why should not Ireland help to fight her own battles and thus not only save her promised freedom but help avert the threatened subjugation by Germany and all this would mean in a reign of militarism under which the Irish Nationalists would have to fight the battles of Germany whether they liked it or not. In such a national crisis every country, and especially Ireland, should look to its accredited leaders whose patriotism, honesty and statesmanship have been well tried, rather than follow the fanatics of factional strife whose councils would lead to national disaster."

BRIGHT SPOTS

It is refreshing to find that from entirely unexpected quarters appeals are being issued to the American public to forget the dark side of the business situation due to the European war and to cultivate a cheerful attitude. "Fibro, and Fibre," the well known weekly review of the American trade, is one of the latest to sound the clarion call of optimism, advising its readers to "consider the bright spots in the situation" instead of "casting about for lumps of darkness." Then in the best manner of a business journal it proceeds to enumerate some bright spots that presage sunshine when the clouds are blown away.

One of the bright spots mentioned is the greater use of fabrics in the manufacture of shoes than ever before. Most of the expensive skins used in the manufacture of high grade shoes have come from abroad, particularly from Russia and Germany, and since the supply is cut off almost entirely, the American textile manufacturer has been called upon to supply a substitute. Even before the war there was a tendency to use American textile products in the manufacture of shoes, but now the war has made it imperative. Lowell, in common with other textile centers, will reap the benefit.

The textile journal also predicts a larger export trade, not only with South America but with Europe at the cessation of hostilities. "There is every reason," it says, "for expecting a greater volume of business. It may not come next week, nor all at once, but it is inevitable, and this is the time to prepare for it." If the other influential trade papers of the country could put aside their lobbying activities and their desires to influence party politics, and preach instead the good old patriotic doctrine of optimism, not only would it encourage the public to look for bright spots but it would bring bright spots to gloomy corners. When there is such good reason for confidence, it is a shame that any interest should deliberately strive to spread feelings of diffidence or pessimism.

THE OPEN SEASON

In lifting the ban which he had imposed on hunting until the rain made it less dangerous, Governor Walsh expressed the hope that the sport will not be indulged in to such an extent as to endanger the existence of any species of game. That his hint was timely is well proved by the returns made since the permit to hunt was given. During the first day, 3000 pheasants are reported shot, probably an understatement. Considering the fact that there are 65,000 hunters in Massachusetts and that others up to the number of 100,000 are permitted to shoot on their own property, there is grave danger that the pheasant will be almost entirely exterminated—each hunter being permitted by law to shoot six. Among the many who regret this state of things are hundreds who regard it in an economic rather than in a sentimental sense. Pheasants have been propagated and protected for years at great expense and their wholesale slaughter would endanger their existence entirely and make it necessary for the state to introduce them again. Whether a week or two of cruel sport for the few is worth this is very questionable. Indeed, the testimony of the hunters is, that the pheasants are so common that there is no difficulty in killing them. The extermination of such a beautiful and useful species would be a reproach to the citizens of Massachusetts and it would not do much to establish the reputation of our public for common sense. Something should be done before it is too late to prevent the "sport" of the few from destroying what is of benefit to the people as a whole.

NORTHERN BATTLE LINE

Since the taking of Ostend, battle forecasters have talked quite freely about the designs of Germany on England, basing their arguments on the apparent desire of the Germans for positions on the channel, as near the English coast as possible. Many take this as an indication of an invasion of England, a possibility that is feared by many residents of England. It does not follow, however, that Germany will attempt any invasion on a large scale at the present time. To do so would be to invite annihilation by the English navy which up to the present has been almost powerless, owing to German naval inactivity. All manner of tales are rife about long-distance siege guns and Zeppelins to be used in the attacks on England, but they are without sure foundation. Germany seems to be facing a long struggle and is making preparations to entrench her forces strongly in Belgium. Nevertheless the proximity of the Germans must keep England in an anxious state of mind, until some definite plan of warfare is revealed along the northern end of the battle line.

If Germany runs out of bomb dropers, she will have little difficulty in finding experienced men in New York. Fresh on the attempts on two churches comes the news of the third attack on the life of an Italian consul. Unfortunately these New York bomb stories have to do more with attempts at destruction than with the arrest of the guilty.

Commissioner Morse is very positive, apparently, in his belief that paving blocks are the proper thing for Westford street, despite the fact that the people of the Highlands favor macadam. In this matter the people at that way do not show a disposition to take "expert" advice.

Sir John French's occasional war reports go far to atone for the silence of the war correspondents. He uses the pen as mightily as the sword.

FREE SPEECH

So far these United States have done very well in exercising a strict neutrality in the European war. The rank and file of the people have their opinions and they express them. It is pleasing to note that there is not a slight taint of rabidness either in the press among the people. As a nation we have evinced cool-headedness that is somewhat remarkable in view of the fact that the greatest war struggle within the realm of recorded history now takes place.—Worcester Gazette.

HOW TO STOP STOMACH TORMENT

Sound Advice From a Well-Known Physician

Men and women who suffer from what they call Dyspepsia, indigestion or just plain "stomach-trouble" usually seek regular relief in the form of some purgative or cathartic, or other artificial digestant. This, experience teaches me, is a serious error. In nine cases out of ten, the distress is caused by the development of acids in the stomach, formed by the fermenting of the food. Instead of a digestant being required, something should be taken to dissolve or neutralize this acidity; when normal digestion will follow as a matter of course. This acid matter is distinctly poisonous and unless it is dissolved, digestion merely carries the mass of fermenting food from the stomach to the intestines, where its poison is absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body.

If all the great army of people who suffer after nearly every meal would make it a point to take a teaspoonful of Bismuth Magnesia in a quarter glass of water after each meal, there would be no formation of acidity and consequently no distress or discomfort. Sour, acid, gassy stomach, heartburn, belching, bloating, etc., would then be a thing of the past. "Bismuth Magnesia" is a physician's prescription. It is inexpensive and can be obtained at any drug store. It is prepared for just such trouble and the best proof of its efficiency is that it will stop the sharpest, biting stomach distress in five minutes from the time it enters the stomach, simply by dissolving the acids that have been formed there. Its action is absolutely harmless.

close of the war we shall doubtless find that not only the world's bravest but many of its most brilliant lives have been ended. The wealth of Vanu Marcoux, the Boston Opera singer is a case in point. Other and even more distinguished geniuses in the realms of music, art and science are in the ranks and may be lost to the world at any time.—Newburyport Herald.

THE MUNSTERBERG MATTER

Harvard seems likely to end the Munsterberg matter by accepting the professor's resignation and ignoring the threat of Captain Clarence Weiner of London to withdraw a salary of $10,000. THE WELCOME RAIN

After 47 days of drought, rain has come to the relief of the thirsty land. It has been a long time without the moisture of the gentle rain. The forests have suffered from the drying process which has turned the fallen leaves to tinder. The result is a carelessly dropped spark and destroy the beauty which has required centuries to produce. Had the rain come earlier, large tracts of woodland would not now be blackened by patches of burned tree trunks, offensive to the eye, and sore reminders of heavy losses to the owners of the forests. The rain came as a powerful reinforcement, welcome and timely. The farmer rejoices that there is water on his crops, even though it be too late to be of much service.—Lynn Item.

VETERAN NEWS MAN DEAD

THOS. R. KELLEY OF LAWRENCE WAS PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN

—ENLISTED THREE TIMES

LAWRENCE, Oct. 20.—Thomas R. Kelley, one of the oldest and most prominent business men of this city, who died Friday, was buried from his home, 42 Cross street, yesterday afternoon. For 20 years he was engaged in the wholesale and retail newspaper and stationery business.

Mr. Kelley was a Civil war veteran and was well known in the business field in this city. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted three times, each time being taken out by his father on account of his age. He persisted in his efforts to fight for his country, however, and Aug. 28, 1862, enlisted at Worcester. Sept. 30 he was mustered in as a private in the 51st Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. He fought in many skirmishes and battles while in the service.

He was honorably discharged from service May 30, 1865, at Newbern, N. C. His discharge record shows he was on duty at all times and comments on the gallant and efficient manner in which he had served his country.

He was born at Millbury. He married Elizabeth M. Jordan at Haverhill Jan. 21, 1878. Mr. Kelley came to Lawrence directly after the close of the war. For a number of years he was an overseer at the old Sutton mills at North Andover. Later he was employed at the Atlantic mills in this city, remaining with the latter concern for many years. He was at one time in the grocery business. He was a member of Needham Post No. 33, G. A. R. He is survived by a widow and two sons, E. Frank and Charles E., and two grandsons, Charles E. and G. Frank Kelley.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

Great interest is being taken by the members of the Immaculate Conception parish in the annual parish reunion which is to take place on Oct. 23, and which from all accounts promises to be one of the biggest events in the history of the Belvidere parish. In conversation with a party of parishioners recently, the subject of the reunion came up and one of the party started a discussion as to when the first reunion was held, being of the opinion that it was held as far back as 25 years ago. The reunion was inaugurated by the late Rev. William D. Joyce, O. M. I., while pastor of the Immaculate Conception, about 20 years ago. Prior to that time most of the social events of the parish were conducted by the Christian Doctrine society and the Immaculate Conception Temperance society. Twenty-five years ago this week, both of those old societies held forth, and the Sun reported their gatherings as follows:

"Monday evening the Immaculate Conception Temperance society dedicated its new hall in the Wier building in Market street. The new quarters were once occupied by the Salvation Army as barracks but under the direction of the new tenants the place has been completely changed and makes a most cozy meeting place. In honor of the dedicatory exercises the new quarters were prettily decorated and pictures of Fr. Mathew and Fr. Burke occupied prominent places. President

James Reynolds opened the exercises by giving a comprehensive sketch of the society, which had its origin in the church of the Immaculate Conception. John S. Colby of the Vox Populi spoke cheering words for the society, urging the members to do everything in their power for its success. A recitation by John Feeney was received with great favor. Rev. Daniel M. Burns, O. M. I., addressed the audience in a few well chosen remarks, assuring the society of his support in every way. His words were listened to with marked attention. Misses Ann and Mary Meagher sang a duet very sweetly. Rev. William D. Joyce, O. M. I., gave the society some sound advice and assured the members that the Oblate Fathers would strengthen their desire to live temperate and virtuous lives. Remarks were also made by Edward F. Slattery and John Coyne.

Concerning the Christian Doctrine society, the old Sun said:

"Wednesday evening's meeting of the Christian Doctrine society of the Immaculate Conception church was made highly interesting. A fine musical and literary program opened the meeting, and near the close the society elected Rev. Daniel M. Burns, O. M. I., to represent it at the coming Catholic congress to be held at Baltimore. The reverend gentleman said that he would attend the congress if possible, and thanked the society for its selection of him. The members are very anxious that he should go to Baltimore. His activity in the cause of religion has never flagged since he came to Lowell. Should Fr. Burns go to Baltimore his keen powers of observation will enable him to return with a graphic account of what he witnesses."

HORNE COAL CO.

HAVE YOU NEURASTHENIA?

Neurasthenia is a condition of exhaustion of the nervous system. The causes are varied. Continuous work, mental or physical, without proper vacation periods, without proper attention to diet and exercise, also worry over the struggles for success, are the most common causes. Excesses of almost any kind may produce it. Some diseases, like the grip, will cause neurasthenia. So also will a severe shock, intense anxiety or grief.

The symptoms are over-sensitiveness, irritability, a disposition to worry over trifles, headache, possibly nausea.

The treatment is one of nutrition of the nerve cells, requiring a non-alcoholic tonic. As the nerves get their nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed toward building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Two useful books "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Send money, N. Y., if you mention this paper.

Fred Walsh Cured

From the driver's seat on a grocery wagon to the owner's seat in a luxuriously appointed 1914 model shows how J. Fred Walsh has moved along in a quarter of a century. For the Sun of 25 years ago had the following:

"At the close of business, Saturday night, the bookkeeper in behalf of the employer and employees of Pike's market, presented J. F. Walsh, a driver of one of the order wagons, a beautiful gold headed cane, it being the close of his term of service with the firm as a driver. Mr. Walsh, who has been on his own account in Middlesex street, after the presentation Mr. Pike took all the employees to supper at Putnam's restaurant."

Fred Walsh has successfully demonstrated how a young man with ambition and ability can come along in the world and incidentally get a good time out of it. After leaving Pike's, he opened the Union market in Middlesex street and made that business a big success. While yet engaged in the provision business the Buicks struck the town, and Fred was one of the first to purchase a machine. An enthusiast in all his undertakings, he soon became an enthusiastic autoist and foreseeing the business possibilities in the auto line, he abandoned the market and entered the automobile business in which he has met with great success. His business soon outgrew the limited confines of Lowell and he opened up in Boston where at present he is kept busy, though he finds time to run up to see his old acquaintances occasionally.

Old Ambulance Corps

For many years Lowell had an ambulance corps squad as one of its local military organizations and along with being a finely drilled and equipped organization its social affairs were among the foremost of their day. Twenty-five years ago the corps had one of its annual field days, which the old Sun reported as follows:

"The target shoot of the Ambulance corps was held on Thursday at the city farm range and was a very enjoyable affair. Given by E. L. Loring, the corps made a very good showing. Honorary members won prizes as follows: Lieutenant Howard, a dressing case, given by Marston & Co."

Bouquet for Bros. Smith and Bayles

Says the old Sun: "Monday night Mr. Joseph Smith resigned from the office of secretary of the overseers of the poor. He will take the city editor's desk in the Morning Mail office on November 3. The overseers elected Capt. Charles H. Richardson as his successor. Mr. Smith's salary was $1800 and the use of the horse and carriage. The Mail will pay him $1500 for his services and will get full value for the money. Mr. Smith is a writer of ability and he will take to the Mail office a dash and literary finish in his new position since Editor Bayles of the Citizen was here."

"Joe," remained on the Mail until the coming of Editor McCleery, when he and Mr. McCleery got along together like two strange bull-dogs. Mr. Smith is now contributing editor to Truth, a Boston publication, and was recently writer of an inside tip through the columns of the "Menace," a little sheet known as the "Menace," that "Joe" is now in the "pay of Rome." "Joe" recently took up his trenchant pen and took a wallop out of the "Menace" leaving nothing of it but the "sac" and the editor of the "Menace" after he came to, thought up the worst thing that he could say in reply and that was that "Joe" is in the "pay of Rome." Horrible! "Joe" must be making money since he went to the Hub.

Speaking of Editor Bayles who still writes most interestingly for the Courier-Citizen, the same issues of the old Sun had the following: "Editor Bayles has written an Indian story for a book to be sold at the Young Women's Home Bazaar. It is said that a scapular soler which occurs in the story is really a disguised report of a recent Republican councillor convention. If this is so, the story is sufficiently barrowing."

The republican convention that year was a rousing affair. After a seven-hour wrangle in Huntington hall, the convention adjourned without making a choice. The candidates were Luman T. Loring of Hudson, Byron Trull of Lawrence, Charles F. Loring of Melrose and James Pierce of Malden; all good boys. In fact, as fine a bunch of boys as ever sunk an axe into a log. There were 133 delegates present representing four cities and 42 towns and all vacancies were filled and the old Sun says there was some amusement when Alderman Foster of Lowell voted for Billerica and Alderman Sawyer appeared as the lone delegate from Roxbury, while Major Noyes represented Tyngsboro. The delegates voted all afternoon with no choice, the contest being between Messrs. Loring and Trull and then adjourned to a later date. The Sun had the following comment on the convention:

"Candidate Loring ordered dinner for 100 persons to be served at the Merrimack house at noon. He expected to be nominated for councillor before the convention was an hour old. The splendid fight made by the Trull men in ward 10, and the fact that somebody had to pay the score for the uneaten banquet."

Here's another: "All of Lawrence is coming up here to settle the councillor fight. A dark horse may be led in unexpectedly. It is said the animals is being groomed up in ward 10."

And this one: "The way that Lowell went back on Trull was a caution. Old promises made to Lawrence were broken by the Lowell republicans in a shameful manner."

At the second convention Trull was victorious and the old Sun said: "Byron Trull of Lawrence is the republican candidate for councillor. He was nominated Tuesday after another characteristic row by the republican delegates. Loring and Jeffs are left and they charge Trull with having bought up delegates enough to break the deadlock. It costs Loring $300 for his experience and the Trull men spent a good deal more but they are satisfied with the substance, while the gentlemen who were left must be satisfied with the shadow. It will be surprising if there isn't some tall cutting of Trull when election day comes."

Wasn't it awful the way the republicans used to behave in those days. It's no wonder that a third party has grown out of the old organization. Imagine allowing a fine dinner to go to waste on account of a simple deadlock. Had that been a democratic convention, could a dinner have grown cold? Not even the steam that rises from the soup when it first appears out of the kitchen would have been missed.

THE LADY'S WORKBAG

A sewing hint worth remembering is the necessity for bolting buttonholes that are to be covered with wash material before they are covered. This will prevent the coloring in them from coming through and will save the trouble of recovering over time the dress is washed.

The discarded talcum powder box with a perforated top may be made to do duty for a button holder. The box may be covered with a piece of fancy figured ribbon or brocade, the edges may be finished with galloon, if necessary.

Into the opening at the top several hatpins may be thrust. The holder may be weighted partly filling it with cornmeal or powder.

When drawing threads for hem-stitching or drawn-work, wet a small brush, rub it over white soap until it lathers, then scrub the threads that you are going to draw. You will be greatly astonished to find how easily they will come out without breaking when you treat the goods in this manner.

Some women sew small snap fasteners to the brim of the motor bonnet and also to several veils, so that the change of veils may be effected quickly when the costume calls for particular color, or when one veil has become damp or dusty midway of the trip and one wishes to freshen up a bit before entering a restaurant.

A clothespin apron is a great convenience. It is made out of strong chintz and cut double and almost circular in shape, except for a small dip at the top. In one of the pieces two backward-turning slashes are cut and bound with braid. The pieces are then placed together wrong sides touching, and the edges (except the dip) bound with braid. The apron is then put on a narrow band and is fastened with a button and buttonhole at the side.

Plainer ones can be made out of ticking and bound with a white tape.

In the embroidery world this is an age of revivals. First came the revival of the cross stitch. Naturally there followed the renaissance of Queen Anne embroideries, which are of the cross stitch variety. Elizabethan embroidery worked in long stitch on fine white linen has also been revived.

Renewed interest is being taken in old fashioned patchwork quilting and the magazines are full of articles relating to the history of our grandmother's quilts and showing designs for their adaptation to the present day scheme of things.

Colonial bedrooms are not considered complete unless they contain pieced quilts such as were in vogue a generation ago.

Almost every needlewoman knows the possibilities of colonial braid, and one wonders why its newest adaptation was not thought of long ago. These are double daisies made with two rows of the braid. Of course, the daisies are the principal feature of the patterns with a few leaves and sometimes lattice work.

To form the flowers, the braid is fastened around the circle which marks the large daisy center. Each petal is made with two sections of braid, one being folded back going around the center, fastening it along the inner edge, allowing the tips to stand out from the material.

After the first row is fastened a second row is sewed in place and the centers are filled with French knots. The petals of the flower thus stand out from the center and so produce an unusual effect.

are carried out in lazy daisy stitch and outlining. Sometimes the leaves are merely done in single short stitches.

Now is the time when the "forehand" woman is getting some of her sewing done. Before making of the colored wash materials she shrinks them, and "sets" the colors.

THE SICKABED LADY

A sick headache is often caused when traveling by inability to get meals at the usual time, but if a few raisins are carried to eat at that time it will often prevent the headache, advises the nurse. Raisins contain a great deal of nourishment, and eating them draws the blood from the head to the stomach.

Here is a good remedy for seasickness: Drink half a glass of water into which has been squeezed the juice of half a lemon and a quarter of a teaspoonful of ground cloves. This dose can be repeated in half an hour.

When going to a new place one should be very careful for a few days as to diet.

Sometimes the water, although pure, will cause stomach disorder. Often vegetables will cause trouble, so that it is safe to take with you a bottle of tincture of peppermint or, if this is disliked, tincture of ginger.

To stimulate torpid organs, the nurse says, the paste is most effective and quite painless.

A half pound each of the raisins and figs and one ounce of scoria leaves, chop fine, place in a stewpan with one-half pound of sugar, let simmer for fifteen minutes, then pour in a deep dish to cool.

Take a piece as large as an ordinary marble at bedtime. The quantity can be increased or reduced as required. Drink a glass of cold water half hour before breakfast; several glasses during the day and one at bedtime.

Eat fresh vegetable and fruit and take more outdoor exercise, and you will not require the fig paste very long. It is better to correct your condition by your diet than with drugs.

The nurse gives the following directions "Don'ts":

Don't allow the sheets to become wrinkled.

Don't jar the bed by leaning or sitting upon it.

Don't allow stale flowers to remain in the room.

Don't forget to be kind and patient.

Don't have temperature of sickroom over sixty-five degrees.

Don't appear anxious. People who are ill are very sensitive.

Don't rattle papers. Nothing gets on one's nerves more than this.

Don't give the patient more water in a glass than he is allowed.

Don't fill the room with fresh flowers.

Keep one or two bouquets in the room at a time. Change every two or three hours if you have a great many.

The nurse says when the feet feel sore and tender soak them in hot water and Epsom salts about one and one-half ounces to a basin of water. Rub the feet gently twice a day, as it is very restful. Fine cotton stockings with white soles are often more comfortable than lisle.

For sore soft corners between the toes, rub them with castor oil twice a day and place a small piece of lamb's wool between the toes. Bathe the feet every day and always dry thoroughly between the toes.

A good method of removing warts is to wet them with hot water and then rub them for two or three minutes with table salt, says nurse.

At the end of this time cover the wart with salt and let it remain undisturbed for another five minutes, when wart should be freed from its coat of salt.

Repeat this treatment several times a day for a week, when, in most cases the wart will be no more. There will be no scar, so feel no fear of this treatment.

If your hands perspire too freely, says nurse, add a few drops of tincture of myrrh to the water in which you rinse them after washing. Then dry thoroughly and dust with boracic acid or oatmeal.

To do away with excessive perspiration under the arms, bathe the armpits with tepid water and a little tincture of benzoin night and morning.

Then apply this powder; one-half pound of pure borax, one ounce of ordinary baking soda, one dram of any preferred scented powder.

SOME KID--MCCOY

Former Claimant of the Middleweight Title a Versatile Character

Twenty-four years is a long time for a fighter to last, but Kid McCoy, the Hoosier middleweight, although he was 41 years old last Saturday, is still able to pull off the "come-back" stuff, and to give occasional flashes of the form which made him one of the cleverest fighters in the world when he was in his prime.

Norman Selby, to give the Kid his right and proper name, was born on Oct. 17, 1872, in a Hoosier village about 40 miles from Indianapolis, as a lad he was afflicted with the wanderlust, and beat his way over a good part of America. His first real battle was pulled off in Indianapolis in 1890, when the Kid, who had become a jack-of-all trades, was working as a waiter in a restaurant.

The Kid's employer was an expugnant, and his place was a sporting resort with a boxing ring in connection. One day young Selby got into a dispute with another waiter, and the boss ordered the turbulent lads to wait until evening and settle their quarrel with the gloves and the ring upstairs, the loser to lose his job as well.

McCoy, however, for his job, and he got it all over the other chap. His employer was so pleased with his showing that he gave the Kid his start in the boxing game. In 1893 he got a job as assistant cook in Bob Fitzsimmons' training camp, and, without letting it be known that he was a professional boxer, he watched Bob at work and finally got a trial as sparring partner.

McCoy was then little more than a lightweight, and he took a lot of hard knocks from the freckled fellow, but at the same time he gained valuable experience. When Fitz quit the middleweight class division McCoy claimed the title, and held it against all challengers, although his claim was disputed by Tommy Ryan. McCoy whipped Gus Ruhlin, Peter Maher, Joe Choynski and other good heavyweights, but was knocked out by Jim Corbett. The Hoosier retired in 1905, and has since spent most of his time in Europe and was boxing instructor to Maurice Hinchey, the Belgian heavyweight. He has made several come-backs in the ring. The Kid has been married no less than eight times—maybe more, since it is difficult to keep tabs on his matrimonial activities.

FIRST STREET REPAIRS

CONSIDERED BY HIGHWAY COMMITTEE OF BOARD OF TRADE—

COST WOULD BE ABOUT $50,000

At a meeting of the board of trade highway committee held yesterday afternoon it was stated that the construction of a boulevard highway along the river bank in Indian Orchard would cost approximately $50,000 from Read street to the city line where the river state highway to Lawrence begins. The estimates constituting the total amount were submitted by City Engineer Kearney. After discussing the matter carefully, the committee voted to recommend to the city government that First street be temporarily repaired as soon as possible to make it at least safe and comfortable for traffic and that these repairs be done as cheaply as possible.

The meeting was called ostensibly for the purpose of making some progress on the First street problem, and incidentally to hear from Charles J. Morse, commissioner of streets and highways, as to plans for the coming year. First street will be given a liberal coat of cinders this winter and the steam rollers will work it down to a hard surface. Then a liberal coat of gravel will be laid and Commissioner Morse decided that a good street will be ready which can be used for two years, at least, without difficulty. The committee urged that this be done as soon as possible, pointing out the great danger to traffic at the present time because of the bad condition of the street.

Mr. Morse promised to make First street a portion of his early winter work. The commissioner discussed road repaving and maintenance. He outlined some of his plans for next year if he continues in the street department. He would block paved Broadway, he said, because of the type of traffic which uses it.

Before the meeting of the committee, Commissioner Morse and Chairman Marden of the committee visited President P. F. Sullivan of the Day State Street Railway company and consulted concerning the opportunity to move the trolley tracks in First street.

President Sullivan agreed to consider the matter and to instruct the road's engineer to communicate with Commissioner Morse to see what could be done to give more roadway space in First street. It is too late to accomplish anything this fall but it may be done next year if possible.

The highway committee will spend some time this fall on a study of the thorough routes or more important thoroughfares of the city and present, if thought advisable, a paving plan upon which the city might operate for a series of years, securing a steady improvement along recognized routes which need reconstruction.

WIFE WAS DISILLUSIONED

IMMIGRATION DOCTOR TELLS WOMAN HER HUSBAND HAS GLASS EYE

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Mrs. T. H. Mehl, the English wife of a German, arrived on the steamship Sachem from Liverpool yesterday and declared, upon stepping ashore, that "one learns a lot in America."

She had just learned that her husband had a glass eye and though she has been married to him for six years never even suspected it.

And it was Uncle Sam who shamelessly gave away the secret.

Dr. H. B. C. Reimer of the immigration service, in accordance with his duty in looking over arriving passengers, noticed that Mr. Mehl had an artificial eye and he made the usual notation on the landing ticket.

Mrs. Mehl was watching him as he wrote the words.

"Why, what does this mean?" she inquired in amazement.

"Your husband's eye is glass, that's all," replied the government doctor. "He was beginning to see he wasn't the only one who had made a discovery."

The husband blushed and allowed that the "eye" had been made in Germany, where they do some things well.

"I am astounded," gasped the wife when she could get her breath. "Why, I have been married to this man for six years and didn't know he had only one eye."

Mr. Mehl said—

But that's another story.

JESSE SOUGHT PARDON ANTI-GERMAN RIOT

Burkett Apologized at League Session to Gray for Blow Struck in Worcester Park

Yesterday's annual meeting of New England league magnates at the Quincy House, Boston, proved to be one of the most eventful sessions of its kind on record notwithstanding the fact that Jimmy Gray and Jesse Burkett met there for the first time since the August afternoon when Burkett slapped the Lowell man's face on the Worcester ball park.

Jesse Burkett stepped up to Gray soon after the magnates of the New England franchises had gathered at the hotel and, with outstretched palm, made a public apology to the Lowell man, which was taken in the same spirit that it was proffered. Those present who were looking for "fireworks" of a lively order were agreeably surprised at the amicable settlement which the two men arrived at.

In his apology Burkett commended Gray upon his admirable control of his temper and decided his own action as ungentlemanly. Soon afterward Jimmy and Jesse were apparently as friendly as in days of yore.

Secretary Arthur D. Cooper was unanimously elected to his old berth but resigned as soon as the vote had been cast. The election of appointment of the new secretary was held over until the next meeting of the league in December.

President Timothy Murnano announced that his job was secure for another year as his term of office does not expire until 1915. Some talk was made relative to the appointment of a successor to Sec. Cooper, said appointment to be made by the president, but no definite action was taken on this matter.

The only important piece of business which was transacted was the straightening out of the Haverhill-Lawrence-Lynn franchises. Dan Noonan is now sole owner of the Haverhill club and Louis Pieper signified his intention of selling his holdings in the Lawrence team as soon as possible. In fact Pieper will not assume title to the Lynn holdings until he has sold out his interest in this year's pennant winner.

The magnates also spent some time discussing the advisability of shortening the New England league playing season. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that games played after Labor day were losing propositions. No action was taken on this, however.

The baseball men present at yesterday's meeting were: Lowell, James J. Gray, Andrew F. Roach; Lawrence, Louis Pieper, Daniel Noonan; Haverhill, Louis Pieper and Daniel Noonan; Lynn, Eugene Fraser; Portland, Hugh Duffy; Worcester, Jesse Burkett, Mr. O'Donnell; Lewiston, Joseph Burns; Manchester, Fred Lake.

LONDON MOB ATTEMPTS TO WRECK SHOPS WHERE MANY HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Another mob attempted to wreck German shops in the Borough of Deptford last night, but a large force of special police, who had been placed in the district in anticipation of scenes similar to those previously enacted, dispersed the crowd. Many of the German shopkeepers, fearing that attacks would be made on their premises, had strongly barricaded them.

A judge in the police court declined to accept bail in the cases of over 30 rioters arrested during Sunday night's demonstration. The public prosecutor advised that this course be adopted by the court, declaring that the conduct of the participants in the wrecking and looting of the stores and living apartments of the Germans was a disgrace to Englishmen.

The newspaper campaign against the employment of subjects of enemy countries continues. Several additional hotels announced that all German and Austrian employees had been discharged. A number of large restaurants have substituted girl waiters for the Germans and Austrians who previously held the positions.

William Hodge is in the fifth week of his big success at the Wilbur theatre, Boston, where "The Road to Happiness" is being traveled every night by a host of playgoers, who find that the play sends them away feeling better and life looking brighter.

Some of the sentiments expressed by Jim Whitman, village youth and optimist, the new character impersonated by Hodge in this piece, bear the same element of homely thought as did the sayings of Daniel Voorhees. Pike the role Mr. Hodge made famous in "The Man from Home."

"You can't fight trouble with tears; tears help trouble as water helps flowers," says Jim. "The only way to win is to smile at it, and if you can't sing, whistle. If you won't hear heart aches, and if you smile it dances."

The title of the play comes from the lines expressed by Mr. Hodge as the young optimist: "Courage and honesty and truth—these form the road to happiness. If you have not courage, borrow it."

At one time in the play when Jim Whitman (the part that Hodge plays) complains that his girl throws him over every time her pa coughs, he says: "Am I have to recite Riley to yer for an hour and propose all over again, and that reminds you that the play is made something after Riley's recipe:

What we want, as I sense it, in the line
O' poetry is scampin' yours and mine—Somepin' with live stock in it, and outdoors,
And old crick bottoms, snags and sycamores;
As well as Johnny-Jump-ups, all so fresh,
And easy-like! and groun' squirrels—
yes, and "We"
As sayin' is—"We, Us and Company!"

AMUSEMENT NOTES

OPERA HOUSE

James P. Lee is winning back his old following, as well as attracting new adherents, in his entertaining play with music, "Safety First." Both star and play are proving popular at the opera house, and will they might, the play is clear, clean, healthy fun from beginning to end, and is not only brightly written, but brilliantly acted. Last night's audience was kept in convulsions of mirth, and was voted by all to be the best ever. To describe just how this is accomplished, and to tell of the many side-splitting situations, would be anticipating, and only spoil the surprise that the play affords. Enough to say that no end of mirth provoking situations follow with galling gun rapidity, and fairly raises the roof with shouts of laughter.

Lowell has seen some fine tango dancers, and has seen Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle in moving pictures, but it is safe to say that Mack and Miley are being featured in "Safety First," are the best two that ever danced on the local stage, and they come nearer to imitating the Castles than anybody yet seen on a stage. Their version of the Argentine Maxixe was most charming and well-nigh perfect, and met with the hearty approval of all. Miss Hickey will give free lessons in dancing to any lady citizens attending the performance during her engagement here, and it is a well known fact that the society people of many of the eastern cities owe their knowledge of the social dances to the instructions given them by Miss Hickey.

H. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The program at the H. F. Keith's theatre this week comprises seven vaudeville acts of the A1 quality, as well as a series of modern comedies which are both pleasing and instructive. The bill is one of the very best produced at this popular house for a long time and if one is to judge by the cordial reception given to the members of yesterday's performances, the management of the theatre have selected just what the patrons expect.

The headliner on the program is a one-act play entitled "The Turn of the Tide," which is being staged by Madden and Fitzpatrick. This is a one-act playlet, the scene of which is in New York, while the time is the present. The performers are Lewis Madden and James William Fitzpatrick representing "Mozart Milligan" and "Richard Crawford" respectively. The latter is in love, without hope, with a girl who is being courted by a rival. He decides that this dirty-looking rascal is the wifemaker picked out for him to operate on, but while he is the only thing which can be used for the purpose is loaded with the liquor. A satirical interchange of repartee goes on and finally the burglar pulls himself together and decides to make a dash for it. The act is very pleasing and is well staged.

Another interesting sketch is that produced by Maud Muller and Ed. Stanley. Maud is a little woman who has a soft voice and she knows how to use it. For fifteen minutes the pair entertain in a most delightful way with witty sayings and funny movements and finally the woman drops her big voice and sings a grand opera aria with a most delightful soprano voice.

The Cox Sisters, assisted by Frankie Fox present "A Little Bit of Everything," a sketch which consists of singing, dancing and a little touch of comedy. The quintet are very entertaining and their sketch is cleverly given.

"A Business Proposal" is the comedy staged by Chauncey Monroe & Co. It deals with a young woman who is in love with a 200-pound clerk. The clerk is very bashful and the woman who is struck on fat men has the nerve to propose to this fat clerk. Of course everything ends well. This act means constant laughter from the minute the actors appear before the footlights until the end of the sketch.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
The Merrimack Square Stock company yesterday presented for the first time a four-act drama, entitled "Little Lost Sister," taken from the book

OF VIRGINIA BROOKS AND, JUDGING FROM THE SIZE OF LAST EVENING'S AUDIENCE AND THE APPLAUSE WHICH GREETED THE VARIOUS MEMBERS OF THE COMPANY, THE PRESENTATION FULLY SATISFIED THE ONLOOKERS. THE PLAY WILL BE REPEATED AFTERNOON AND EVENING DURING THE REMAINDER OF THE WEEK.

"Little Lost Sister" unfolds a story which though very interesting, at times exposes the white slave traffic in a way that might be questioned by the average theatregoer. However, it teaches a moral lesson which should be heeded by all who witness it. In the first act a pretty innocent little country girl is lured from her home by a white slave agent on the pretense of marriage. He takes her into a large city where she is obliged to live in the neighborhood of vice, and though at times the young girl attempts to gather up strength enough to leave her evil companions and go back to her mother's home. Finally, the mother, heartbroken over the disappearance of her younger daughter, goes to the city and secures employment in a large cafe. After several scenes of a very interesting nature, the mother and daughter are brought together, but only for a minute as the "little lost sister" is hurried from the building by one of her companions. The final act brings the whole family together again in their country home. Prominent throughout the presentation is the work of a weary young woman, who spends her whole time trying to rid the community of these undesirable citizens and help the young girls who are lured from their mother's arms on a false pretense. This part is taken by Miss Sadie Galloupe, known in the play as "Mary Randall," who gives a delightful interpretation of her lines. Miss Eva March, making her last appearance in this city, is seen in the part of "Patience Welles," who goes to the city to seek her "little lost sister," and is pleasantly surprised to find her. While Sam A. McNary has an excellent part, as "Michael Grogan," Joseph Thayer, Harry Spencer, Eugene M. Desmond, Tom Welton, Kenneth Fleming, Mary Randall, Sadie Galloupe, Patience Welles, Eva March, Elsie Welton, Frances Agnew, Martha Welton, May B. Hurst, Carter Anston, Robert E. Lee, Jack, Kenneth Fleming.

What is undoubtedly one of the most wonderful photo-plays ever presented in this city is being shown at the Academy of Music for the last time this afternoon and this evening. It is a drama supreme masterpiece entitled "Through Dante's Flames," produced by the company of all-star screen artists.

In addition to this masterpiece there is a program full of corking good features, such as "The House of the Dead," an Indian play enacted throughout the pure blooded Indian performers. Tomorrow and Thursday the big extra feature, "The Red Club" will be shown in connection with another big show. The prices are five and ten cents.

THE OWL THEATRE

"The Owl" one of the latest stage productions to be filmed, is making an enormous hit at the Owl. Another ex-High School Player Breaks Into College Company

Local Boy Landed 'Varsity Position on Mt. St. Mary's Eleven

Paul J. Cahill, one of last year's high school mainstays on the gridiron, has matriculated at Mount St. Mary's college, Emmitsburg, Md., this year and until the recent sad accident at that college, which caused the dropping of football for the season, played right end on the 'varsity.

One of the members of the football squad was tackled hard during a scrimmage and received injuries from which he died in less than hour. Action was taken on the matter at once by the faculty and last week the gridiron game was abolished at the institution for the remainder of the season.

To the Lowell boy, however, goes the distinction of capturing a berth on the 'varsity for which he will receive his school letter just the same as though the season had been completed. While at Lowell High Cahill was prominent in track athletics as well as upon the football field. He will be a candidate for the track team at Mt. St. Mary's college as well as should catch on with the "training table" fortunes without much trouble.

New Agents for Cadillac
The Cadillac people are to be congratulated on securing Mr. Dana and his son, G. Russell Dana, as agents for their cars. As salesmen of automobiles these two local dealers have established an enviable reputation. In years past they have carried several makes of cars and have always increased their contracts each following year. The auto man says: "Watch the Cadillac."

Geo. H. Dana Busy

Geo. H. Dana and associated with him, his son G. Russell Dana, Jr., are apparently developing some reputation in the automobile business. These people have enjoyed an enviable standing as dealers and service men while handling the Stevens-Duryea and Hudson cars for some years past, and in today's issue they announce themselves as representing the Cadillac car (the new eight cylinder V type motor)

EDDIE CAWLEY AT COLBY COLLEGE

A Former High School Star One of Backfield Stars in Maine College

EDDIE CAWLEY

Eddie Cawley, two years ago the most prominent figure upon the horizon of local high school athletics, is now a sophomore at Colby college, where he has achieved as enviable an athletic reputation as he enjoyed here. Cawley is rated as one of the best back field men that Colby ever had. Several critics chose him last year in their selections for All-Maine teams. The local boy shone at fullback last season and is even improving on his work this year.

Cawley is an athlete who would attract attention on any football squad in the country. He is husky, carries the ball well and is very hard to pull down after getting under way. Added to this, he is a quick starter and a natural football player.

The local boy is better known, however, for his ability on the diamond than for any other branch of athletics, although he is also better than the average in the weight events. But as a baseball player Cawley stars. Cawley was picked out by Connors Mack two seasons ago and spent several weeks under the wing of the athletic manager. This, too, without ever having played professional ball. It is expected that Cawley will prove to be one of the greatest athletes who ever attended Colby before he finishes his course at the Maine college.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

The Army-Navy football game was abandoned definitely today by the athletic committees of the two academies. Secretaries Daniels and Garrison were advised of the fact and it would appear that Annapolis and West Point will not battle on the gridiron this year. The football public have lost this famous game simply for the reason that the Midlows wanted to play in Philadelphia and the West Pointers declared for the Polo grounds and no happy compromise was in sight.

Joe Finneman, last year with Lowell and this past season one of the Fed's successful pitchers, is planning on playing basketball this winter. Joe has already signed up with a quintet which will travel through Jersey and New York.

Ad Wolcott and Freddie Welsh signed articles yesterday for their 13-round bout in Madison Square Gardens on Nov. 2. The Englishman gave away weight for the battle. Welsh is not afraid of a weight advantage in a 10-round go.

Bob Paradis of this city is a candidate for the job of secretary of the New England league and appears to have the inside track at present. Here's luck, Bob!

Johnny Evers was certainly given a royal welcome in Troy, N. Y., yesterday. The Braves' captain was received with more ceremony and pomp upon his arrival in his home town than any other individual heretofore.

The meeting of the City league last night showed marked enthusiasm among star local bowlers for the new organization. E. F. Clark was elected president, Edward Jewett chosen as secretary and Nicholas Driscoll named as treasurer. With these men at the head of it the city's newest bowling league ought to experience every success.

At the New England league meeting yesterday Lawrence was formally awarded the pennant for this league while at a similar session of the Eastern association New London was presented with the championship emblem. It will be the last tag that Pieper will win for Lawrence fans.

It begins to look as though Frank Hinkley would have a formidable array of gridiron athletes ready to face Harvard on the day of the annual

THE KASINO

Don't forget the big attraction at the Kasino tonight—LeRoy Young and Miss Anella Burnham of New York, who will depict all the modern dances to your absolute satisfaction. These artists have been the sensation in and about New York city, where they have danced before thousands of people daily for the past three months. To have secured them for Lowell is some achievement on the part of the Kasino management. A record breaking crowd will surely attend the exhibition.

WARE MAN, BURIED IN QUICKSAND 24 HOURS

WARE, Oct. 20.—Being rescued after 24 hours imprisonment in a quicksand, 31 feet below the earth's surface, is characterized by Maurice Allen as "the real thing in a return from the grave."

Unkempt, unshaven, although little the worse for his thrilling experience, Allen sat propped up in a bed at his modest home last night and gave his impressions of that close call from death. His wife and three children showed him with food, caresses and endearing words as their part in the joyous family reunion.

To the several hundred men who labored desperately with shovels, ladders, ropes and other equipment, Allen owed his deliverance at 3:25 yesterday afternoon from the treacherous bottom of the well that he was digging when disaster overtook him.

Since a Sunday afternoon when a series of cave-ins left him buried to his neck and with the lower part of his body imbedded in the quicksand, the rescuers who swarmed to the mouth of the pit waged their battle for Allen's life.

Disheartening reverses beset them. Once when they had almost freed Allen, the sides of the well caved in and again. This time he was engulfed in earth to his eyes. Several of the rescuing party had narrow escapes from being caught themselves. But, undaunted, they quickly rallied around the well top and lowered by means of rope a man who dug away the earth from Allen's face.

With danger of suffocation thus averted, the rescuers protected Allen from future cave-ins by placing over his head a barrel to which was attached the tubing of a pulmonary.

All through the night and well into yesterday afternoon fresh air was pumped to him. Meanwhile the rescuing party, among whom were many police and firemen, were hard at work digging a trench through the hillside in which the well was located. They had decided that the one means of extricating the man was to penetrate the side of the well by means of a trench and remove the earth from around Allen by means of a bucket brigade.

To dig the trench seemed a herculean task, but it was actually accomplished after 40 feet in length. This ditch and also the sides of the well had been carefully shored up with planks to prevent a repetition of the accident that befell Allen.

Rescued by Chain

At noon time the rescuers were within 10 feet of the well. At 2 yesterday afternoon they had broken into the side of the pit. Then began the real delicate work of the rescue.

"Zero" Bourgeois, a former friend of the imprisoned man, was lowered by means of a rope from a fire extension ladder that had been placed over the mouth of the well.

Slowly and carefully Bourgeois began the work of digging away the earth from the barrel-topped Allen. Then, after he had made a little headway, he pulled a shovel. Next Perry Dunham, superintendent of highways for the town of Ware, was lowered to the side of Bourgeois.

He, too, worked at removing the earth.

Little by little, but with slowness that seemed to voice the reluctance of the quicksand to release its prey, the rescue progressed. And as progress was made a faint hold was maintained on a rope which, fastened under Allen's arm pits, prevented his sinking farther from the top of the pit. Chief of Police B. W. Buckley, to whose good management the success of the dangerous undertaking is generally attributed, alternated his instructions as to procedure with oft-repeated caution of "safety first."

But at last the earth had been removed until only Allen's legs as far as his knees remained in the quicksand. A board which had remained jammed against his right leg was carefully removed. Then Allen, who had been kept under his barrel equipment was asked if he would risk a concerted tug at the rope fastened to him.

"Pull away for your life, do anything, as long as you get me out of here," said the man made for a mighty tug on the rope. In preparation for this move the diver-like headgear was removed from Allen. All rescue work momentarily came to a halt when Allen demanded "another

CONGRESSMAN ROGERS STATES THERE IS A MARKET IN EUROPE—LETTER TO BOARD OF TRADE

According to Congressman John Jacob Rogers of this city, the products manufactured in Lowell can readily find purchasers in Europe and he suggests in a letter written to the secretary of the board of trade that the board prepare a list of all articles manufactured in Lowell and supply the representatives of European countries in the United States with such a list as well as the names of the manufacturers.

Congressman Rogers' letter, which is self-explanatory, is as follows:

October 16, 1914.

Mr. John H. Murphy,
Secretary of Board of Trade,
Lowell, Mass.

Dear Mr. Murphy:—

It is a matter of common knowledge that the countries of Europe, including Great Britain, are beginning to buy in the United States manufactured goods in great quantities and variety. It is generally believed that this activity will, during the war, increase even more rapidly than it has in recent weeks, as war necessities of Europe gradually become depleted. Those products in which Lowell excels are certain to be in great demand.

The European embassies and legations in Washington and the consulates-general in New York are naturally the intermediaries between their respective countries and the United States producers. I am advised that many of these foreign representatives are preparing an elaborate list of those products which can supply the needs of their respective countries, and which their governments may be interested in when the war comes from the other side, these representatives will turn to their list and, without resorting to competitive bidding, purchase from the consuls of whom they thus have knowledge.

I am convinced that the Lowell board of trade might care to use its facilities to emphasize to the citizens of Lowell the benefits of the war to our war carriers of the present situation, and to suggest that they lay before the representatives of the various countries who may be "on the market" the information concerning those commodities in which such countries might naturally be interested. If desired, I shall be glad to furnish a list of the European representatives and to render such further assistance as I may be able to.

Very truly yours,
John Jacob Rogers.

HUMAN SYSTEM INJURED BY ONE CUP OF COFFEE

Its Constant Use Tends to Increase Fatigue Products Says Kansas City Physician

The constant use of coffee and tea tends to increase fatigue products in the human system, says Dr. G. W. Robinson, of the University Medical College, Kansas City, Mo.

"Caffeine is used in coffee and tea as a beverage for its stimulating effects. Even in small doses, one cup of coffee or tea per day, the general results of the action of caffeine upon the nervous system are to increase the irritability of the brain.

"In order to respond to the stimulation of regular doses of caffeine, nerve and muscle tissue must draw upon their reserve energy, and they must do their work in the presence of an excessive quantity of toxic fatigue products, and both of these conditions tend to exhaustion and perversion of function.

"Caffeine is not a food to nerve or muscle tissue. It does not increase the elimination of fatigue products, but does increase their production."

NOTE—Too much cannot be said in favor of the value of an invigorating morning drink, especially during colder weather, but the drink must not be harmful. The food drink, INSTANT POSTUM, while resembling the best grades of Java in flavor and appearance is pure, wholesome and wholly free from the coffee drugs "caffeine" and "tannin" and is rapidly taking the place of coffee as a table beverage for reasons of health.

GERMANS ATTACK ALLIES NEAR THE BELGIAN COAST

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The plunging German attacks on the allied line near the Belgian coast between Nieuport and Dixmude, similar tactics by the allies in France between Arras and Roye where progress is claimed, a continued allied assault on Lille still held by the Germans and stubborn fighting in the vicinity of St. Albans where for days the allies have been trying to drive the Germans from their southernmost lodgment were the acute points today in the sprawling battle area of France and Belgium.

The communications issued in Belgium yesterday to meet the inevitable German advance which followed the taking of Ostend.

The fighting is now centering only a few miles southwest of that city and the Belgian army, heretofore reported as having repulsed the Germans on the banks of the river Yser, is again in the thick of the fight being credited with holding back the German line as far as Roulers, Belgium, 13 miles northwest of Courtrai, which point they are holding, according to the latest reports available when this despatch was written.

A despatch dated merely "north of France," says that the allies have retaken Ostend but this is not confirmed and is at variance with the German contention that they have reached the neighborhood of Dunkirk whose inhabitants as well as those of Boulogne are in a state of panic. If the Belgians are holding Roulers it seems incredible that the Germans have advanced so far as that would mean a complete bending back of the allied left which lies on the coast west of Ostend.

Torrential rains have been falling recently near the scene of the coast fighting, making the flat country a sea of mud and this with the network of canals makes the movement of German ganks extremely difficult.

News from the east shows no notable change in the battle lines. The Russians contend that the Germans are still held on the Vistula and San rivers.

ALL NON-COMBATANT PRISONERS ALLOWED TO DEPART FROM GERMANY

LONDON, Oct. 20.—A Reuter despatch from Berlin says that all Frenchmen and women under 21 and over 60 years will henceforth be allowed to depart from Germany by the railroads via Scandinavia, Switzerland, Sweden, German authorities will facilitate their departure as much as possible and a bureau established in Berlin will assist them in passing through Switzerland. The measure is reciprocal in nature and meant to meet a similar departure of Germans in France.

BOOKS NEVER SOLD

Mrs. Watts of Manchester and Mrs. Preston of Western testify in the Rare Book Case

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Mary A. Watts of Manchester, N. H., testified yesterday in the trial of James J. Farmer, William J. Hartley and others, charged with a $100,000,000 rare book swindle, that she paid Glenn Farmer and Hartley $30,500 for so-called rare books upon their written assertions that the books would be sold later at a large profit.

"I was also told that I would receive a large picture of Theodore Roosevelt, signed by himself, and a public document, both of which were very valuable," Mrs. Watts testified.

Mrs. Marion W. Preston of Western, Mass., testified that in 1910 Glenn Farmer induced her to buy a set of books, with the understanding that later he could sell them for her to a man in Europe. Mrs. Preston then bought two other sets for $3000, she testified; and afterward Farmer asked her to buy three more sets for $3000, telling her he could sell them for her and showing a cablegram from "a gentleman in Europe" who offered $35,000 for the last set.

"The cable was signed by a Colonel Huntley," continued the witness. "The books were never sold, and in all I paid about $10,000 to Mr. Farmer for books."

A number of letters written at Boston by Colonel Hartley to James Farmer were read. The trial will be resumed on Wednesday morning.

TO SEIZE STEAMER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—Claiming that the steamer Evelyn, now lying at a wharf in this city, is a supply ship for German cruisers, the British government late last night, it is reported, ordered the armored cruiser Lancaster and the auxiliary cruiser Camilla to intercept and capture the Evelyn when she sails outside the three mile neutrality limit. The Evelyn was sold last week and the new owners declare she is to sail on a legitimate voyage from Philadelphia for Norfolk and the Mediterranean.

OUTSIDE, LOOKING IN

ONE LOCKED IN CAFE, OTHER LOCKED OUT—PART OWNER DOESN'T DARE TAKE DRINK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Padlocks on the inside doors of Burton's cafe, northeast corner of One Hundred and Forty-fifth street and Amsterdam avenue, since Saturday night have kept watchman James Curry from entering the place. Padlocks on the outside of the two doors for the same period have been an equally effective bar to the emerging of Charles Ebersacher.

The curious who gazed from time to time at the two men, one locked in, the other locked out, have decided Curry has the better of the argument, especially if he happens to desire food or drink. For while Curry is free to roam about in search of sustenance, Ebersacher's abiding place is said to contain nothing to eat.

Of drinkable there is plenty within the cafe, but they have been normally seized by Bernheimer & Schwartz, brewers, and Curry maintains that if Ebersacher refreshes himself by so much as one little drink he will be guilty of appropriating the property of another.

Ebersacher and Alfred Swanson were partners in the saloon up to Sept. 30. The two couldn't agree, so Swanson closed up on the last night of last month and left a note for Ebersacher saying he had quit. Besides leaving the note Swanson surrendered the license to Bernheimer & Schwartz, who had added in financing the wet goods venture.

The brewers brought seizure proceedings and took formal possession of fixtures and stock. Then they put Curry in Curry as watchman pending legal solution of the partnership tangle.

Next Lichtenberg Brothers, landlords, brought dispossess proceedings against the partners, alleging that $500 rent was due. The case is to be heard in the Manhattan street municipal court.

Last night as Curry emerged from the saloon to lock up and go home, Ebersacher, Curry says, rushed into the place and snapped heavy locks on both doors. Curry then put locks on the outer doors.

SALEM MAY JOIN DISTRICT

STEPS BEING TAKEN TO ACCEPT FIRE PREVENTION ACT—BOSTON TEACHERS FOR INSPECTORS

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—It is understood that citizens of Salem are taking the preliminary steps to have their city council vote to accept the fire prevention act, which will mean the inclusion of that city in the district supervised by Fire Prevention Commissioner John A. O'Keefe.

The bill creating the fire prevention bureau specified that it should apply to the Metropolitan district. The act, however, applies to any and all cities and towns in this commonwealth, as in the case of a city, by a two-thirds vote of its city council, present and voting, and, in the case of a town, at any meeting called for that purpose by a majority of its voters present and voting, may vote to accept the provisions of the act.

Although Gov. Walsh has not yet appointed a deputy fire prevention commissioner and a secretary has not been chosen by Commissioner O'Keefe, it is probable that the deputy commissioner will be named Wednesday at the meeting of the executive council. The deputy and the secretary are to be selected with special reference to their fitness for the positions and because of their familiarity with the fire laws of the state.

Another important task before Commissioner O'Keefe is the selection of inspectors. The act provides for an "office force" and this, Mr. O'Keefe desires, should be made up of individuals with particularly strong qualifications. It is the belief of Mr. O'Keefe that the fire laws among public school pupils should be inspected by young women school teachers. He feels that they will be more familiar with pupils and school fire drills, that they will be better fitted to go before meetings of teachers and address them on the subject of fire prevention. He will select two inspectors from among the public school teachers of Greater Boston.

Mr. O'Keefe wants two representatives of organized labor to be inspectors. They will not only be familiar with the routine of shops, mills and factories, but will be able to go before meetings of labor unions and explain the purpose of the bureau. Mr. O'Keefe says that many laboring men lose employment whenever a fire takes place and therefore ought to have a prominent part in carrying out fire prevention measures.

For the other inspectors Mr. O'Keefe wants a man who knows garages "inside and out," a man who has handled paints and oils for years and knows all about them, and a man who is expert in the construction of chimneys and who will be able to do much toward preventing fires from "defective" construction of chimneys. He will have to take his inspectors from the list of certified applicants furnished by the civil service commission.

THE BILLBOARD TAXATION

FAVORED BY SEVERAL AT STATE HOUSE HEARING GIVEN BY LEGISLATIVE COMMISSION

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—The taxation and regulation of advertising signboards was favored by several men at the state house yesterday morning before the special commission appointed by the legislature to conduct an investigation.

Ames Weston, president of the ward 10 Good Government association, objected to billboards in residential districts. James P. Roberts of Dedham suggested that a constitutional amendment giving taxing and restricting powers to the general court should be tried. E. T. Hartman, representing the Massachusetts Civic League, favored taxation of signs. Representative Channing Cox thought the step would require a constitutional amendment.

HAZING WAS MURDER

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 20.—Saying that the death of Cadet William Howland of Middletown, Md., as a result of a hazing escapade at St. John's college, here, on May 26, was an act of murder, Judge Brashears, in delivering the charge to the jury of Anne Arundel county, yesterday, urged that the tragedy be investigated. The five freshmen who are held responsible for the death of Howland are Hugh West, Harry C. Cuber, Fredrick Marbury, Baltimore; H. A. Jones, Cambridge, Md., and John M. Noble of Preston, Md.

SAYS SULPHUR IS SURE TO RELIEVE ITCHING ECZEMA

Get an Ounce of Bold-Sulphur and Heal Skin Eruptions Right Up.

Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur says a noted dermatologist.

He informs us that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasitic-destrorying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur which is applied to the affected area in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in itching Eczema, proves very welcome.

THE RABBIT'S FOOT

BY GWEN SEARS

THE FLAWLESS COMPLEXION

Every woman over twenty should begin the zealous guarding of her complexion, one of her most priceless possessions, so that the sallowness and saggy muscles will not begin to make their fearsome appearance just when she has need of all her charms to offset her vanishing youth. If the complexion is very sallow and dry, try a milk face bleach. You will not regret the slight trouble in the surprising result, for the face will immediately take on a fresh, rosy look and be fair where it has been muddy.

The best time to give the milk bleach is at night. Have ready a pan of sweet milk into which you have dropped two strips of cheesecloth. Now cleanse the face thoroughly and then go over it with absorbent cotton dipped in olive oil and Cologne water, pressing the cotton firmly against the skin.

Now comes the bleach. After drying the face thoroughly, lie down and place the cheesecloth strips, wrung out well, across your face, one above the eyes, the other below. Pat the wet strips well into the curves of the face. Allow them to remain until almost dry.

Then wring out again in the milk and repeat the process. Continue the applications for half an hour, then get up and wash the face with a damp cloth and then with a soft towel. Give this face bleach every night for a week and you will be amazed.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT ON TRUDEAU'S DEATH

Representative John W. Brennan of Dracut is in receipt of a full report concerning the death of Romold Trudeau of this city, who died at the Western state hospital on Sept. 26, the said report being from State Inspector Robert E. Mott to James A. Silles, district attorney for Worcester county.

At the request of the wife of deceased, Rep. Brennan called upon Governor Walsh and asked the state's chief executive for an investigation of the death of Trudeau, who, the wife claimed had been brutally abused by some of the attendants at the hospital. The investigation was conducted by the state police and a copy of the report was sent to Rep. Brennan by the governor.

A copy of the report follows:

Worcester, Oct. 1, 1914. Mr. James A. Silles, District Attorney, Gardner, Mass.

Dear Sir: In regard to the death of Romold A. Trudeau, a patient in the Western state hospital, who was found dead in one of the corridors at about 11:30 a. m. on September 26, 1914 at 11:30 a. m. The autopsy showed a fractured skull, and three ribs cracked, not broken.

James E. Pryor, 135 June street, Worcester, states that Trudeau (his patient) was restless all the forenoon, Trudeau going into the clothes room, and putting on extra clothing, and about 10:15 a. m. Trudeau fell on the floor, and got up unassisted. At 11:15, Supervisor Sinnott advised that Trudeau rushed in and grabbed him about the waist. Thomas J. Smith, an attendant, had five patients in the wash room, and he came to the assistance of Pryor and took hold of Trudeau by the shoulder.

At the door of the clothes room, which opened into the corridor, he reached his hand back to the five patients in the wash room, which was a part of the clothes room. At this time, Smith saw Trudeau push Pryor into the corner against the wall, Pryor having released his hold of Trudeau. The patient, Trudeau, slipped, the back of his head struck the wall, and he then fell to the floor.

Smith, seeing both men on the floor, went back to his five patients in the wash room. Thomas Baker was sent by one of the supervisors to notify Smith to come to dinner, and just got to the head of the corridor when he saw Trudeau lying on his back on the floor. They immediately notified Dr. Mizener, who came up and found Trudeau dead.

In our investigation, we learned that Attendant Pryor had reported to Dr. Mizener early in the forenoon that Trudeau was getting beyond control. Trudeau was getting beyond control in the ward in which Trudeau was confined, states that Trudeau came running down the hall during the night, it being Trudeau's habit to go into the wash section during the night. "After Trudeau went into the water section I heard a fall. I went in to see what the trouble was, and found that a patient, Mr. Kedan, had thrown Trudeau on the floor. I separated them. They were scrambling, with Mr. Kedan on top of Trudeau. The floor was a brick floor."

From all our investigating, I am of the opinion that the injuries to Trudeau were not the result of any assault on the part of any attendant. James E. Pryor tells a very consistent story. Everything he says is corroborated. Pryor states he was the only person that had hold of Trudeau when they fell. The injuries to Trudeau's ribs were undoubtedly received when he was wrestling with Kedan, another patient. The fracture of his skull is on the back of his head, and I am informed it is a slight crack, hardly noticeable. His injuries are consistent with the story told by Pryor. We can find nothing that will indicate any person, or persons, being responsible for the injuries to Trudeau.

From our investigation, I am of the opinion that if any act, by any attendant, other than accidental, was committed, we would have learned of it. I think the medical examiner is of the same opinion. We are, especially after we informed him of the evidence of Trudeau and another patient having a wrestling match and falling on a brick floor in the bath room during the night.

Yours respectfully, R. E. Mott, (Signed) State Inspector.

ASSAULTED BY ROBBER

Woman in Tyngsboro Knocked Down—Change in Postmaster Predicted at No. Chelmsford

A woman named Mrs. Richardson was forcibly knocked down and assaulted last Wednesday night in Tyngsboro road, within a short distance of her home by an unknown man who afterwards made good his escape. Mrs. Richardson was on her way home, when the man who had apparently been hiding behind a clump of bushes, jumped out and attacked her. Her cries for help put the culprit to flight and he got away. Robbery was his intent, but he did not secure anything. Constable Marinel received word shortly after the assault and hurried to the scene but could find no traces of the man. It is believed that he made his escape over the boundary line.

FREIGHT RATES

Hearings on Request for an Increase Were Resumed Today

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Hearings on the request of eastern railroads for an increase in freight rates which they claim is needed because of the financial depression resulting from the European war were continued by the Interstate commerce commission today. President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio who as chairman of the conference of presidents of the roads involved made the opening statement for the carriers, was on hand, ready to take the stand in continuation of his cross-examination. Charles A. Conant of New York, financial expert, who was to follow, had prepared a statement in which he discussed financial conditions as affected by the European war, particularly as related to American railroad securities. He estimated the cost of the war, if it continued approximately a year, at not much less than $18,000,000,000. The demand for capital for purely war purposes and for the settlements which succeed the war, said Mr. Conant, "will be so great as to absorb an amount equal to the entire savings for investments made in all civilized countries for a period of several years." The effect of this, he said, would be to raise the rate of interest on investment securities, higher than for many years.

FRENCH ARE NOW FIRMLY ESTABLISHED IN ALSACE

PARIS, Oct. 20.—Increasing satisfaction was shown by the people of Paris today on reading the latest reports from the front. These indicate that the allies are continuing offensive operations at points which, in the opinion of French observers, promise the best results. The action of the Belgian army and of a squadron of British warships in repulsing an attack by the enemy is a subject of particularly favorable comment.

The public was equally, if not more gratified with the announcement of the situation in Alsace. This was the first time in several days that the war office has indicated definitely the French positions. It is now seen that French troops have almost reached the outlet of the valley leading to the plains of the river Ill, which flows north through Alsace and empties into the Rhine. The French now consider that they are firmly established in Alsace on territory doubly dear to them. Word has been received also that the Germans are hastily preparing new defensive works around Strassburg and digging innumerable trenches in front of this city.

Vineyards have been leveled by the German engineers in the carrying out of this work.

The fighting in the vicinity of Lille has been watched with deep interest here, and it is hoped that not many days will pass before the allies take this position.

After long continued negotiations through the intermediary of the American legation at Bern, Switzerland, exchanges are about to be made among the belligerent countries of interned civilians.

clency and self-restraint in entering upon new enterprises, which are not absolutely necessary, furnish the only guarantee for a sound financial condition. Eternal vigilance and an aroused public opinion are the only effective checks upon extravagance.

"The legitimate financial demands upon a modern city are enormous and must be met, if the people are to live in health, safety and comfort. Most cities are pressed for necessary revenue. How is this to be obtained? My answer is—from the tax dodgers. "If there were no tax dodging, no discrimination, no evasion there would be no revenue enough. Our tax laws must be enforced and every man must bear his full share of the burden. I believe that a tax on the income of intangible personal property, uniform throughout the state, enforced by compulsory returns from every taxpayer, would produce a large revenue and is the best way to get after the tax dodger."

Other speakers were Russell A. Wood, candidate for secretary of state; Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, candidate for congress; Arthur M. Huddell and James P. Magenis, candidate for lieutenant governor.

PROGRESSIVE RALLIES

Walker, Bird and Kincaide Speak With Local Candidates in Whitman and East Bridgewater

WHITMAN, Oct. 20.—A largely attended progressive rally was held at town hall last evening with Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, progressive candidate for congress; Joseph Walker, Charles Sumner Bird, Senator Charles E. Burbank of East Bridgewater, Representative Cleveland A. Chandler of East Bridgewater and Representative Harold P. Gurney of this town as the speakers. William F. Coughlin, chairman of the progressive town committee, presided.

Mr. Walker was the first speaker and advocated national prohibition, claiming that it was bound to come within a few years. Col. Kincaide congratulated the Abington and Whitman district on its representatives and advocated their election.

The same speakers divided their time between East Bridgewater and Whitman. At East Bridgewater Dr. L. Shirley was the presiding officer and Representative Chandler received an ovation in his own town.

IRISH TO SAVE BELGIUM

NATIONALISTS INDORSE REDMOND—ADOPT PLEDGE ADMINISTERED BY O'CONNOR

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Amid tumultuous cheering, with right hands upraised, the Irish nationalists, who crowded Central hall last night, adopted a pledge administered by T. P. O'Connor.

"We will never sheathe the sword until Belgium has got back her freedom," declared every Irishman, not a clear; until a treaty is made, not on a scrap of paper, but on a foundation behind which stands the millions of the British race."

The meeting was called for the purpose of expressing confidence in the leadership of John E. Redmond and to endorse the action of the Irish party in supporting "The war of the allies against Prussian militarism."

Mr. O'Connor said that for this fundamental and supreme principle, the British had fought on hundreds of battlefields. "What they had claimed and won for themselves," he said, they also claimed for other countries, and would help other countries.

In scathing terms he denounced Germany and declared that German militarism must be crushed. There was not an Irishman, he said, whose heart did not bleed for the sufferings of Belgium and who would not do all in his power to end them.

Interest begins Saturday, Nov. 7 at the Central Savings bank.

F. E. VOGEL, PARTNER OF SIEGEL, DIED SUDDENLY

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—On orders from Coroner Hellenstein, issued, it was stated, at the request of the family, physicians today will perform an autopsy to determine the cause of the death last night of Frank E. Vogel, who with his business associate, Henry Siegel, was to have gone on trial this month on indictments charging grand larceny in receiving bank deposits while insolvent in connection with their department stores in this city.

The autopsy is proposed to set at rest any suspicion that death was from any other than natural causes.

Vogel, with his wife, who was Miss

Blanche Siegel, a niece of his partner and their two children, returned on Sunday to New York from their country home in Brimfield. Vogel was then in his usual health, and apparently in good spirits. Yesterday he rose at his usual hour, went down town on business and after luncheon went, as was his practice, for a walk. He returned to his hotel apartment about five o'clock and a few minutes later was stricken.

Vogel and Henry Siegel were each under 14 indictments which followed the failure of the Siegel stores and banks.

The amount of money involved in those indictments against Mr. Vogel was $419,000, in those naming Siegel, $525,000.

EX-PRES. WM. H. TAFT PRAISES PRES. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—With an address of welcome by President Wilson, with former President Taft in the chair and the entire supreme court sitting as guests of honor, the American Bar association today began its annual session here.

In his introduction of President Wilson, Mr. Taft pledged the association's earnest co-operation and its deepest personal confidence in the president's ability and purpose to guide the ship of state safely through the European crisis. Mr. Taft declared the American people were back of the president in his handling of the international situation and that he had the confidence of the nation.

President Wilson's response was that his strength rested in the confidence of the people. He pleaded for the "true meaning of the law" in this time of international crisis, not only as respects international law but as to municipal law. His reference to himself as a lawyer who had reformed, brought forth tumultuous applause. He said the world was now "stirred to its depths" but the best course for a nation to pursue was the "distinctly legal" course.

He added that the unsettled world condition made a good time for freedom of the law from the dry consideration of cold precedents and injecting into it more of the viewpoint of justice for the ordinary man.

Ex-President Taft's Address

The United States should draw from the European war a lesson regarding its own conduct, said ex-President William H. Taft in an address here today before the American Bar association. In discussing the charges of violation of treaties by European nations, Mr. Taft said that this country should put itself in such a position that it could fulfill the obligations imposed by its treaties, and he recommended legislation to that end.

In his address, delivered as president of the American Bar association, Mr. Taft also said that the progressive party was departing from the "preposterous nostrum" of the recall of judges and of judicial decisions. These proposals, he said, were incorporated in the platform of the progressive party, whose leader "felt called upon to declare that they were the rock upon which it was founded."

"It would appear," Mr. Taft continued, "that the party which fathered these proposals now finds that instead of being the rock on which it is founded, it is to change the metaphor, the rock on which it founders. Certainly it seems wise to its leaders to ignore this part of their original propaganda, an indication that it has ceased to be vote-getting and indeed has become a burden to many party that assumes to press it."

Turning to the anti-trust legislation of the Wilson administration, Mr. Taft analyzed the trade commission act and the Clayton act.

"Insofar as the field of general interstate trade is within the practical range of supervision and regulation," he said, "the machinery adopted, it seems to me, is as effective as could be devised, with the minor exception, to add, the field of illegal and criminal effort in respect to restraints of interstate commerce is not enlarged under the new acts, which he characterized as in many respects merely declaratory of existing law."

WALSH AT HYDE PARK

Governor Greeted by Large Audience—Mr. Bird Raps Cong. Gardner—Other Rallies

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—A strong plea for municipal ownership was made by Gov. Walsh last evening at a democratic rally in Waverley hall, Hyde Park. Representative William L. F. Gilman presided at this rally and the speakers, in addition to the governor, were Sec. of State Donahue, Richard Olney 2d of Dedham, Charles N. Proctor of Randolph, David W. Murray of Hyde Park, George N. Hubbard, president of the Brockton Jeffersonian club, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Leon R. Byrnes.

The governor's speech follows in part:

"It must be apparent to even the ordinary man that as far as the government of large cities is concerned the tendency of the times is toward municipal ownership of public utilities, such as, for instance, municipal lighting. It may be a surprise to you to know that 35 cities and towns of Massachusetts are now engaged in municipal lighting."

"In many respects our city governments, when compared with the enlightened cities of the Old World, are somewhat primitive in their municipal affairs. Glasgow, Birmingham and Manchester, those splendid citadels of British democracy, are keeping true to their traditions by trusting their commoners to manage and control large quasi-public corporations. They have met with conspicuous success."

"I believe municipal ownership within certain limits is good democratic doctrine, and I am strongly of the opinion and have been for some time that this commonwealth should again be the plover of industrial reform by lending a helping hand to her cities and towns to go into the business of municipal lighting, at least."

"While the democratic party did not get their ideals fulfilled in this respect, nevertheless a noticeable step forward was made by the passage of the act entitled 'An Act to Consolidate the Laws Relative to the Manufacture, Distribution and Sale of Gas and Electricity.'"

"This act points the way to one method of solving the great problem of cities and towns buying existing municipal plants, and that is by having the commonwealth and the city secure proper experts to pass upon the valuation of the properties."

"The change that was made in the law of the last session, during my administration, was to provide an experienced and skilled commission to hear evidence, and that skilled and efficient board was the gas and electric light commission."

"While believing in municipal ownership, the efforts of the legislature this year have not been to induce cities and towns to hastily adopt such a policy without proper and mature judgment, and to that end we have conservatively retained the barriers that existed, viz, two elections at two successive years."

"To those cities and towns, however, who have finally made up their minds to adopt such a course the commonwealth stretches out its protecting arm to save them from being misled out of large sums of money either under the guise of the cost for experts or for elaborate preparation of the case, the expenses in the past being something enormous and altogether out of proportion to the object gained; in some instances bills having been represented as high as $100,000 for costs of court and advice of so-called experts."

GIVEN HEARTY RECEPTION

WELLESLEY, Oct. 20.—Several hundred persons, many of them Wellesley college girls, crowded the town hall last evening at a democratic rally at which Gov. Walsh was the principal speaker. The governor was given a very hearty reception, the college girls being especially demonstrative in their enthusiasm.

Dr. Otto L. Schofield of the board of selectmen, president and the speakers, in addition to the governor, were Lieut. Gov. Barry, Judge Thomas P. Riley, Congressman James A. Gallivan, C. Edson Abbott and William L. Hill, the last two being local candidates for senator and representative, respectively.

ATTACKS CONG. GARDNER

Mr. Bird Urges McCall to Repudiate Gardner—Scores Congressman's Anti-German Speech

BROCKTON, Oct. 20.—Joseph Walker, candidate for governor; Charles Sumner Bird and other progressives spoke to 300 persons at Canton hall last night.

Mr. Bird referred to Samuel W. McCall the republican candidate, as one of the most reactionary men in the country. Mr. Bird also attacked Congressman Gardner for his statement in congress last week to the effect that Germany was waging an unholy war.

"For such words," said Mr. Bird, "Mr. Gardner deserves the unmeasured censure of every citizen, independent of party, race or religion. President Wilson has asked the people of our country to preserve a neutral attitude in both speech and action toward those nations engaged in desperate warfare; here is a man, the chosen leader of the republican party last year, and this year the republican congressional representative of a great district in Massachusetts, who, in disregard of the solemn appeal made by President Wilson, flouts in the face of millions of German-American citizens the statement that the German cause is an 'unholy one' and a menace to the principles of democracy."

"I urge Mr. McCall and other republican leaders in Massachusetts to repudiate in no uncertain manner Mr. Gardner's speech, which reflects discredit and dishonor upon his party and upon the state."

Mr. Walker touched on municipal finances, having been asked to because this city has the highest tax rate in its history and one of the highest in the state. He said, in part:

"Our cities and towns are running into debt because it is to the political advantage of every administration to keep down the local tax rate, which is immediately known and felt, at the expense of the debt, an increase in which is not immediately felt. The day of reckoning is now at hand for most of our municipalities. The only sound policy is to pay as you go."

"Municipal extravagance can only be held in check by a budget system in making estimates for appropriations. The responsibility should be placed directly upon the mayor, where it belongs, and he should not be allowed by the citizens to escape such responsibility."

"Old-fashioned economy, real efficiency."
